ASK ME ABOUT TV

By Val Carew

I think Alex Karras is great! I loved him when he was a Detroit Lion, and I love him now that he's starring on "Webster." Where can I write to him? — A.B., Waupaca, Wis.

Alex Karras

Karras, who is married to "Webster" co-star Susan Clark in real life, will receive mail if it's addressed to him c/o Georgian Bay Productions, Paramount Pictures, 5555 Melrose Ave., Los Angeles, CA. 90038.

I am a big fan of Richard Eden, the hunky actor who plays Brick Wallace on "Santa Barbara." Is he related to the late Jon-Erik Hexum? They look a bit alike. — B.F., Chillicothe, Ohio

Eden, a Canadian actor who attended Toronto's York University, is not related to Hexum. You can send fan mail to Eden c/o "Santa Barbara," NBC, Burbank, CA. 91505. By the way, Eden once appeared as Stanley Kowalski in a Canadian production of "A Streetcar Named Desire." If you ever have the chance, watch it. It's superb.

I know "Lady Blue" is off the air, but can you tell me about Jamie Rose, the actress who played Katy Mahoney? — S.L., Skokie, Ill.

Miss Rose was born in New York City on Nov. 26. When she was 4, her parents moved to California. She attended California State University at Northridge. While a student, Miss Rose also appeared in commercials and on such TV series as "Green Acres" and "Family Affair." Her other TV credits include roles on "Simon and Simon," "Matt Houston" and "Hotel." She was also a regular on "Falcon Crest."

Miss Rose has appeared in several films, including "Heartbreakers" and "Tightrope." She lives in Los Angeles with her dog.

Betty Tucker Promoted At B&L

John Sheltra, plant manager, and Robert Johnson, plant quality assurance/quality control manager at Bausch & Lomb, announce the promotion of Betty Tucker to the position of group leader for the facility's Quality Assurance Department.

Ms. Tucker was hired by Bausch & Lomb in May of 1976 as an inspector in the plant's In-Process Inspection Department. She was later promoted to the position of senior lens inspector in November of 1978, and was promoted again to the position of group leader in August of 1980 in the plant's Final Inspection Department. She has most recently held the position of quality clerical technician since August of 1983.

In her new job she will be responsible for the day-to-day supervision of all aspects of the Quality Assurance Department operation, reporting to Johnson.

Hughes Notified That State Retains Top Bond Rating

Governor Harry Hughes was notified this week that Standard & Poor's, a major New York rating house, has reaffirmed Maryland's Triple-A bond rating, the highest granted.

"In effect," Governor Hughes said, "this is a vote of confidence by Standard & Poor's in the economic health and financial policies of our State."

The rating house said if the Governor's "orderly payout of depositors" to resolve the savings and loan problem is accepted by all parties, the bond rating "will not be negatively affected."

"All Marylanders should be pleased. We are still among only nine states which this firm has judged worthy of a Triple-A bond rating. I intend to continue doing everything I can to keep it that way," the Governor said.

The Triple-A rating means that Maryland has to pay less interest when it sells bonds to finance capital improvement projects.

Forest Landowners Advised To Seek Marketing Help

Forest landowners in the middle Atlantic states who sell timber may be selling themselves short if they try to market their wares on their own.

Recent studies show that it pays landowners to get help from a registered professional forester when they are ready to take timber to market, says Dr. John F. Kundt, forestry specialist for the University of Maryland's Cooperative Extension Service.

In one study, says Kundt, landowners received 66% more for their timber when they sought and received the assistance of a registered professional forester.

Not only did assisted landowners receive more money, they also retained more than 250% more timber on their land than their unassisted counterparts and they produced 100% more seedlings to regenerate their forested land, according to Kundt.

"A professional forester's knowledge of tree selection for harvest and of the regeneration potential for a forest is worth a lot of money to landowners," said Kundt.

"That knowledge can improve production of a landowner's forest resources by increasing land value, maintaining wildlife habitats, and controlling erosion," he adds.

Landowners probably know less about the value of timber than any other product for sale on their land, according to Kundt. He says landowners suffer the most when they deal with only one buyer and when they accept a lump sum offer for their timber, he says.

"It is much better to put the timber up for sale to the highest bidder, either through sealed bids or at auction," Kundt said.

Having the assistance of a registered professional forester will help a landowner determine if he or she is getting a fair price for timber.

"Always use a written contract when you sell timber, and include in that contract the terms of the sale and the responsibilities of both buyer and seller," he said.

Landowners can get the help of a registered professional forester by calling their county Extension agent. The agent will put the landowner in contact with a forester who will help the landowner plan and carry out the sale of timber, Kundt concluded.

On Dean's List

Randall Bittinger, who is a sophomore accounting major at Frostburg State College, has been named to the Dean's List for the fall 1985 semester by attaining a perfect 4.0 average. He is also maintaining a cumulative GPA of 4.0.

Bittinger is the son of Mrs. Pauline L. Bittinger, Barton, the grandson of Mr. and Mrs. Carroll G. DeWitt and great-grandson of J. Milton DeWitt, all of Accident.

GREEN SWANS
by John Wright, reporter

Green Swans 4-H Club met December 23, in the Swanton Community Building.

Officers for the 1986 4-H year were elected as follows: president, Sam Wright; vice president, Karen Lohr; secretary, Linda Bowser; treasurer, Mike Sweitzer; and reporter, John Wright.

Members were reminded that 1985 record books are due February 1. Sign up for the broiler show is March 19. The annual Achievement Night will be April 12 at Southern High School. The dinner will be a covered dish.

The meeting was dismissed for the club Christmas party, which included exchange of gifts.

The next meeting will be held January 27, at 7 p.m. in the Swanton Community Building. Any interested boys or girls are invited to come as the Green Swans start first full year as a 4-H Club.

Fun Night Set At Bethel UM

January Gas Bills Reflect Cold Weather

Monthly service statements being received now by Columbia Gas customers reflect December's cold weather—67% colder than December, 1984.

"Rates have decreased since last December, so the increase in bills is due to the colder weather," Tom Lindsey Jr., Columbia Area Manager at Cumberland, said. December's average temperature was only 28 degrees.

"A customer comparing the current bill with the bill for gas use last December will likely find a significant increase," Lindsey said. "Of course, the colder it is outside, the more natural gas it takes to keep the home warm."

Lindsey reminded gas customers to take every possible means to reduce gas usage in order to keep their gas bills as low as possible.

Heat-saving measures include:

•Keep the thermostat no higher than 68 degrees during the day, and lower at night, health permitting. It's estimated a savings of 3% occurs for every degree the thermostat setting is lowered in the winter.

•Caulk and weatherstrip wherever cold air can enter—and warm air escape from—the home. Up to 30% of residential heat losses can be eliminated through weatherproofing.

•Inspect furnace filters monthly and change them when they are dirty.

Something To Think About
R. Mark Durst
DIRECTOR
BURIAL BENEFITS
Many people are members of a lodge, fraternal group, or union that provides a lump-sum death benefit to pay funeral costs. These organizations have such "burial benefits" as one of their membership fringe benefits. The money can range from as low as $100 to amounts covering the total costs, as in the case of many unions.
If you are a member of such a group, or groups, you still may not know whether or not there are such benefits or what they amount to. Check now to find out. Then, let whomever may be taking the responsibility know how much you have, and with what organization(s).
If there is a discrepancy between benefits and costs, you must decide whether your survivors need any additional special funds. The advantage of taking care of the funeral and burial costs now is that you spare your survivors one more immediate burden during a difficult time.

GCC Professor Studies Mayan Family Culture

Craig E. Abrahamson, associate professor of psychology at Garrett Community College, recently returned from a two-week trip to the Coba Archaeological Zone, Coba, Quintana Roo, Mexico, as part of his doctoral studies.

According to Abrahamson, Coba is an isolated jungle village of approximately 80 Indians who are the direct descendants of the ancient Mayan Civilization.

The village of Coba and its surrounding ruins were discovered by explorers and archaeologists and was made accessible by roads only 12 years ago. "Until then, Coba had no contact with modern civilization on a regular basis," said Abrahamson.

He noted that the Mayan village of thatched huts had no electricity, running water or telephones and that the only evidence of modernization is a small hotel with a generator built for archaeologists and social scientists studying the Mayan culture. "Before the Spanish conquest of Mexico and Central America, the Mayas possessed one of the greatest civilizations of the Western Hemisphere," said the professor.

He added that the modern Maya are basically agricultural, living in communities organized around central village.

GCC Interim President Dr. David A. Puzzuoli stated, "This example of village life and social organization is of particular interest to Professor Abrahamson, who specializes in cross-cultural studies as a way of understanding family dynamics."

NOTICE

TO WATER CUSTOMERS IN OAKLAND

The Town of Oakland has approximately 850 water customers. Some have experienced frozen water lines and others have let water run to prevent freezing. Some have shared with their waterless neighbors. Neither the Town nor the customers have been at fault in the situation. In fairness to both, where there is evidence that any of the above has occurred, the March quarter water bills will be adjusted as follows:

1. The least amount a customer will pay will be the minimum quarterly charge.
2. The maximum a customer will pay will be the highest amount paid in any quarter during the past year.
3. If the amount of water consumed is less than the last quarter the customer will be billed for that amount.

Oversized Farm Vehicle Bill May Hamper Farmers

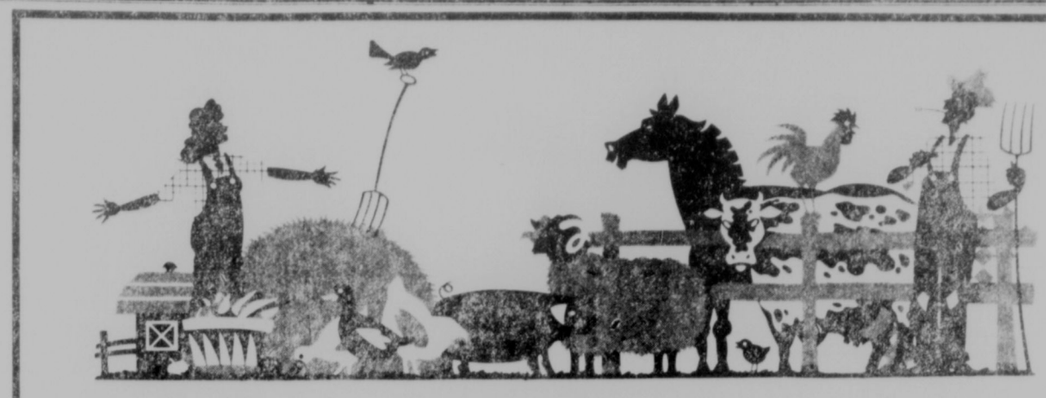
Oversized farm equipment is the topic of a bill being heard today by the Judicial Proceedings Committee of the Senate. The bill, introduced by Senator Howard A. Denis (R-Montgomery Co.), mandates that all oversized farm equipment and oversized farm vehicles must be led by a warning vehicle before it can be moved on a highway in this state.

"This could be rather rough on us," said Jack Miller, Maryland Farm Bureau's legislative lobbiest. "If an escort vehicle is required to move oversized farm machinery, it will rule out all one-man operations."

The bill also would require a certain form of security or liability insurance for oversized farm equipment and oversized farm vehicles. "We don't know at this point just what this cost could be," said Miller.

Oversized farm equipment or an oversized farm vehicle is defined as farm machinery that extends beyond the width of a lane of a roadway in which the farm equipment or farm vehicle is operating.

The oversized equipment or vehicle would also be required to have slow moving vehicle signs and flashing amber lights that face forward and to the rear of the equipment or vehicle. "Many pieces of farm machinery have nothing to support flashers where they would be required to be," stated Miller, and added that this bill will be watched closely by Farm Bureau.



The Senate Budget and Taxation Committee heard the woodland incentives program bill on Friday which would use funds from the agriculture transfer tax to encourage the development, management, and protection of non-industrial private woodlands of the state. Farm Bureau supports the theory of woodland incentives, but is concerned that funds designed for the agricultural land preservation program could be depleted through this use. Since the committee hearing it seems possible that the Department of Natural Resources and the Maryland Department of Agriculture will meet and work out an agreement about funding, possibly putting a cap on the amount the proposed new program would be allowed to draw from the agriculture land preservation funds.

Accompanying bills introduced in both the House and the Senate to grant tax credit against state income tax for expenses incurred in the purchase and installation of conservation tillage equipment were temporarily withdrawn on Friday to give the state comptroller and the Department of Agriculture time to work out some problems with the wording of the bill.

To save administration fees and make the bill more acceptable to the legislature, a change may be made from a tax credit to a tax deduction. Miller says that it would end up with the same benefits but would be worded differently.

Other changes expected to be made include putting a three-year roll-back in the bill which would include all equipment purchased since 1983. The bill is also expected to require a farmer to own the no-till equipment for three years before taking a deduction on it. That deduction, then can be used over a five-year period.

Miller is hoping that any changes made will make the bill more acceptable to the executive branch of the government. "If they go against it, it wouldn't look good," Miller said.

Farming In Maryland.....

Herd Buy-Out Options Set For Dairymen

Some important details of the dairy herd buy-out program of the 1985 Farm Bill were announced late last week by Secretary of Agriculture John R. Block in order to give dairy producers additional time to begin analyzing the program.

Under the farm bill-the Food Security Act of 1985-a participating dairy producer would terminate milk production and sell for slaughter or export all dairy cattle (cows, heifers, and calves) in which the producer has an interest, the secretary emphasized. The new act requires the secretary to implement a milk production termination program by April 1.

The secretary said dairy producers interested in participating in the program will submit a cwt-for-milk bid based on their base period milk marketings. If the bid is accepted, the producer will be required to stay out of dairying for five years and not use or allow the use of his facilities for milk production for the same time period.

To be eligible to bid, a producer at the time the bid is submitted must be actively engaged in the production and commercial marketing of milk.

Secretary Block stressed that any change in the composition of the dairy herd of a producer may affect eligibility for the program. He also emphasized that additional program decisions and regulations will be announced at a later date.

Block explained that as background for a bid, producers will be required to submit evidence of the size and composition of their dairy herds (cows, heifers and calves) as of January 1, 1985; and January 1, 1986, and on the date that the bid is submitted.

The producer must submit monthly records of his milk marketings from July 1984 through December 1985. A producer's base period will be the lesser of the milk marketings for the 12-month period beginning July 1984 or January 1985, Block continued.

A producer may enter bids for one or more of the following time periods: April 1, 1986, through August 31, 1986; September 1, 1986, through February 28, 1987; to March 1, 1987, through August 31, 1987. The new statute gives the secretary the authority to accept or reject any or all bids.

Successful bidders will be given the following options for receiving payments. The first option will be equal annual payments.

The second option will be no payment for the first year. Thereafter, the producer has the option of equal annual payments or a payment not to exceed 85 percent of the contract amount for the second year, with the remainder of the payment made equally in annual payments.

The last option will be payment in the first year not to exceed 80 percent. Thereafter, the remainder will be paid in equal annual installments.

Local meetings are being planned for the month of February to explain and discuss these options and regulations. Dates and locations will be announced in the near future.

MDA Will Help Find Buyers For Market Vegetable Growers

The Maryland Department of Agriculture wants to help growers planning to raise fresh market fruits and vegetables in 1986 line up buyers for them.

Whether it's the grower's first year in business, or an established grower's expansion to greater quantities; the Marketing Services Section of the MDA can help find buyers by using two new, modern tools, according to Jack Frey, who is coordinating the project.

"First, we will use a 24-hour toll-free telephone system to allow growers to feed us the information rather than relying on the mails, as before.

"Then we will computerize our listings so that we can update them instantly and provide fast information and print-outs for interested buyers. In the past two years, we had been relying on an old-fashioned loose-leaf book which really wasn't too fast during the rush of the growing and selling season," Frey said.

Growers wishing to list their crops can start the process by calling the toll-free line (in Maryland) at 1-800-638-2209. At the tone, they should then give their name, county and telephone number so Frey can call them back to get specific information for their listing.

Karen Hamilton Represents State In National Debate Held In Atlanta, Ga.

How can American farmers expand their share of the world market? This was the question answered by Karen Hamilton and five other young farmers in one of the preliminary rounds of the National Young Farmer and Rancher Discussion Meet held January 12 at the Ladha Best Western in Atlanta, Georgia.

Karen is the daughter of Brooks Hamilton of Red House, and is a student at the University of Maryland in College Park. She represented Maryland in the national contest after winning first place in the State Young Farmers Discussion Meet held this past December in Ocean City.

Karen, who is 19, was the youngest contestant and one of only four women out of a total of 38 contestants between the ages of 19 and 30 from all across the United States. These contestants met in preliminary rounds with winners moving into semi-final rounds and four contestants moving into the finals.

The six preliminary rounds discussed the ways American farmers, with the help of national and state legislators and farm organizations, can move farm products into the world market to aid the farm economy and help more farmers stay in business.

The four finalists debated the question: What is the future of antibiotics, pesticides, and related chemicals for agricultural uses? The national discussion meet winner was Larry Priest, who farms 180 acres of corn and soybeans in Michigan. Priest was awarded the use of a new Allis Chalmers tractor, rent free for one year, with the option to buy at the end of the year.

The other three finalists were: Gaye Pfeiffer, a farm wife from Oklahoma who also teaches eighth grade science; Paul Wenger, who raises walnuts, almonds, alfalfa and field crops in California; and Kenneth Gibson, who farms 130 acres of corn and soybeans in Illinois.

After the tension of the discussion meet was over, Karen was able to enjoy the rest of the American Farm Bureau Federation Convention. She also took part in workshops on leadership and economics.

"The national contest was a real challenge," Karen siad, "but I got to meet a lot of people, make a lot of new friends, and just had a wonderful time."

As the Maryland representative and winner of the State Young Farmers Discussion Meet, Karen's transportation and hotel costs were paid for by the Maryland Young Farmers and the Maryland Farm Bureau.

Helping Karen to train in preparation for the contest were members of the staff at the University of Maryland and the agents and office staff of the Garrett County Extension Office.

Over 5,000 Farm Bureau members attended this year's convention with 90 of those representatives from Maryland. The 1987 National Farm Bureau Federation Convention will be held in Anaheim, California.

University Of Md. Economist To Give Farm Bill Talk

Dr. Earl Brown, economist from the University of Maryland who has been in close touch with Washington, will speak at Garrett Community College on Monday, February 3, at 1 p.m. on the implications of the 1985 Farm Bill.

Ample time will be allowed for those attending to ask Brown any questions they may have on the new farm legislation.

G. P. Halterman, local ASCS manager, will also be there to answer questions on the regulations and policies within the different segments of the bill.

All area farmers are urged to attend this important program on farm issues.

Dr. John Speicher To Present Dairy Program For Farm Families

The University of Maryland and the Garrett County Extension Service will sponsor a program by Dr. John Speicher, professor of Animal Science at Michigan State University, on Monday, February 3, at Garrett Community College. The two-part program will cover "Steps to Profitable Dairying" and "Personnel Management of the Farm," and will begin at 10 a.m. in the auditorium at GCC.

There will be a cost of $2 per person which will be collected at the door. Reservations can be made by calling the Garrett County Extension Office at 334-2145. Those attending will be responsible for their own lunch, and the college cafeteria will be available.

Included as "Steps to Profitable Dairying" are topics such as: high milk production, a sound breeding program, feeding for high production, a strong herd health program, good young stock management, and utilizing dairy records.

Under "Personnel Management on the Farm," Speicher will speak on manpower planning, keeping labor records, the hiring process, training, motivation, wages, and employer-employee relations.

Speicher received a bachelor's degree from Kansas State University, a master's degree from the University of Maryland, and in 1964 he earned his Ph.D. from Michigan State University.

His background includes experience as a herdsman and showman on dairy farms, research assistant, Extension dairy agent, assistant professor and professor, and Extension specialist. He has written numerous articles for professonal journals, the best known being several articles for Hoard's Dairyman.

All those attending the dairy program are invited to stay for an afternoon session by Dr. Earl Brown on the 1985 Farm Bill (see separate story).

Avian Influenza Again Threatens Poultry Producers

Poultry producers in Maryland and the Mid-Atlantic area are being advised that Avian influenza is back in the news. The latest outbreaks have occurred in central Pennsylvania since the Christmas and New Year holiday season.

Poultry industry people recall that, exactly a year ago, similar holiday season outbreaks happened in two backyard chicken operations in north central Maryland. Those flocks were depopulated rapidly by a regulatory team of poultry health workers and no further outbreaks of the dreadful H5N2 virus were reported in the Mid-Atlantic area for the remainder of 1985.

Memories still linger concerning the $62 million loss which resulted when avian influenza outbreaks in 448 commercial poultry flocks brought about the destruction of nearly 17 million birds during 1983 and 1984. Most of this loss was confined to Pennsylvania and Virginia, states which border Maryland.

Poultry health spokesmen emphasize that the disease is not known to affect humans.

Edward T. Mallinson, extension poultry veterinarian at the University of Maryland in College Park, has been following closely the latest avian influenza outbreaks in Pennsylvania. Both occurred in small commercial flocks of meat-type chickens in Snyder County, Pa. Dr. Mallinson reported that the affected flocks have been depopulated by state poultry health workers from the Pennsylvania Department of Agriculture, and that investigations are under way to determine the source of the infection and its possible spread.

Although the site of the latest outbreaks is more than 80 miles north of Westminster and other points in Maryland, Mallinson points out that these distances are only two hours away by truck on today's modern highways.

He urges both backyard and commercial poultry producers in Maryland to be alert for respiratory diseases and unusually high mortality rates in their flocks.

Suspected cases should be reported to a local veterinarian or county extension agent, who can get in touch with the nearest state animal health laboratory, where free diagnostic service is available.

An associate professor in the Virginia-Maryland Regional College of Veterinary Medicine, Mallinson admonishes poultry producers to practice "bio-security" at all times. This applies to every level in an organizational structure. Top management administrators must establish and enforce cleanliness as a priority both for themselves and their workers.

This includes isolating flocks from visitors and avoiding all contact with wild waterfowl. Farmers are advised to discourage wild waterfowl from feeding nearby.

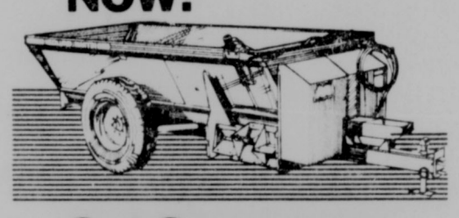
Mallinson advises poultry producers to develop a long-range strategy which includes these provisions:

Confine flocks inside a locked, bird-proof building.

Insure that feed deliveries or other poultry-related trips to or from farms are made in sanitary trucks or vans. This includes shipments to slaughter. If a farmer must deal with an operator who commonly uses dirty, undisinfected trucks and crates, he should make sure that no chickens are left on his premises after the truck leaves. Should the farmer not be able to adhere to the "all-out" principle and has only a small number of birds going to slaughter, with others remaining on the farm, he should place the chickens being shipped in a secure, vented cardboard box set on straw at the end of his lane or driveway. After the chickens have been picked up, burn the box and straw on the spot to destroy any disease organisms which may have fallen from the trucker's unsanitary equipment.

Keep stray chickens, dogs, cats, rats and mice away from flocks.

Practice an all-in, all-out flock placement and depopulation system. This should be accompanied by cleanout and cleanup of buildings and equipment for thorough disinfection.



Further information is available from the Garrett County Extension Office in Oakland.

Mallinson authored the 100-page poultry section of the 1984 yearbook of agriculture, published by the US. Department of Agriculture, titled "Animal Health—Livestock and Pets" The 11 chapters on poultry give detailed information on health management for backyard poultry flocks and pet birds. Copies are available for $10 each, postpaid, from the Superintendent of Documents, U.S. Government Printing Office, Washington, D.C. 20402.

"DEXTERS STORY" CAN BE YOURS! — Some lucky Garrett County youth between the ages of eight and 19 will be the winner of this registered Quarter Horse colt donated to the Garrett County 4-H program by Danny Otto (above right), of Diamond D Quarter Horses near Swanton. Ted Sprangel, Garrett County extension agent for 4-H and youth, is shown accepting the colt on behalf of the 4-H program. A contest will be held to determine the winner of the yearling colt, and a committee is now at work to set up contest rules and regulations. More information will be available in the near future. The contest is open to all county youth between eight and 19 whether they are a current 4-H member or not. However, the winner of the colt, if not a current 4-H member, will be required to join a 4-H club, carry the Horse and Pony Project, and keep project records for at least one year. Parental permission to own and care for the colt will be another requirement. Any youth interested in contest information should call the Garrett County Extension Office at 334-2145.

TRUTH IN LENDING

Have you wondered why classified ads for property sales are much longer than they used to be—especially when mortgage terms are spelled out? You can thank the FTC for that It's to protect the buyer from false or misleading advertising.

During the last few years when creative financing was at its peak, you could count over two hundred different types of mortgage variations available for financing a home. Given this vast number of mortgaging instruments and the complexity of each specific type of mortgage, it's fairly easy to see how an over zealous copywriter, while attempting to simplify the condition for the layman, could in fact end up misleading the borrower.

The Truth-In-Lending Act is monitored by the FTC. For example it clearly stipulates that it is a violation of the law to advertise discounted mortgage rates without including the true annual percentage rate with all fees, points and extra charges included. The explanation may be a bit longer—but at least you know what the real cost is.

Farm Conservation Plans: For Soil Conservation And Water Quality

Farmers have long known the value of conserving soil and water. Keeping valuable topsoil and nutrients in place improves productivity and protects water quality. The conservation plan is the management tool that helps farmers do both.

Concern over the health of the Chesapeake Bay has people taking a new look at the farm conservation plan. Traditionally regarded as something farmers use to build soil fertility and increase yields, the conservation plan is now being touted as the key to reducing agricultural sources of water pollution.

To get a conservation plan, farmers may call the Garrett Soil Conservation District office located in the Garrett County Courthouse. A soil conservationist from the Soil Conservation Service (SCS) or the district will make an appointment to walk over the farm with the owner to identify soil erosion and water quality problems.

Since no two farms are alike and no farmer operates exactly like anyone else, no two conservation plans are alike. To customize each farm's plan, the conservationist needs to know the farming operation, cropping needs and goals, the livestock program, and details about the soils and slopes and the location of streams, ponds and other water sources.

Armed with this information and equipped with a thorough knowledge of soils and their capabilities, the conservationist recommends alternatives for land use and treatment. The farmer makes the final decisions, however, these decisions must conform to good soil and water quality management.

All conservation plans are prepared free of charge by SCS and the district. Recommendations are given at neither cost nor obligation to the landowner.

The practices decided on are then recorded on an aerial photograph of the farm and are described in a narrative section. Although plans are designed primarily to correct soil erosion and animal waste or nutrient runoff problems, they can also be designed to make better use of a resource, increase production, improve wildlife habitat, increase recreational opportunities, or save energy and labor. This becomes the soil conservation and water quality plan—a tool for better management of the farm's natural resources.

The aerial photograph includes a photobased map or sketch with the needed conservation practices outlined on it. Along with the written record of the landowner's decisions is a schedule for implementation, and a map showing the kind and location of soils on the farm. Other useful information on soil loss, maintenance, seeding, tillage, fertilization and pesticide application may be included.

No farmer is required to have a conservation plan unless he has been cited for a water quality violation or wishes to sell development rights to the state under the farmland preservation program. The soil and water conservation program in Maryland is voluntary, however, there are added benefits to a farmer who has a conservation plan.

It is no secret that crops grow best in deep, fertile topsoil. Topsoil that washes or blows away takes valuable minerals, nutrients and organic matter with it. Crops growing in shallow, eroded soils develop poor root systems, are more prone to drought and require more costly chemical fertilizers to achieve acceptable yields.

Conserving soil and water resources also benefits water quality. Agriculture has been identified as a major contributor of nonpoint source pollution to the Chesapeake Bay. Nonpoint pollutants are those contaminants carried in runoff from rain or melted snow.

The agricultural nonpoint pollutants causing the most concern are sediment and nutrients (nitrogen and phosphorus) from animal waste and chemical fertilizers.

Any farm that is experiencing soil erosion or lacks a method for keeping nutrients out of streams needs a conservation plan.

If a farmer can see the effects of erosion, he is already losing about 15 tons of soil per acre annually. Many farmers are shocked when soil losses are presented in another way. For example, if a moderately sloping field loses six tons of soil per year while producing a 100-bushel corn yield, the farmer is permanently exchanging more than a bushel of soil for every bushel of corn harvested.

In a number of programs, the federal or state government will pay a portion of the cost of installing practices called for in the conservation plan. The Agricultural Conservation Program (ACP) administered by the USDA's ASCS and the state cost-share program administered by the Maryland Department of Agriculture are available statewide.

Each program has different cost-share rates and requirements. The local SCS or district office can advise farmers on what is best for them.

Farming is a complex business. Today's farmer needs to know more about more subjects than ever before. Successful farmers know where to get help.

Contacting the local conservation district will give farmers access to recommendations from soil, water and crop management experts. SCS and district conservationists design conservation practices and supervise construction. Extension agents advise on crop, livestock and nutrient management. Department of Natural Resources staff can provide help with forest, water quality and wildlife management. Cost sharing for conservation practices is available from ASCS and the Maryland Department of Agriculture.

But the final decision on what practices to adopt is up to the individual farmer. For facts that will help you make that decision, contact the Garrett Soil Conservation District today.

State SCD Winter Meeting Held Recently In Hagerstown

Keynote speakers at the recent winter meeting of the Maryland Association of Soil Conservation Districts, held in Hagerstown, were Clarence Durban, president of the National Association of Conservation Districts, and Maryland Secretary of Agriculture Wayne Cawley. Members of the state's 24 soil conservation districts and officials from SCS, Cooperative Extension Service, and the Maryland Department of Agriculture attended the association's two-day conference.

Those attending from Garrett County included George Bishoff, chairman, Garrett Soil Conservation District; Harry Hummel, vice chairman; Claude Wagner, treasurer; Marvin Kolb, member; David Thomas, member; and Shaun Sanders, Garrett Soil Conservation district manager.

"Now that soil conservation districts have been successful in getting strong conservation programs passed in the 1985 farm bill, they have to make sure they get implemented," said Durban during the winter meeting. He told members of the Maryland Association of Soil Conservation Districts that the administration and Office of Management and Budget (OMB) were already moving to cut funds for the USDA's Soil Conservation Service (SCS). "On January 2, OMB rescinded $7.5 million from SCS's Great Plains Program, one of the best operated programs we have. That is not the last program that will be considered for annihilation," he warned.

For example, he said that the administration planned to abolish the USDA's Extension Service. "We cannot and will not stand still for that kind of phase out," he said. Although state and local conservation programs are growing at a tremendous rate, Durban said it was "imperative that we maintain the partnership with the federal SCS and Extension Service who provide districts with vital technical and educational assistance."

One of the key issues discussed by Durban was the new Conservation Reserve Program contained in the farm bill. Under this program, the U.S. Department of Agriculture will pay farmers for taking highly erodible land out of production and putting it into grass or trees for 10 years.

Although the rules and regulations are still being written, Pearlie S. Reed, SCS state conservationist, said about 363,000 acres of cropland in Maryland qualify for the program. Although that represents only about 20 percent of the cropland, it accounts for over 50 percent of the soil erosion on the state's cropland.

Also during the meeting, Maryland Secretary of Agriculture Wayne Cawley praised soil conservation leaders for "the tremendous progress achieved in strenghtening the state's soil and water conservation program over the past few years."

Cawley said, "I believe our plan for reducing nonpoint pollution to the Chesapeake Bay is working. Perhaps we're not moving as quickly as we'd like or we've run into obstacles, but we've achieved what we set out to do two years ago."

In the past two years, Cawley explained, the state has quadrupled funds for soil and water conservation programs from $840,000 to over $3 million. It has increased the number of employees assigned to districts from 36 to 95. Over $12 million has been approved for the state's agricultural cost share program for water quality practices. Another $600,000 has been made available for educational and research programs.

Cawley also attributed the progress to new federal resources that have been directed into the state from the USDA's Soil Conservation Service (SCS) and Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Service (ASCS).

Despite the progress, Cawley said he realized that the "past two years have been very difficult for soil conservation districts. I recognize as a result of rapid program expansion, some things have slipped through the cracks." He conceded that delays in releasing funds for the cost share program, in executing contracts and in hiring new employees have been frustrating for local conservation districts."

However, he said that the state plans to sell bonds in February that would make the remaining $7 million in cost share funds available by March. "There is no reason to hold up applications from farmers," Cawley told them.

The agriculture department has submitted its soil and water conservation funding request for 1987 to the governor. Although Cawley declined to be specific, he said it requests additional funds for districts especially for those with urban workloads and those in critical areas as well as additional cost share funds.

During their business meeting, MASCD members passed several resolutions. They voted to encourage the Maryland Department of Agriculture to allow individual districts to adopt the same flat rates that the county ASCS board uses for estimating cost and final payment under the Maryland Cost share program. MDA has proposed adoption of statewide flat rates.

They also voted to ask the state legislature to institute a state tax credit for farmers who purchase no-till planting equipment, as no-till is effective in reducing the amount of sediment reaching streams.

Another vote was to urge the Department of Natural Resources to lift its ban on allowing farmers to raise and market hybrid rockfish in farm ponds.

Finally, they voted to set up a procedure for funding a statewide "conservation teacher of the year" award.

There are over 100,000 different types of soil in the United States.

National Meat Week

Jan. 26 - Feb. 1

Thousands of meat companies and retailers across the country will celebrate the third annual National Meat Week, January 26 through February 1. During this week, consumers will be reminded that meat makes an important contribution to the country's diet and nutritional health while enhancing the quality of American meals.

Meat animals raised by today's farmers produce a higher quality meat, and the supply of meat in grocery stores and food establishments is more plentiful than ever. American consumers have a wide variety of choices from beef, pork, lamb and processed meats.

Retail meat cases are taking on a new look as processors discover different ways to cut, prepare and package red meats.

Modern research, funded by farmers through livestock sale checkoffs, reaffirms meat as a significant and important source of nutrients. At the same time, livestock management techniques have made today's meats leaner and lower in fats than ever before.

Despite changing lifestyles and eating preferences, meat retains its place as the highlight of the meal, whether it is part of an ordinary dinner at home, a holiday feast or a restaurant dining experience.

Joint School Boards Set Agreement Goals

The Board of Trustees of Garrett Community College and the Garrett County Board of Education met jointly on the GCC McHenry Campus on January 28. The meeting was a follow-up on the joint Boards meeting of October 22, 1985, when the Boards agreed to develop an articulation agreement.

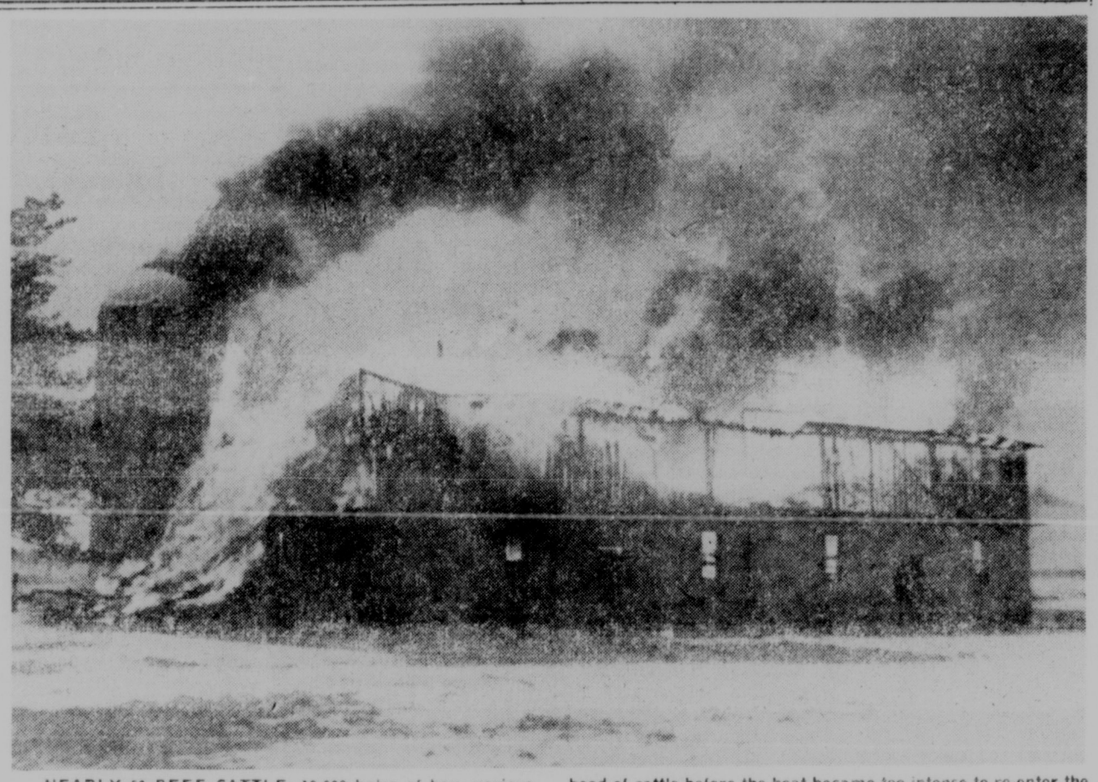
During the January 28 meeting, the Boards approved the final draft of the articulation agreement document.

The goals of the articulation agreement are:

•Provide expanded educational opportunities to the citizens of Garrett County.

•Eliminate or reduce overlapping and duplication of instruction and instructional resources in educational programs that are similar in content.

•Provide program articulation in all possible areas to assure an orderly transition from secondary to postsecondary studies, thus providing continuing and/or culminating post secondary programs for Garrett County students.



•Provide a structure whereby a cooperative process of both short-range and long-range instructional programming can occur.

In addition, the two Boards agreed to:

1. Instructional faculty of both institutions will meet to determine whether educational experiences provided to students result in overlapping or duplication of instruction as the student transits from secondary to postsecondary study. Where overlapping or duplication of instruction appears evident, an attempt will be made on the part of both institutions to identify methods of advanced placement or the granting of college credit for past learning experience. The method of granting advanced placement or credit will be specified in individual program letters of agreement.

2. The Garrett County School System will provide for approved and currently enrolled senior students a program of early release or modification of NEARLY 50 BEEF CATTLE, 10,000 bales of hay, various farm equipment, and this two-story barn were destroyed by fire Sunday morning after an apparent electrical problem touched off the blaze on the upper level of the structure. The Everett O'Brien family, owners of the barn, managed to free only six or seven head of cattle before the heat became too intense to re-enter the barn. The loss has been estimated to be $250,000. Deep Creek and Deer Park firefighters found the structure fully involved in flame upon their arrival. This photo was taken by Rodney Harvey.

Barn Containing Cattle, Hay, And Equipment Destroyed By Fire

A barn containing approximately 50 head of beef cattle, 10,000 bales of hay, and various pieces of equipment was leveled by fire Sunday morning, with the loss estimated to be $250,000.

The barn, located along North Glade Road, one and one-half miles off Glendale Road near Deep Creek Lake, was owned by Everett O'Brien. Firefighters from Deep Creek and Deer Park volunteer departments were dispatched by the Garrett County Office of Emergency Management at 10:24 a.m. and, upon their arrival, found the two-story structure fully involved in flames.

According to Guy Carola, fire investigator for Garrett and Allegany counties, Donald O'Brien reported that he went to the barn to feed the animals at about 9 a.m. He said he was in the barn for about 20 minutes and did not notice any sign of a problem.

About an hour after O'Brien had returned to the house, he looked outside and saw smoke coming from the barn. The O'Briens ran to the barn and discovered most of the fire in the upper level of the structure, which made it possible for them to get six or seven head of cattle out to safety. However, they told Carola that the fire spread so quickly, and the roof began to collapse, making it impossible for them to save the other animals or salvage any equipment.

The 65-by-70-foot structure was built in 1915 and a new section had been added in 1957. Besides the 45 to 50 head of beef cattle and several calves on the ground floor, the barn also housed a manure spreader, hay elevator, and various other equipment.

Carola reported that the cause of the fire appears to have been accidental in nature, possibly related to an electrical problem. He said the O'Briens had some insurance on the barn.

Firefighters remained on the scene until approximately 1 p.m. Also responding to the scene was the Southern Rescue Squad. There were no injuries reported.

A crew from the Oakland VFD was sent to standby in Deer Park's station, while Accident firemen stood by at their station to cover for Deep Creek.

A number of other fires were reported this past week in the county, however the majority were chimney fires which caused little or no damage.

Young Area Man Sentenced For Various Thefts

During Garrett County District Court and Circuit Court proceedings over the past two weeks, a young Oakland man was sentenced to a total of seven years and six months in the Department of Corrections for charges of breaking, entering, and stealing, theft, and destruction of property.

Edward W. Myers, 21, was charged following various thefts which occurred between August 26 and October 2.

Myers was sentenced to one year for the theft charge, six months for destruction of property, and three years for each of two counts of breaking, entering, and stealing.

In District Court, Myers was sentenced to three years for one theft charge, 18 months for each of two other counts of theft, and 60 days for each of two counts of malicious destruction of the property of another.

However, these sentences will run concurrently with those imposed in Circuit Court.

The charges were filed by Deputy Charles P. Nolan, Deputy P.J. Pratt, and Detective Richard Kutchman, all of the Garrett County Sheriff's Department, and Sgt. Roger Lewis of the Oakland City Police Department.

Theft victims included Bell Brothers Auto Sales, Tressler Garage, Fitzwater Garage, and Fred E. Beachy Lumber Company, all located near Oakland, and Robert Cannon, Silver Knob Road.

Myers was represented by John R. Toston, public defender.

Nearly $1,000 Collected In Reward Money For Recent Bear Killings

Widespread attention on the recent bear slaughters in Garrett County has been evidenced in phone calls and pledges from outraged people all over the state. Close to $1,000 has now been collected in the reward fund set up by The Republican Newspaper and endorsed by many local hunt clubs.

Besides receiving statewide news coverage, UPI also picked up the story last week and have been wiring it regionally.

The tragedy began early in January, when wildlife officials found a wounded black bear who died shortly after from multiple shotgun wounds. The sow was found to be carrying three fetuses. Two Westernport men were charged in the incident and each were imposed with a $250 fine for taking a non-game animal.

The following week, wildlife officials from Maryland and Pennsylvania were tracking a black bear that had been radio collared last spring. They were simply following her progress. What they found, to their shock and dismay, was the radio collar and a gut pile in the sow's rocky den. An examination of the remains uncovered four fetuses that would have been born within the week.

No arrests have been made in connection with the second bear killing, but officials said they are following up on several leads.

Wildlife officials from Mt. Nebo and this newspaper have been receiving phone calls from all over the state and surrounding areas. The callers are expressing their anger over the kills and want to know what they can do. "They can contribute to the reward fund and call their legislators to call for stiffer laws to protect the bears," said one wildlife official.

The bears were both shot at point blank range in their dens. It has been determined that five of the seven fetuses were female.

Local wildlife biologist, Al Bourgeois, said last week, "What we have here are nine dead bears. This will set the black bear population back at least three years."

At the present time, it is undetermined what amount will be given in the reward offered by The Republican, but it will be at least $200. A spokesman from the paper said, "Additional monies will be available for future cases of unlawful bear killings, if the need arises."

It has been decided to keep the fund in a special account for that purpose.

Local state legislators, Senator John Bambacus and Delegate George Edwards, who both expressed their concern over the bear killings, announced this week that they are introducing legislation which will impose stiffer penalties for those taking non-game animals.

The present law states that a fine of up to $500 and three months in jail may be imposed on a person charged and found guilty of killing a non-game animal.

Edwards and Bambacus are proposing a fine of up to $5,000, up to six months in jail and a loss of a hunting license for up

Nearly 9,000 Calls Handled By Emergency Office

The Garrett County Office of Emergency Management handled 8,955 calls for assistance during 1985, according to statistics released recently by J. Bradley Frantz, director.

Of that total, 5,673 were classified as emergency calls and 2,926 as non-emergency calls. There were 2,056 calls for assistance from local rescue squads, 1,404 calls for fire departments, 899 calls for the sheriff's office, and 829 calls for the Maryland State Police. A total of 3,219 of the calls for assistance came via the 911 emergency telephone number.

The Southern Rescue Squad was summoned 1,173 times through the office, while the Grantsville station and Accident stations of the Northern Rescue Squad handled 422 and 316 calls, respectively.

There were also 248 calls for assistance from Garrett County Memorial Hospital, 121 for the Garrett County Roads Department, 105 for the Oakland City Police, and 93 for the Department of Natural Resources. Assistance from over 60 other agencies, organizations, businesses, and individuals were handled by the Office of Emergency Management, Frantz reported.

Of the volunteer fire departments served by the office, the Oakland VFD was summoned 341 times, followed by Deer Park, 227; Grantsville, 144; Deep Creek, 123; Elk Garden, 111; Gorman, 108; Friendsville, 77; Accident, 60; Kitzmiller, 53; Bittinger, 42; Bloomington, 36; Bayard, 34; Eastern Garrett, 26; Mt. Storm, 17; and Terra Alta, five.

Frantz reminds citizens to utilize the 911 telephone number in the event of an emergency and to supply as much information as possible to the dispatcher about the situation, including name of the caller, telephone number, and a specific address or location.

Friend Found Guilty Tuesday In Federal Court

The U.S. Attorney's office in Pittsburgh, Pa., announced that on Tuesday a federal jury convicted Blaine Joseph Friend of Accident of conspiracy and aiding and abetting the commission of violations of the Federal Meat Inspection Act.

Friend, age 42, was convicted of being a member of a conspiracy which included Hughey P. Weyandt III, former owner of Weyandt and Sons' Wholesale Meats of Claysburg, Pa., and Jerome Davis, owner of Jerry Davis Packing Company in Dysart, Pa.

According to Assistant U.S. Attorney Sandra D. Jordan, who prosecuted the case, Friend is the owner of Friends Stockyard, Inc. in Accident and Pennsylvania Livestock in Waynesburg, Pa.

Both Weyandt and Davis were convicted in 1983 of conspiracy and violating the Federal Meat Inspection Act by slaughtering cancer-eyed sick cattle and illegally marking the carcasses as "U.S. Inspected and Passed" from 1980 through November 1982.

Friend was the supplier of the sick cattle which were transported by him from O & S Cattle Company in South St. Paul, Minn. through his farm in Accident to the Weyandt farm in Pennsylvania.

After the illegal slaughter and stamping, carcasses were transported to Hillcrest Packing in Philadelphia, Pa.

He was also convicted of aiding and abetting Weyandt and Davis in the commission of six additional violations of the agriculture laws in October and November of 1982.

Federal Judge Bloch raised Friend's bond from $25,000 to $100,000 and warned him not to contact any of the witnesses who testified. Friend will be sentenced on March 14 at 9:45 a.m. He faces imprisonment of up to 23 years and $70,000 in fines.

Western Maryland Could Be Hard Hit If Congress Approves Conrail Sale

The proposed sale of Conrail (Consolidated Rail Corporation) to Norfolk Southern Corporation by the federal government could spell doom for both the coal industry and the rail industry in Western Maryland. Area coal producers are dependent on the Chessie rail system to move coal from Garrett and Allegany counties to Baltimore and Washington, D.C.

Only three major railroads remain in the East, Conrail, Norfolk Southern and CSX Corporation. CSX Corp. is a Richmond, Va., holding company that owns the Chessie system. Chessie officials have complained that the sale of Conrail would put them at a disadvantage because they would then be competing with a merger of Conrail and Norfolk Southern which would be a much larger rail system, and have threatened to abandon or sell its Baltimore & Ohio lines if the sale goes through.

A bill considering the Conrail sale is on the floor of the U.S. Senate this week, and one of those present for the hearing is Alfred E. Whitehouse, an environmental engineer for Buffalo Coal Company. Whitehouse feels that if the Senate approves the U.S. Department of Transportation's plan to sell Conrail to Norfolk Southern, Buffalo Coal could be hit hard. The company, he explained, is dependent on railroads to move its product at an affordable price, and could wind up paying higher rail rates than competitors using other railroads, or could wind up having no rail line to use at all.

Norfolk Southern claims to have a Senate majority if a filibuster planned by Senator Howard M. Metzenbaum (D-Ohio) could be broken, but a number of senators in states served by Conrail oppose the sale. Conrail's management and labor unions representing Conrail workers also are opposed. According to the office of Senator Paul S. Sarbanes (D-Maryland), the administration is making a strong push to get a Senate vote on the bill completed. Tuesday and Wednesday the bill went through an amendment process, and today a petition is expected to be filled which would limit Metzenbaum's filibuster and call for a vote.

Senators Sarbanes and Charles McC. Mathias Jr. (R-Maryland) say their offices have received a large number of letters and calls claiming that the Conrail sale would hurt the port of Baltimore, eliminate rail competition and throw 5,000 Maryland railroad workers out of work. Sen. Sarbanes strongly opposes the sale to Norfolk Southern, and would like to study the details of an alternate proposal—the sale of Conrail to Morgan Stanley & Company, Inc., a New York investment banking house that has submitted a competing $1.2 billion offer to buy the federally-owned rail system.

Morgan Stanley has organized a consortium of some 35 investors who would buy interests in Conrail and then sell them in public stock sales, allowing Conrail to remain independent.

One aide to Sen. Mathias said that the senator is "not going to show his hand yet." He is reported, though, as having "serious concerns" about the antitrust aspects of the sale and the possible impact on the port of Baltimore.

Transportation Secretary Elizabeth Hanford Dole recommended to Congress last year that the federal government sell

Former College Instructor Sues For Restitution

Hugh B. Trimble, a former Garrett Community College instructor, will be seeking $1,620.86 in restitution from the GCC Board of Trustees in a suit filed in Garrett County District Court.

The case, which was filed on November 29 by Trimble's attorney Linda S. Sherbin, will be heard on February 3.

Trimble resigned his position at GCC in April stating it was effective June 30, which is the normal end of a contract period.

A source at the college alleges Trimble vacated his office in late May to take another job in Frederick with the Department of Natural Resources and did not return to his office. College officials contend that Trimble vacated his office leading them to believe that he felt his contract was over in May.

Trimble alleges that he left after graduation, final grades and other obligations were completed. He also alleges that he was told his obligations to GCC were finished, since the semester had ended at the time he left.

The complaint stated," . . . that the parties hereto entered into a contract for employment and although the plaintiff fulfilled his obligations under said contract, the defendant failed and refuses to pay the balance due of the salary and failed to maintain hospitalization insurance during the term of the contract."

District Court records indicate that Suzanne X. Conger will represent GCC through the law firm of Burnett, Eiswert and Janes.

Commissioners In Annapolis To Attend MACo Legislative Meeting

Garrett County Commissioners Elwood Groves II and John G. Braskey are in Annapolis to attend a Maryland Association of Counties (MACo) legislative meeting and to meet with state officials to discuss various county concerns.

While in the state capital, the commissioners are planning to talk with Fred Eskew, assistant secretary of Capital Programs; Donald E. McLaughlan, director of the Maryland Forest, Park and Wildlife Service; and David L. Hathway, chief of operations for FPWS, to discuss off-road vehicle and snowmobile trail proposals.

The commissioners will also be requesting funding for the 1989 World Whitewater Championships to be held at Savage River. Also attending from Garrett County for those meetings are Tom Jones, director of Garrett County Economic Development, and John Nelson, Garrett County Planning and Zoning administrator.

The commissioners, along with Jones, are also meeting with Tony Abar, director of the Bureau of Mines for the state and Paul Massicot, administrator of the Maryland Energy Administration, regarding the marketing of coal in Garrett County and technological assistance concerning coal mining operations.

That meeting came about as a result of a letter to the Department of Economic Development from Commissioner Braskey in late October.

The county officials are also planning to meet with local legislators in Annapolis, Senator John Bambacus and Delegate George Edwards, to discuss legislative matters concerning the county including action on the slaughter of bears in Garrett County.

Bambacus and Edwards both announced this week that they are introducing legislation that would call for stiffer penalties for those taking black bear out of season.

Airman Magazine Features Thomas

The late Norman Thomas, who was born in Friendsville and was one of the 58,022 Americans who died or were declared missing in action in the Vietnam War, was featured in an article in the December issue of Airman magazine, the official magazine of the U.S. Air Force.

The son of Mr. and Mrs. Hobart Thomas, he was killed in South Vietnam November 17, 1969.

The article features several pictures of Friendsville, and interviews with various members of Thomas' family and friends.

Copies of the magazine have been placed in local libraries.

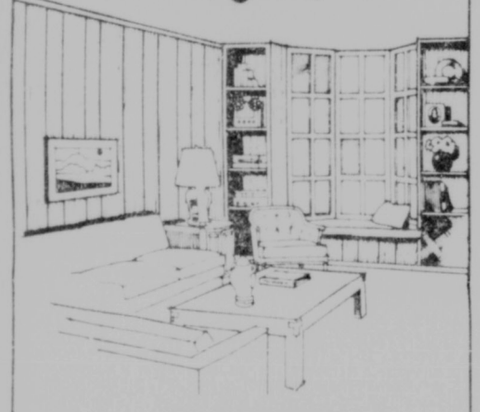
DAFFODIL DAY — The Garrett County Commissioners have proclaimed March 13 as Daffodil Day and urge all residents to join with volunteers of the Garrett County Unit of the American Cancer Society to support this occasion by purchasing and wearing a daffodil—the flower of hope. The American Cancer Society has sponsored innumerable vital cancer research projects, public education and patient service programs, but there is a great need for additional funds for cancer research. Pictured above presenting daffodils to the commissioners are, left to right: Patsy Stewart, crusade chairperson; Alana Winters and Pauline Parrack, co-presidents of the Garrett County Unit of the American Cancer Society. The commissioners, seated left to right, are Ernest J. Gregg, Elwood L. Groves II, and John G. Braskey. Daffodil orders can be placed until February 14 by calling Daffodil Day Chairperson Connie Margison at 334-9211.

House To Hear Briefing Today By State Superintendent Of Schools

State Superintendent of Schools David W. Hornbeck will brief the Maryland House of Delegates Constitutional and Administrative Law Committee this afternoon. Hornbeck's briefing will concern the Maryland writing proficiency test, which all high school students must pass in order to graduate. The scoring of this functional writing test has been surrounded by controversy, and the State Department of Education is asking for additional funds to pay an outside group of writing experts to analyze the scoring of these tests.

House Bill 86 will be heard today by the Environmental Matters Committee. Co-sponsored by Del. Anthony M. DiPietro Jr. (D-Baltimore City) and Del. Michael H. Weir (D-Baltimore Co.), the bill would allow a person to hunt deer with a handgun that has at least a six-inch barrel and uses ammunition with a muzzle velocity of 700 foot pounds or more during the firearms hunting season in hunting areas where a shotgun is allowed.

Being heard last week was a bill providing that if the United States Congress designates a day for the national observance of Memorial Day other than May 30, the day so designated by the U.S. Congress shall be observed as Memorial Day, a legal holiday, in Maryland.



Wednesday, a bill introduced by Del. Larry Young (D-Baltimore City) chairman of the Environmental Matters Committee, permitting the DNR to order a strip mine operator to replace affected water supplies where the department determines that contamination, interruption, or diminution of the water supply resulted from the operator's open-pit mining operation. The bill would authorize the expenditure of money from the Bituminous Coal Open-Pit Mining Reclamation Fund to replace an affected water supply if the operator fails to comply with the department's order, and provide for fund reimbursement. The bill was heard by the Environmental Matters Committee.

A related strip mining bill will be heard by the same committee next Wednesday, involving offsite damage. House Bill 452 would require an open-pit mining operator to be responsible for damage to offsite areas, including any unimproved or improved real property and any waters located outside the mining permit area when the damage results from the operator's open-pit mining. The bill would authorize the DNR to order the operator to restore such a damaged offsite area.

West Virginia Man Sentenced, Fined In Circuit Court

A Gormania, W.Va. man was sentenced to 60 days in the Garrett County Jail and fined $500 in Garrett County Circuit Court proceedings last week after a jury under Chief Judge Fred A. Thayer found him to be guilty of a charge of driving with a revoked license.

Henry O. Martin Jr., 57, pled guilty to the charge, and also to a charge of driving while under the influence of alcohol. However, there was not enough evidence to support the second charge, so it was dismissed.

The charge was filed by Tfc. R.J. Resh of the Maryland State Police at the McHenry detachment following a May 20 incident.

A pre-sentence investigation was ordered for Brian S. Lewis, 19, Mtn. Lake Park, after Judge Thayer found him to be guilty of two counts of distribution of marijuana.

Lewis' bail was then revoked, and bond was set at $1,000.

Lewis pled guilty to the charges, which were filed by Sgt. C.H. Hinnant following a February 4, 1985 incident at the Par-Matt Bowling Alley, Mtn. Lake Park.

Another count of distribution of marijuana, three counts of possession of marijuana, and a charge of conspiracy were not prosecuted by the court.

Lewis was represented by Michael R. Morrissette, Oakland.

A pre-sentence investigation was also ordered for Michael G. Casteel, 27, Friendsville, after a jury under Judge Thayer found him to be guilty of resisting arrest.

The charge was filed by First Sgt. Howard W. Graham after a July 9 incident near Friendsville.

White Face Farm Timber Sales To Benefit Hospital

The Board of Garrett County Commissioners met Tuesday morning with members of the Garrett County Memorial Hospital Board of Governor members who comprise the White Face Farm Committee.

The commissioners act as trustees for that committee. The White Face Farm is a piece of land donated to the hospital and held in trust by the county commissioners.

The land is located near the Garrett County Airport and entails some 400 acres.

At Tuesday's meeting it was decided to place bids into effect for cutting timber on the land. The timber would then be sold, benefiting the local hospital.

In past years, the hospital sold some of the land for what are now the Garrett County Airport and the McHenry Recreational Park. The park is sponsored by the Deep Creek Lake Lions Club.

Until recently, the land was leased by Dr. Frank Custer for the purpose of growing Christmas trees. The land has also been used for nature courses by Garrett Community College.

The committee is continuing to look at ways of utilizing the land, according to Commissioner Ernest Gregg Jr.

The woodlands to be cut will be assessed and marked by the Department of Natural Resources.

Also Tuesday, the commissioners met with various agency heads to discuss such matters as asbestos removal at Northern High School, the remaining sewerage taps at Deep Creek Lake and how they will be allocated, and the inclusion of the Cherry Glade Sanitary District (Mitchell Manor) in the proposed Oakland facility.

Problem Areas Of S&Ls Addressed By Sen. Bambacus

In response to recent abuses in the Maryland savings and loan industry, District I Senator John N. Bambacus (R-Allegany, Garrett) has co-sponsored legislation aimed at increasing state regulatory control of that industry.

Stating that "the gross regulatory abuses in the state's savings and loan industry must never be repeated . . .," Senator Bambacus has introduced bills designed to eliminate two problem areas in the current law, the employment of officials of the State Division of Savings and Loans by private S&L's, and the transfer of depositors' funds from savings institutions to privately held subsidiaries of those institutions.

Bambacus noted that "the subsequent employment of division officials by private institutions represented a blatant conflict of interest and resulted in limiting the state's ability to regulate the industry." Senate Bill 170 would prohibit any division official from being employed by a savings and loan within two years of working for the division.

Senate Bill 171 prohibits a S&L from transferring funds from the depository institution to a subsidiary of that institution without division approval. The District I Senator explained that "the siphoning off of depositors' money into privately held companies was a common practice among several of the troubled institutions."

The Senator has also expressed strong concerns about the bail-out plans endorsed by Governor Harry Hughes. Bambacus said that "he has opposed from the beginning any plan that would use taxpayer money to repay the depositors of these savings and loans," adding that "to subsidize theft and fraud by raiding the transportation trust fund of 100 million dollars is very nearly theft itself."

Cushwa Proposes PSC Members Be More Qualifed

Tom Chalkley, a spokesman for the Maryland Citizen Action Coalition (a consumer advocate group) urged a legislative panel recently to approve a bill that would establish specific qualifications for members of the state Public Service Commission.

The group supports legislation proposed by Senator Victor Cushwa (D-Wash.) that would require the PSC to have at least one lawyer and three other members with expertise in designated areas.

Those areas include economics, accounting, engineering, natural resources, finance and consumer affairs.

Currently, the governor can appoint anyone he wants to the PSC. In its present form, Cushwa's measure would make it mandatory for all PSC members to have at least a bachelor's degree.

Representatives of several public utilities, including Chesapeake & Potomac Telephone Co. and Potomac Electric Power Co., testified against the bill, saying that the PSC was functioning fine in its current form.

The PSC has the power to approve, amend or reject the rate hike requests of Maryland utilities. Cushwa said 13 states have already established experience requirements for the people serving on their public service commissions.

Sheriff's Office Notes Incidents

The Garrett County Sheriff's Department this week reported a breaking and entering theft which occurred sometime between January 4 and January 21 in Kitzmiller.

According to reports, someone used an unknown tool to pry open the rear door of the residence of Charles W. Dawson Jr. Once inside, the culprits ransacked the residence, causing total damages of $150.

Dawson reported that a collection of Avon cologne and after-shave in glass cars and approximately $60 to $75 in change and bills were stolen. Total losses from the theft reached $375.

Two front tires and their rims were reportedly stolen from a vehicle near Shallmar sometime last weekend.

According to the sheriff's department, the tires were removed from a 1978 Dodge Omni belonging to Dora L. Chapman.

Total losses reached $100.

A theft occurred Sunday at Browning's Used Car Lot, Deer Park.

According to reports filed by the department, two unknown subjects used a rubber hose to siphon gasoline from a school bus belonging to Charles M. Browning, Deer Park.

Browning reported that 25 gallons of gasoline were removed from the bus, and that 40 gallons had been siphoned out the night before.

Senate Committee Hears Hunting, Trapping And Boating Safety Bills

The Senate Economic and Environmental Affairs Committee previewed several bills last week, one of which was passed out of committee, the others were not voted on.

Being passed out of committee was SB 95, a fur harvester's license bill requiring a person who hunts or traps fur-bearing mammals to obtain a fur harvester's license. This bill specifies exemptions from the requirement, repeals a specified non-resident trapping license, exempts a fur harvester licensee from the fur dealer's license requirement, establishes a voluntary education program for fur harvesters, and generally deals with fur harvester's license applications and collection and use of license fees.

Bills not being voted on included SB 84, requiring the DNR to establish a separate early season to hunt deer with muzzleloading firearms. The bill would provide for the season, dates, scope and bag limit for the early muzzleloader season. It would prohibit a person from using special sights or mini/maxi-balls during the season, and prohibit a person from killing a buck during the regular or late season if that person killed a buck during the early season.

Two related boat safety bills (SB 60 & 61) were not voted on by the committee as of yet. These bills call for a person to pass a boating safety course and to carry and show on demand a certificate of boating safety education in order to operate a boat for pleasure on any state waters after July 1, 1987. SB 60 would establish penalties, authorize the DNR to issue certificates, and establish a boating safety education course and charge a fee for the certificate.

SB 61 would prohibit a person under the age of 16 from operating a vessel for pleasure on the waters of the state unless the person completes a boating safety education course approved by the DNR. It would require a person convicted of any boating violation in the operation of a vessel to complete an approved boating safety education course. The bill specifies that it does not apply to the operation of a vessel for commercial purposes. All of the above bills were introduced by Sen. Raymond E. Beck (R-Carroll).

Coming up next week will be hearings on a series of bills introduced by Senator John N. Bambacus establishing election requirements for municipal corporations. SB 321 requires county boards of supervisors of elections to provide lists of registered voters upon request by a municipal corporation. SB 322 would amend the model Municipal Corporation Charter to alter provisions relating to voter registration, qualifications for voting and the selection of polling places for municipal elections in municipal corporations. SB 323 establishes requirements for conducting elections by municipal corporations, requiring public notice of elections, a registration-by-mail program, the issuance of voter registration cards and the provision of barrier-free polling places. It would require the place for voter registration to be open at least twice a week, and require municipal corporations to adopt procedures allowing persons to challenge cancellations of their voter registrations.

Another bill to be heard by the Economic and Environmental Affairs Committee will be SB 4, providing that if the United States Congress designates a day for the national observance of Memorial Day other than May 30, the day so designated by the U.S. Congress shall be observed as Memorial Day, a legal holiday, in Maryland.

The Gramm-Rudman (Who?) Challenge—How Will Local Government Cope With Reducing The Deficit?

by Pam Ashby

What's all this talk about a Gramm-Rudman? And, furthermore, what is it? It seems one cannot pick up a metropolitan newspaper or a national magazine without being bombarded with Gramm-Rudman these days.

Actually, Gramm-Rudman-Hollings is the correct title, being named for three senators who introduced the legislation last year that will call for drastic budget cuts if the United States government doesn't realize a balanced budget by 1991.

Subtle cuts to the tune of $11.7 billion are expected this fiscal year with the Gramm-Rudman legislation signed into law by President Ronald Reagan in late December.

When the President signed the bill he said he expected it to be tested in the courts. Government sources are now saying that the President wants to keep it away from the Justice Department.

Most federal programs will feel the cuts including education grants, student loans, aid to states and civil service pensions.

Congress did not vote on the specific cuts, some of which have already occurred and others by March 1, 1986. An automatic spending cut mechanism in Gramm-Rudman will be responsible for the cuts.

Federal agencies, unprepared for the cuts after already establishing their budgets, are now forced to revise spending decisions made previously.

Although the predicted $11.7 billion cut is considered a small one, projections for FY 1987 are calling for $40-$50 million cuts across the board. In the meantime, the president is expected to issue an order February 1 to put into place the March 1 cuts.

Where Do We Stand?

The impact Gramm-Rudman will have on individual state budgets is still undetermined, but studies have concluded that Maryland could lose over $16 million in federal aid, or about eight-tenths of one percent of the state's total aid for FY 86.

So where does this leave Garrett County—the county that is many times overlooked by the rest of the state except of course, for its recreational facilities?

According to the Board of Garrett County Commissioners, whom I interviewed on federal and state cuts this week, the forgotten county is in pretty good shape financially due to careful spending and the county's foresight to realize that the cuts were coming, were expected, and were necessary to ensure a balanced budget and to wipe out the huge national deficit.

The Commissioners Speak

Commissioner Ernest Gregg Jr.: "We have to keep these cuts in perspective . . . there's an obvious negative impact due to the federal budget's deficit because it affects everyone is the United States. We frequently lose sight of the real problem which began over 20 years ago. Federal programs which were begun to aid those who really needed them were abused and now we have to ask, 'Whose ox is being gored?'

"Many people support the principle of Gramm-Rudman and then turn around and take pot shots at those cuts which affect us. Unnecessary spending put the national budget where it is today, and like it or not, we're all going to have to adjust and tighten our belts . . . there's no such thing as a free lunch. Someone is going to pay with an already dangerous deficit.

Commissioner Gregg: "We frequently lose sight of the problem which began over 20 years ago. . . now we have to deal with it."

"We're fortunate in Garrett County. We never included revenue sharing in our operating budget . . . it was always used for extras, such as roads projects, board of education capital projects and other capital projects throughout the county. The record shows that we can cut the budget . . . unnecessary spending . . . and still reduce the county tax rate while continuing to provide excellent services to the taxpayer . . . it's cutting out the waste.

"Through various state funding formulas, several county agencies will be affected . . . it seems as though the 1980 census figures were exaggerated and then someone found the mistake and the necessity to take corrective measures, i.e. revising the census figures. So the county is caught in the middle. Do we cut back on those agencies affected by state funding formulas (board of education, library, sheriff's department and health department) or do we make it up with county revenue?

"Ideally, it has to be the goal of the county commissioners to exert downward pressure on the taxpayer and still maintain the expected level of service . . . it's easy to say, but hard to do. It's the onus of the board to effect creative types of financing to provide an adequate level of those services.

"Finally, I'd like to comment on an illusive goal the entire board has faced. We have not, to our satisfaction, created full employment for all the citizens of Garrett County . . . not due to a lack of effort. It's something that is on our minds every day. We are continually seeking possibilities to enhance the employment situation and this ties in with the federal deficit budget. If the economic climate was enhanced nationwide, we would all benefit from low interest rates, lower inflation and businesses with enough money to purchase new equipment increasing production and employment. These things all go hand in hand."

Commissioner John G. Braskey: "The issue of the funding formulas based on the revisions of the Center for Health Statistics will be raised by the Maryland Association of Counties to determine where that state agency got its figures. Hopefully it's not the final census and hopefully those figures will change. A total of 18 counties are affected by the new forumla and officials from those counties feel it is not a closed issue.

"As far as federal revenue sharing goes . . . how can the government share something they don't have? Fortunately, we have never counted on that money for an operating budget. The major portion of it has gone to capital projects. It's now our responsibility to meet the challenge of funding such projects through other sources. I feel that federal revenue sharing will soon be history and we are simply going to have to deal with it.

Commissioner Braskey: "How can the government share something they don't have. . . fortunately, we've never counted on that money for our operating budget."

" I've heard a lot about this Gramm-Rudman thing. Here again, the basic cuts are not quite clear yet. People have to realize that government cannot carry the weight of all these programs . . . everyone agrees we need a balanced budget . . . 'But don't cut my department', they say. Hopefully the private sector will get involved in some of the programs that need to be cut. We simply cannot spend, spend, spend . . . there has to be a stopping point somewhere.

"In regard to Gramm-Rudman, MACo has asked the state to study that piece of legislation to determine what impact it will have on each county. I can't comment further until I take a real close look at the Gramm-Rudman Act and what it will do to us.

"Basically, we are the fiscal officers of Garrett County and it's up to us to see where the money is needed and where people want it to go for each budget year. The next term of county commissioners will be a real challenge, but I feel we can keep the tax rate under control . . . perhaps even a lower tax rate than last year.

"It has been critical for us (commissioners) to look ahead to federal cuts. That's the reason why this county has a surplus. We've been preparing for the cuts. Fortunately, we're in very good fiscal condition and we're ready to address the issues."

Elwood Groves II: "Unfortunately, the Center for Health Statistics' revision of the population formula revised Garrett County's projected population, along with 17 other counties, in a downward direction . . . quite frankly, this is the first time I've ever heard of such a process. Who will substantiate the reasoning behind such a decision? All the counties involved in the downward revision were simply sent a short letter saying essentially, 'You've lost a few thousand people . . . amend your funding mechanisms'. Easier said than done. At the present time, MACo and the Western Maryland Association of Counties are demanding from the Census Bureau a rationale behind that decision. We also intend to discuss it with Rep. Beverly Byron next week since it is a national issue.

Commissoner Groves: "When it's your budget being cut, it does seem like a nightmare. . . the real nightmare, though, is the huge deficit."

"On a more positive note, tentative figures show that Garrett County will be taking a 5% cut in federal revenue monies this year, as opposed to a predicted 13.6% cut. We'll simply have to absorb the cost this year. Since we have, in the past, used those funds solely for capital improvements, we can at least see what we have to show for the money spent.

"Everybody these days has a great deal of anxiety over Gramm-Rudman. When it's your budget being cut it does seem like a nightmare, but actually as I see it, the real nightmare is the runaway federal deficit. Although I am not yet familiar with the details of Gramm-Rudman, I do give a nod of agreement toward the intent of that legislation . . . we must control spending to ensure a balanced budget and simply ease out of programs that are forced to fall by the wayside or find alternative ways of funding them.

"I realize these federal cuts will have negative ramifications, but at this point I'm taking the 'wait and see' approach. At least Gramm-Rudman is a solid attempt to balance the federal budget and it takes a gradual approach to what will stay and what will go.

"As far as county government is concerned, the financial situation is solid at this point. Maintaining basic services of government are always our priority. We do the best we can with the least amount of money. We won't have a definite plan of action, though, until we see how much federal aid will be cut."

Legislators Comment

Delegate George Edwards: "State legislators are now looking at the budget and are asking state departments to work with these cuts in mind. They have to set their priorities and decide on whether or not to institute new programs or continue what they have.

"There needs to be a balanced budget and that means either raising taxes or cutting programs . . . and it will eventually filter down to the local governments and they are going to have to make some tough decisions. It's going to be a period of tightness to get by, but in the long run it can be very beneficial to the economy. When the economy is good, businesses are in a better position to move things ahead . . . interest rates drop and inflation decreases.

"The state is in pretty good shape now . . . hopefully we can absorb these cuts without going to the taxpayer, assuming the economy keeps going the way it has been."

Senator John Bambacus. Attempts to contact the Senator for comments regarding federal cuts were unsuccessful as he was in committee at the General Assembly when phone calls were placed.

Wait And See

It appears that the only certainty is that there will be across the board cuts for every state in the union, either by their choice or when Gramm-Rudman kicks in. The uncertainty lies in the amount of the cuts and which programs will go first.

There seem to be no easy answers. As one government official put it, "We have to assume the responsibility of the cuts. It took over 20 years of frivolous spending to realize this huge deficit and if we don't correct it in the next 20, our children are the ones who will really have to pay."

Contracts Are Awarded For New Sewer Projects

The Garrett County Sanitary Commission has awarded contracts for construction of both the Bloomington and Kitzmiller sewer systems.

The contract for the Kitzmiller system was awarded to Charles J. Merlo, Inc. of Mineral Point, Pa. The bid for the Kitzmiller project was $1,465,580.

The Bloomington contract was awarded to Alveraz Construction, Inc. of Clarksburg, W.Va. The amount of that bid was $1,681,048.

According to Sanitary District Administrator Wendell Beitzel, the notice to proceed will be given the two contractors as soon as all contract documents are in order.

The Shady Acres Sanitary District is now official, opening the way for sewer lines to be installed in the Shady Acres residential area, the Bausch & Lomb plant, the proposed Coca-Cola plant, and the new Southern Garrett Industrial Park site.

The Sanitary Commission has applied for and received EPA and state grants to put sewer lines in the area. This new district is expected to alleviate the moratorium problem in Mtn. Lake Park and Loch Lynn.

Estimated costs include $136,000 total cost with $30,000 the estimated local cost. The total user fee is expected to be $5,412 per year. Divided among the 23 users, the estimated annual fee per customer will be $235 per year. Beitzel commented that there are several lots in the area that could be developed, thus lowering the user fee per customer even more.

A public hearing will be held, possibly this coming fall, on cost estimates, with construction expected to begin in the spring of 1987.

Two Area Mishaps Result In Injuries

Maryland State Police at McHenry this week reported two vehicle accidents which resulted in minor injuries.

Regina C. Webster, 34, Hyattsville, was treated and released from Memorial Hospital, Cumberland, following a single vehicle accident Sunday around 4 p.m.

Webster was a passenger in a 1976 Ford Elite operated by Carol L. Cunningham, 23, Baltimore. Police said the vehicle was traveling east on Route 48, just east of Route 219, when the windshield became obstructed by water and salt.

Cunningham lost control of the vehicle, which then crossed the roadway, ran off the right shoulder, struck an embankment and overturned, coming to rest on its top.

Tfc. R. M. Hershberger investigated the mishap, charging Cunningham with crossing the center line.

A two-vehicle accident Sunday on the Underwood Road sent a passenger, Phebe Neary, 8, Oakland, to Garrett County Memorial Hospital, where she was treated and released.

Police said the accident occurred around 5:20 a.m. when Zelma M. Neary, 40, Oakland, was southbound on the Underwood Road in a 1984 Ford Escort. Donald D. DeWitt, 16, Oakland, attempted to turn left onto the Underwood Road in a 1972 Chevrolet C-10. Police said he pulled directly into the path of Neary's vehicle.

Tfc. L. Rosage investigated the incident, charging DeWitt with failure to yield the right-of-way.

Sincere Thanks . . .

Joan and John Nolan want to give thanks and praise to the people of Garrett County. Two weeks ago we had an accident on Glendale Bridge Rd. Mrs. Paul Friend opened her house to us, the rescue squad was prompt and efficient, state and local police did a splendid job. Everyone even helped take care of our puppy.

Thanks to the doctors and nurses at Garrett County Hospital, we're in good shape and will be heading back to our favorite spot on the lake very soon.

Thanks again,
Joan and John Nolan

PRE PLANNING MAKES SENSE

It would not be amiss for persons during their lifetime to decide what they consider a dignified and meaningful funeral. This phrase has different meanings for different people, almost as wide a range as individual life-styles. A funeral home should make every effort, within reason and propriety, to accommodate these wishes.

Funeral costs should likewise be considered. It is helpful if the survivor understands how funeral charges in the community are computed. This could be investigated during the lifetime of a married couple. In that way, the survivor will be saved the task of making a judgment with respect to these matters at the height of his or her bereavement.

Such costs, as well as the cost of burial or cremation—and usually the cost for arranging for perpetual care of the plot—are considered proper estate expenses and should be billed to the estate.

We All Died A Little . . .

The shock wave that rolled across our nation Tuesday just before noon was of a magnitude rarely, if ever, experienced. Each of us seemed to die just a little bit as the space shuttle Challenger burst into flames before our eyes, the same moment that seven of our most respected citizens disappeared from the face of the earth.

Much has already been said or written about the experience in the two long, depressing days since the accident, but we would feel remiss if we too did not dedicate this column to the lives of these American heroes: Christa McAuliffe, Judith Resnik, Dick Scobee, Michael Smith, Ronald McNair, Ellison Onizuka, and Gregory Jarvis.

This writer has attempted to pinpoint why this particular incident has made such an impression among our own people and those of the rest of the world. It certainly is not the first time that persons have given their lives for a cause. We think of the dozens of test pilots, for example, who died in similar fashion, and yet their deaths did not affect us in the same way. Indeed, most of us cannot even name one of them. Even the death of some 240 U.S. Marines in Lebanon last year did not have the same impact.

Why?

Possibly it is because these seven people were of such a high calibre as members of the human race. They were among the brightest, bravest, most highly educated people in the world. More importantly, for most of us, all seven of them fit that idealistic mold from which All-American heroes are formed. Astronauts have always been considered heroes by most standards, so it was as if seven John Waynes, or seven Abraham Lincolns, or seven Will Rogers all perished simultaneously.

The fact that it happened right before the very eyes of the world on national television, and right in front of the astronauts' families and closest friends, also seemed to make the tragedy somewhat unique. We immediately shared the anguish of those near and dear to the victims.

Perhaps the key to this unusual emotional reaction is a far more subtle one, which may have a lot to do with Christa McAuliffe's presence on board the shuttle. For the first time, an "ordinary" citizen, with no background as an astronaut, or even in flying, was a member of a space shuttle crew. It could be that we all unconsciously identified with Christa, realizing that we who are not hero astronauts somehow might have been on that shuttle. Her presence on the space crew opened, for the first time, a door to the rest of us "ordinary" people. But she died, and our unconscious identification with her made each of us feel the sting of that death in an unusual, personal way.

We know of a number of Garrett County teachers who applied for Christa's seat on the shuttle. For them, the feeling was even more eerie, because each of them experienced the vivid realization that it truly could have been him or her on that ship, rather than Christa.

A survey was taken, the results of which were announced this morning, showing that four out of five Americans believe that the space program should continue, despite this tragedy. Seven out of ten believe that future shuttles should still be manned.

We are pleased that the majority feels this way. We know that the crew of the ill-fated Challenger would want the program to continue. In fact, if it were to stop because of this accident, then their deaths would be in vain.

We have come too far and we have gained too much, more than many people realize, because of the space program. The technological advances that have come about via the space program are almost inestimable. We did not stop flying airplanes after the first fatal crash. We do not stop walking after our first fall. We owe it to ourselves, future generations, and, right now, especially to Christa, Judy, Dick, Mike, Ron, Ellison, and Greg, to pick up the pieces, identify the cause of this accident, and proceed.

As a closing thought, as we ponder the whereabouts of these seven Americans, we take comfort in the poet's words used this week by President Reagan who said that these seven "slipped the surly bonds of earth to touch the face of God." May we all meet again one day.

Letters to the Editor

Editor's note: The following is a letter to the students of Christa McAuliffe at Concord, N.H., Elementary School. Mrs. McAuliffe is the teacher who died in the explosion of the space shuttle Challenger on Tuesday.

Dear Students,

At first I was going to write to the families of the seven lost astronauts, but then I realized I would be one of millions who would share their grief. I then thought of you, Christa McAuliffe's students.

As I was walking in the snow today, pondering the meaning of life, I was brought back to a day when I was a student feeling the loss of a leader. This was, of course, the death of John F. Kennedy in 1963. Christa McAuliffe was just that, a leader and a teacher.

She was going to teach two lessons from space. Today she taught one big one. She showed us that education has its sacrifices. Today she gave the supreme sacrifice. You, her students, feel the loss the most, but at the same time you were blessed with her first-hand knowledge. For me today, I learned a lesson from a teacher I never met.

My prayers will be with you and with the families of the seven brave people who gave their lives in search of this education. May God bless you.

Sincerely,
Charles P. Nolan

To the Editor:

As I watched in horror the explosion of the space shuttle Challenger on Tuesday, I saw the tragedy reflected in the faces of the college students around me. I was immediately aware of the impact this disaster would have on the young people of our country because of a teacher named Christa McAuliffe.

We saw the faces of her students in Concord, New Hampshire, high with excitement, then shocked with disbelief. That evening we heard many words from government officials and newscasters spoken to a grieving nation. President Reagan quoted from the beautiful poem "High Flight" as he sent messages of condolence to the families of the seven crew members; Tom Brokaw told them, "As we shared your pride, we now share your sorrow." John Glenn reminded us of human frailty, and Vice President Bush said, "You must try to understand that spirit, bravery and commitment have been part of America."

I remembered hearing Christa McAuliffe—exuberant at her selection from among the ten teacher finalists, saying, "When that shuttle goes, there might be one body, but there will be ten souls I'm taking with me." And it all began to come together. This teacher was one of us—and she was all of us—all of us who work to challenge young minds, to encourage students to try harder, to dare to explore. Christa McAuliffe dared. She accepted the greatest challenge of any teacher. Because of her spirit, bravery, and commitment, all of us in the teaching profession stand taller.

Now, when I think of her and the other crew members, those words I first read as a freshman at the University of Pittsburgh as I looked up above the wrought iron gates in the great Commons Room of the Cathedral of Learning have new meaning: "Here is eternal spring. For you the very stars of heaven are new."

To the Editor:

Thank you for accepting my contribution toward your reward fund for the capture and conviction of the murderer or murderers of "Tracy," the mother bear with the radio collar and her four unborn cubs. This was a terrible tragedy for all Marylanders. It was also great ammunition for all anti-gun groups.

Many true sportsmen pay thousands of dollars to go out West or Canada to hunt black bear legally at some personal risk and with no guarantee of getting a bear. The greatest tragedy of all is that Maryland's fine and penalty system allows some criminals to kill a female bear and her cubs while they are asleep at no personal risk and a maximum fine of $250. I, at least, hope in this case the $250 fine is applied to each of the killed cubs too.

The fine should be at least commensurate with the value of the bear, say $2,500-$5,000. There should also be a one-year mandatory minimum jail term. When our judges and lawmakers sit down to review fines and penalties, I hope they take action to correct this travesty of justice.

E. Marshall Stacy

Editor's note: Mr. Stacy, owner of Pinetum Christmas Trees, contributed $200 toward the reward fund.

To the Editor:

Please add my name to the list of outraged citizens over the slaughter of the mother bears. I, too, would like the guilty parties punished more severely than a small fine. I cannot believe what kind of human being would do such a horrible thing.

Any other way I can help the cause, please contact me.

Sincerely,
Sandy Luffy

To the Editor:

Re: the wanton slaughter of two female black bears in Garrett County, please accept our pledge of $75.00 toward the fund to help locate the killer/killers of the 10-year-old.

We are also writing our state representatives for harsh penalties. ($250 fines are ludicrous).

To the Editor:

I was appalled after reading the story about the two sow bears that were killed last week. This is the kind of news that makes a person sick.

It's sad to think that it takes something like this to happen before wildlife makes the front page. But perhaps the saddest part is that the accused got off with a lousy $250.00 fine each. Is this what society calls justice?

Perhaps if the fine were $5,000 (mandatory), the loss of all hunting privileges were taken for 10 years, and confiscation of firearms, these "hunters" would think twice about committing such a malicious act. It is, after all, these individuals that give hunting a dirty name.

Meanwhile, we Garrett Countians are out nine more bears, which makes this guy pretty mad. The black bear is one resource which the county has been trying to revive in the past several years, but with these kinds of no-excuse setbacks, it doesn't look too promising for the black bear population in Garrett County. I, for one, can fully appreciate the efforts made by Al Bourgeois toward helping the population rise, let along survive.

An act like this doesn't go by unnoticed in this county. Someone saw or heard something on this incident, but is probably afraid to "get involved."

My question is "why?" All it takes is a phone call to the proper authorities and you don't even have to give your name if that is your desire. You may even receive a reward if the culprits are caught.

I would urge all who are concerned of this matter to encourage and support the DNR in getting tougher laws for poaching, while also bringing those responsible to justice. Above all, don't be afraid to get involved and voice your opinion!

Jeff Bender

To the Editor:

I read an article in my paper today about two bears being killed in their dens, and I was furious at whoever would do such a horrible thing. I could hardly finish reading the article I was so outraged.

I didn't know who else to write to, so I picked your name, because I want somebody to know that others care about things like this.

Those people should be in jail, and be fined twice as much, but they should definitely go to jail! What is wrong with them? I can't believe they would seek out and destroy those animals while they were harmlessly sleeping. It's awful. Are these the hunting "macho men" we hear so much about these days? Well, let them sit in jail and just think about how brave and manly that act was.

I care about animals. I hope other people take the time to write or call and express their outrage. I wish I could help somehow.

To the Editor:

I am sickened and outraged to learn today of the unsportsmanlike shooting of two bears in hibernation by James Spiker and Dennis Chapman. I can't get over the fact that they were fined only $250.00 each. They should have been imprisoned!

Is there anyone I can write to or do anything further to get some legislation put through to deter these . . .?

Sincerely,

To the Editor:

And so seven baby bears never saw the light of day. I wonder if some people have not gotten their priorities mixed up.

How about the 1.6 million average per year human abortions in the U.S. alone, of innocent little boys and girls, loving, sweet, smiling, active little specimens of mankind who never saw light and do not even rate a burial except in the garbage dumps?

Where are the "grief stricken," "gutless," "cowardly" fathers and mothers, doctors, nurses, lawmakers, some women's organizations such as Planned Parenthood, ERA and NOW? Where are the news medias that should be exposing this murderous evil? Where are the fines and the penalties for murder? Where are the rewards (there surely will be rewards)? Where are the tears?

Folks, let's wake up and save our race, and try to yet avert a blood bath for slaughtering the innocent.

Well, bears do have more sense than to slaughter their own offspring. Perhaps they are to be pitied, too.

Our Turn

I'm Okay, So What?
by Pam Ashby

Remember those self-help books of the 1970's? Those volume after volume of sage advice from once-inflicted neurotics who were miraculously "cured" and decided to make a million bucks, all in the name of helping others?

I certainly remember them. As a matter of fact, I read most of them to try to improve myself. The titles (ficticious—that means I made them up) read something like this:

I'm Okay—You're Not—This was a piece of work that absolved us all of our neuroses no matter how weird they may have been. If you wanted to dress up like President Nixon and throw yourself in front of Woodward and Bernstein's moving automobile, hey, it was okay. You were reminded to work out your hostilities at nearly any cost. That was the healthy approach.

Let's Eat Correctly Or Die—This primer instructed us to eat things like unprocessed grain, blackstrap molasses and organically grown vegetables. Thanks to the wisdom of the author, millions of people are walking, flying or trotting around today either deathly afraid of scarecrows or training for the Kentucky Derby. Some of the more fortunate survivors are running health food restaurants in the Yukon or Siberia which specialize in shredded cardboard in a pond scum sauce.

The No-Carbohydrate, No-Sugar, No-Fat, No-Protein, No-Milk, No-Green, Leafy Vegetable Diet or How to Drop 100 Pounds By Next Tuesday Diet—This nifty little guidebook was definitely no fun and ultimately led to mass hysteria in Lane Bryant shops across the country. Already wispy creatures became obsessed with quickly attaining their birth weight. Where are the former believers of such fad diets today? Bertha Blubber is reaping the benefits of a hit Broadway play which she wrote and directed and still heads the lists of stars on the marquee. The play is entitled, "Fat, Flabby and Fabulous." Sally Sleak is the spokesman for Nutra-Lard, a product which guarantees instant weight gain for the chronically skinny. Little do consumers realize how hard she worked at achieving that sunken-cheeked pallor.

Our Erroneous Realm—This best-selling manual explained to us what was wrong with us and how we could turn those disgusting little negatives into successful positives that could work to our advantage. Obviously, most of us found that our biggest mistake was making other people rich by purchasing their self-help books. Subsequently, three-fourths of the literate population began writing their own self-help books virtually wiping out the market. I believe self-help books are officially now an endangered species.

Yes friends, you too can enjoy those old self-help books you still have gathering dust on the bookshelf. They're great for starting fires. And they make great gifts for grouchy bosses, nagging mothers-in-law or for the whiners who call up their friends twice a day to complain about their shortcomings. Don't despair if you don't have any old books. Give me a call and I'll gladly supply you with enough for everyone on your gift list.

Conrail Sale

its interest in Conrail to Norfolk Southern to get the government out of the railroad business.

The federal government took control of Conrail in 1975 by combining the bankrupt Penn Central and other ailing railroads in an effort to save the freight lines that serve the northeast section of the country. Stanley Crane, chairman and chief executive officer of Conrail, said the railroad expects a net income of $440 million for 1985, compared to the record $500 million it earned in 1984. Crane points out that the 1985 profits appeared slightly lower than 1984 figures because of sharply increased spending by the railroad, including the payment of higher, industry-scale wages for the full year, and the completion of a $572 million capital investment program.

Crane said that Conrail has been profitable every year since 1981, the last year it received direct federal financial assistance, and he feels that Conrail can continue to operate independently for the long term, and "that's in the best interest of the nation," he said.

Transportation Secretary Dole has continued to advocate the sale of Conrail to Norfolk Southern, saying that the sale would net an immediate return of $1.2 billion to the federal treasury on the day of closing. "By comparison," she said, "this $1.2 billion is equivalent to approximately 10 percent of what the government has to save in 1986 under the recent Gramm-Rudman deficit-reduction legislation taking effect March 1."

Whitehouse of Buffalo Coal says the company fears that because a combined Norfolk Southern and Conrail system would be so large and efficient the rates could be lower, causing coal mines in Pennsylvania, Kentucky and other areas served by Norfolk Southern to be able to ship into this area and sell cheaper than Buffalo, which cannot use Norfolk Southern. However, he said he does not think the company will be left without a railroad line, even if CSX decides to get rid of the Western Maryland line. "I think someone will buy it. Somehow, I don't think we'll be left high and dry, but I don't know that."

Balancing The Budget: A Time To Choose

by Charles McC. Mathias, Jr.

The Congress has returned to Capitol Hill after its New Year's recess, and must now confront the effects of the legislation it passed during the last few days of 1985: the Gramm-Rudman-Hollings amendment to the Budget Act, which is designed to reduce the federal deficit and balance the budget by 1991. Ironically, with all the smoke and fury of the debate over the Gramm-Rudman-Hollings measure, it was hardly noticed that the act itself enlarges the national debt limit to $2 trillion—a truly unimaginable jump from only $1 trillion five years ago.

The result of this enormous increase in debt is that the debt service has also increased, and so the interest we pay is a very large budget item. The growth in debt, and the increased burden of servicing it, have combined to give a new urgency to reducing the deficits of the federal government—the goal of Gramm-Rudman.

The Gramm-Rudman measure directs the Congress to reduce the 1986 budget by about $12 billion, or 4.3 percent of the budget which is subject to the law (roughly one-half of the total budget.) Next year we will have to reduce spending by a much larger amount, possibly by $50 billion, which would amount to cuts of up to 30 percent in the programs affected by Gramm-Rudman.

Although the Congress is concerned about this method of reduction of government expenditures because of the hardships it will bring, we are legally committed to it. The only issue left to decide is exactly how we can soften the blow and shift the load to get the greatest benefits and the least suffering from the cuts.

The President is now preparing his 1987 budget. He argues that he will be able to meet the deficit reduction guidelines set down in the Gramm-Rudman-Hollings legislation, and at the same time increase defense expenditures by three percent above the inflation and maintain cost-of-living increases in Social Security payments. The President insists that this increased spending, especially in the defense area, can be achieved without any new taxes.

This is a very tall order since any increase in defense spending will have to be financed by equal reductions in domestic spending. Moreover, the 30 percent reduction in overall spending required by Gramm-Rudman in 1987 will result in a 60 percent reduction on the domestic side if defense is exempted. We are all waiting with great interest to see what the federal budget will contain.

Congress is not exempt from these cuts. Congressional office budgets and committee budgets will be reduced. The number of staff on Capitol Hill undoubtedly will decline. So the effect will be felt on Capitol Hill first, or at least as soon as it is felt anywhere else in the country—and the Congress will be a kind of testing ground for how the law is working.

There is real determination, now that the Congress has passed Gramm-Rudman, to reduce the federal deficits. I hope it will be successful. I did not support the Gramm-Rudman-Hollings bill because I believe it is not proper for Congress to avoid the hard choices that budget restraint entails. But now that we are committed to this course, I think all of us must try to make it work so that we will reduce the deficit, contain the debt, and secure the future of the economy.

State's Workers' Comp. System Rated Expensive

Officials representing Maryland's government, labor and business interests has released jointly a study of the state's workers' compensation system which reveals that the cost of the system to the state's employers is about 10 percent higher than the national average.

Additionally, the study reveals there is no single cause for the higher rates, and that a multitude of problems need to be addressed over several years before Maryland's workers' compensation rates will come below, or approach parity with, the national average.

"The workers' compensation system cost Maryland employers approximately $490 million in 1983," Department of Economic and Community Development Secretary Thomas H. Maddux stated.

"If we can reduce those costs, yet maintain a just and fair compensation system, we will increase the competitiveness of companies already in Maryland and create a more attractive environment for continued growth," he added.

The study is the result of two years of research and analysis by DECD's Division of Research and represents the most comprehensive and detailed examination ever of Maryland's workers' compensation system. joining Maddux in the announcement were Ed Lamon, executive director of the Maryland State-D.C. AFL-CIO, and Peter Lombardi, executive director of the Maryland Chamber of Commerce.

Originally, data were to be collected on 60 occupational classifications from all 50 states. Imcompatible, incomplete and non-existent data reduced the study data base to 51 occupational classifications in 30 states. These 51 occupational classifications represent nearly 60 percent of the total payroll covered by private insurance carriers in Maryland.

Approximately 86 percent of Maryland's 2.2 million workforce is covered by the workers' compensation system. The study is based on data reported from 1978-1982, the most recent available.

The study analyzed three categories of claims: fatalities, total disability (permanent and temporary), and partial disability (permanent and temporary). It revealed that awards for permanent partial disability exacted an unusually high cost from the workers' compensation system.

"Although permanent partial claims represent only five percent of total claims, they represent over 54 percent of total losses in Maryland . . . In other words, the primary reasons for Maryland's high costs are the relatively higher frequency and average cost of PP (permanent partial) cases," the study stated.

Other points in the study include:

•Maryland's overall premiums, losses and costs are higher than the average.

•Premiums paid by Maryland's construction and contracting sector were significantly higher than the 30-state average.

•High-cost occupations in Maryland are concentrated in the construction and contracting sectors.

•Idemnity losses in Maryland were 27 percent higher than the 30-state average.

•Permanent partial claims in Maryland were 20 percent higher than the 30-state average, and losses were 30 percent over the average.

to two years for the first offender and a fine of up to $5,000, up to 12 months in jail and a loss of a hunting license for up to four years. This still allows a judge to set the fines and penalties if the case comes to court.

Currently, if the person charged with taking non-game does not contend the charge, he automatically pays a fine of up to $300. Many people have expressed a strong desire to have that part of the law changed also.

CALCIUM NEEDS CHANGE AS CHILDREN GROW OLDER

Most of us know that we need calcium throughout childhood and adolescence to help build strong bones and teeth. The National Dairy Board, however, reminds us that dietary calcium requirements vary at different age level. Teens require 50 percent more dietary calcium than children who, in turn, need much more calcium than infants.

Infants up to one year old need dietary calcium to help the changeover from firm cartilage to hardened bones. Within this first year of life, calcium requirements more than double. Dietary requirements vary from one infant to the next due to individual differences. Therefore, it is a good idea to check with a doctor or the health department about your baby's dietary needs.

Children ages one through 10 require 800 mg of calcium daily. This means a recommended three servings a day from the dairy group as part of a balanced diet. For example, 1½ ounces of cheese, a glass of milk and a cup of fruit yogurt will meet a child's recommended allowance (RDA) for calcium.

Due to increased bone growth (length) and development (strength), adolescents 11 to 18 years of age increase their calcium RDA to 1,200 mg a day. This can be met by eating four servings a day from the milk group such as three ounces of cheese and two glasses of milk.

Is osteoporosis a concern for young people? According to recent government studies, many young people do not get enough calcium daily. In fact, females over age 11 were reported as one group at greatest risk of calcium deficiency. Prolonged calcium deficiency may lead to osteoporosis (fragile, brittle bones) in later years. This disease has reached epidemic proportions in the United States, especially among women. Over 15 million Americans have some degree of it and as a result, there are an estimated 1.3 million fractures each year. Once a person develops osteroporosis, it is irreversible.

Consuming the RDA for calcium every day during childhood and the teen years promotes strong bones, which is the best deterrent for osteoporosis. Moderate weight bearing exercises such as walking, light jogging, bicycling, dancing and skating along with the avoidance of cigarette smoking, are also helpful in preventing this disease.

Dairy foods are the best and most abundant source of calcium in our food supply. Many products contain lactose and vitamin D which enhance calcium usage by the body. The wide variety of products, available in lowfat, skim and whole milk, make it easy for children and teens to meet their RDA for calcium the delicious and natural way.

The National Dairy Board has just published new pamphlets on Calcium for Children and on Calcium for Teens. If you are interested in receiving one or both of these pamphlets, which include recipes, call 334-2145 or stop by the Extension Office.

The following recipe was taken from one of those pamphlets. It serves four and has 318 mg of calcium per serving and 426 calories per serving.

1 package (4 ounces) shredded Cheddar cheese (1 cup), divided

Set aside ¼ cup Cheddar cheese for later use. Stir in remaining cheese. Pat meat mixture into a 8x4x2 inch loaf pan. Bake 45 minutes. Sprinkle with reserved cheese. Bake 5 minutes longer. Let stand 10 minutes before slicing.

"IF YOU LOOK CLOSE YOU CAN SEE MRS. WILSON" is the title of Bob Crowe's water color painting of Mike Perry and Barry Frazee. The 36x25-inch portrait of the two boys was painted from a photo taken when the Special Education Classes were at Camp Hickory. The painting with its unique background is on display at the Garrett County Board of Education. •Premiums collected in Maryland were, in some categories, far in excess of losses and loss-reserve requirements.

Included in the study was a list of recommendations of areas of possible changes for the workers' compensation system. The recommendations were made by an ad hoc committee comprised of representatives from government, labor and business. The areas of possible changes include:

•Encourage greater competition among the private-sector workers' compensation insurance carriers, including changes in the ratemaking system.

•Extend group self-insurance programs to private employers.

•Eliminate delays in benefit payments in certain categories.

•Centralize data-gathering and reporting under a single state agency to better provide policy-makers with accurate and comprehensive data.

In addition to the four recommendations of the ad hoc committee, the study's authors identified five more areas of possible change. The five additional areas are:

•Modify the size and scope of awards for permanent partial disabilities.

•Apply existing medical cost containment practices to the workers' compensation system.

•Use standardized medical guides to determine the degree of impairment.

•Review and revise statutory limits for attorneys' fees.

•Expand safety and awareness programs, and strictly enforce work-safety regulations.

Low-Interest Mortgage Money Now Available

Maryland Department of Economic and Community Development Secretary Thomas H. Maddux has announced that more than $9 million in low-interest mortgage money has been made available for qualified borrowers throughout the state, beginning January 27.

The 30-year fixed-rate mortgages are being offered through the state's Mortgage Purchase Program, which is financed with the proceeds of bonds sold by the Community Development Administration (CDA), a division of the Department of Economic and Community Development.

Borrowers should apply directly to the participating lending institutions. Homebuyers must have a signed sales contract on a qualifying home before they apply for a mortgage. CDA officials advise borrowers to make the sales contract contingent on receiving CDA financing. If they are turned down for the mortgage, they cannot be legally held to the contract.

Two interest rates have been established to make housing more affordable for people with limited incomes. Borrowers with annual incomes of $20,000 or less will pay 9.5 percent interest; those with incomes above $20,000, but less than the established program maximums, will pay 10.25 percent interest.

Under the Mortgage Purchase Program, an individual who earns $28,000 a year or less, and a household with two or more people earning $33,000 or less, may obtain a low-interest mortgage.

"Although mortgage interest rates have declined in recent months, CDA's rates continue to be extremely competitive," said Secretary Maddux. "We recommend that people apply for the mortgage money as soon as it becomes available, because CDA's funds are available for only a short period of time."

Borrowers must be first-time homebuyers, except in certain targeted areas, including Baltimore City, the City of Hagerstown, and Allegany, Caroline, Dorchester, Garrett, Kent and Somerset counties.

The maximum purchase price is $60,000, except in the targeted areas, where the maximum purchase price is $66,000.

Newly constructed or existing single-family residences, including townhouses, detached or semi-detached homes and condominiums, are eligible for financing. Modular homes qualify for financing if they carry the state seal of approval for code compliance.

Since it began in 1980, the Mortgage Purchase Program has provided more than 7,600 mortgage loans to Maryland residents, for a total of nearly $326 million.

For further information, persons may contact CDA's Single-Family Programs office toll-free at 1-800-638-7781.

Correction Noted In Court Case Story

In an article concerning Garrett County District Court cases in last week's paper, it was incorrectly reported that Carmella M. Kish, 36, Swanton, had forged Dr. Daniel Miller's signature to obtain a prescription for Talwin tablets from Revco Drugs. The article should have read that Kish handed the pharmacist a prescription for the drug, claiming Dr. Miller had written it earlier in the day. However, Miller had not authorized the prescription. Kish was found to be guilty of using an illegal prescription to buy a drug. We regret the error.

Potomac Edison Notes Change In Format On Bills

Potomac Edisons' residential customers in Maryland will notice a format change on their electric bills as the company complies with a Public Service Commission order to separate the Base Rate Charge into two component parts, a PE spokesman announced.

Effective immediately, a Customer Charge and an Energy Charge Rate will appear on customers' bills. These two charges previously combined to form the Base Charge, the spokesman said, but a recent Public Service Commission order mandated that the Base Charge be separated into the two elements. Separating these charges from the former Base Charge category does not affect the amount of the bill. The cost of electricity is also regulated by the Maryland Public Service Commission.

The Customer Charge covers fixed costs for meter reading, billing, and some distribution costs, whether or not a customer used electricity during the billing period.

The Energy Charge covers the cost of electricity a customer actually uses, the amount of kilowatthours used multiplied by the cost per kilowatthour.

Other items that appear on Maryland customers' bills include: Fuel Rate Charge, Maryland Plant Siting Tax Surcharge, and local tax surcharges where applicable.

Potomac Edison also serves customers in West Virginia and Virginia and bills for those customers may reflect different listings in compliance with Commission orders in those states.

On Dean's List

Carol S. McKenzie has been named to the Dean's List with a 3.81 average for the fall semester at Allegany Community College, Cumberland.

Miss McKenzie is majoring in secretarial science. She was graduated in 1985 from Northern High, fourth from the top of her class.

She is the daughter of Dolores and Harold McKenzie Jr. and the granddaughter of Arthur and Rosella Rounds, Grantsville, and Velma McKenzie, Frostburg.

Grimm To Chair Heart Fund Effort

Francis L. Grimm, vice president of the First United National Bank & Trust, has once again accepted the position of fundraising chairman for the Garrett County branch of the American Heart Association-Western Maryland Division, according to Wally S. Hijab component chairman.

Grimm will take responsibility for all fundraising programs in Garrett County for the 1986 Heart Campaign.

The American Heart Association is a major organization of more than two million volunteers, stated Grimm, dedicated solely to the reduction of early death and disability from heart disease, stroke and related disorders.

"We are planning many special events that everyone can enjoy, while at the same time helping to reduce the number one killer in Garrett County—heart disease", Grimm said.

The funds raised through these events help support professional and public education programs, national and state research, and the many other services that the Heart Association provides.

Grimm is a graduate of Fort Hill High School, Cumberland. He attended the Bank Management School of the University of Maryland and is a graduate of the University of Chicago. He has been an active Heart volunteer in Garrett County for the past five years.

Bowman of McHenry was one of the 19 first place winners and her submission, a Gilt and Crimson Circus Wagon Wheel, won her a $50 savings bond. She also has the personal satisfaction that the quilt she contributed to will be on display at many circuses this summer. Mary did a lot of research on the old time circus wagon wheels, which were works of art themselves, before she embarked on the actual designing and sewing. The quilter saw the advertisement in a local store and entered the contest last spring and received a certified letter this fall informing her that she was a winner. The Grand Prize in the contest was a $200 savings bond. The wagon wheel block is located in the quilt on the fourth row down, third block across.

Meeting Of Mtn. Lake Mayor And Council Covers Variety Of Topics

A recent meeting of the mayor and town council of Mtn. Lake Park saw the discussion of: the annex of Madison Street, an agreement with Columbia Gas, a Cablentertainment rate increase, and a letter from the district engineer of the State Highway Administration regarding traffic conditions in the town.

Madison Street Annex

Andrew Fike was present and discussed with the council the Gnegy Subdivision and Madison Street which he owns. He stated that Madison Street meets county roads specifications and he requested the town to accept the street into their system. He reported that several houses have been built on Madison Street and since it is a new subdivision it has come under the subdivision ordinance of Mtn. Lake Park.

Fike also presented a plot and a survey of 33 other lots he would like to annex into the town. He stated that he is aware of the sewer moratorium that the town is currently under.

Mayor Russell B. Alexander informed the council that Paul Shockey, Garrett County Roads Department administrator, had made an evaluation of Madison Street and it was determined that Andrew Fike had built the street in conformance to specifications for streets or roadways for inclusion into the county roads system.

A motion was made by Councilman George Welling to take Madison Street into the town road system, seconded by Councilman Dave Turney, and approved unanimously. A letter will be sent to Fike advising him that the town has accepted his donation of Madison Street.

Change Orders

Some change orders were also discussed regarding the town's construction and rehabilitation project. One of the change orders dealt with a price increase of $7,300 which represented time and material. Flow data for this project was discussed at length by the council.

County Sanitary Commission

The mayor read a letter from Senator John N. Bambacus and Delegate George C. Edwards regarding the Garrett County Sanitary Commission being brought under full control of the County Commissioners. Sen. Bambacus and Del. Edwards do agree that the Sanitary Commission should be under the control of the commissioners, but they stated that the commissioners should make the request to the delegation. In the past Mayor Alexander had requested that legislation be adopted to bring the Sanitary Commission under the full control of the county government, the main reason being that the commissioners are responsible for full faith and credit of all bonds on sewer and water projects in Garrett County. The mayor went on to say that few realize that the Sanitary Commission is not a part of the county government, and that the county government has little control over this corporation, but must make advances for feasibility studies, engineering and so on.

Building Permits Granted

Building permits for Bill Weissgerber to build a house on Pittsburgh Avenue, one for Andrew Fike to build on lot number 13 on Madison Street, and one for Donna Hershman to put a double-wide trailer on Allegheny Drive were approved by the council.

Cablentertainment

The Cablentertainment rate increase of five percent was discussed. According to the franchise agreement the town has with the cable company, the town has the right to approve all rate increases. This issue will be referred to town attorney Robert Watson.

Snow Removal

It was brought to the attention of council that some town citizens are parking their cars on the roadway during severe snow storms which hampers snow removal by the town crew. These people have been notified to move their vehicles, and in the near future the town will adopt a snow removal ordinance.

Columbia Gas

After much discussion of the franchise agreement with Columbia Gas of Maryland, the council agreed to accept it. The amount of the agreement is $850 more per year than the town is now receiving.

Traffic Conditions

A letter from T. W. Beaulieu, State Highway Administration district engineer, was read regarding traffic conditions in Mtn. Lake Park. The letter stated that the speed limit of 40 mph along Maryland Route 135 was found to be reasonable and proper.

Beaulieu agreed that there is a significant problem of both rear-end and left-turn accidents on Route 135. He feels the problem can be attributed to the lack of shoulder paving in intersecting roadways. SHA will provide bypass lanes, acceleration and deceleration lanes at various intersections in Mtn. Lake Park, however no dates for these improvements have been scheduled. SHA feels that there is no justification for establishing a four-way stop at the intersection of "G" Street and Maryland Route 825B. The existing stop on "D" Street and Pensinger Blvd. provides adequate and proper control, according to Beaulieu. Maryland Route 825B will be designed to include additional speed limit signs and various other warning signs.

Development Plan

A final draft of the Mtn. Lake Park Comprehensive Development Plan has been received from the Institute of Governmental Service and town officials feel that several corrections are going to have to be made to it. A list of the discrepancies in the plan was given to the Planning Commission along with suggested corrections. The mayor contacted Barbara Hawk, from IGS, and discussed the necessary changes with her. She has agreed to make these changes and to send a corrected plan back to the town for their approval.

Census Bureau

After two years of negotiating with the Bureau of the Census, the town has been successful in getting the bureau to change the population estimate for the town to 1,849. The town had submitted documented proof of the town's population to get this change made.

Sewer Rehab Project

Wendell Keaton was present at the meeting and updated the council on the sewer rehabilitation project. County Circuit Rider Keaton said that a change order for the problem on Allegheny Drive and "B" Street has been sent to the state and the state sees no problem with it.

The Braethorn

The mayor read a letter from Karen Spiker of A&A Realty concerning the condemnation of the Braethorn in Mtn. Lake Park by the fire marshal. He said that he feels that Spiker misunderstood the intent of the town in which they were only trying to correct a potentially dangerous situation in which people are entering the Braethorn at night and the town council is concerned that the building might catch on fire and someone could be seriously injured or neighboring buildings could be damaged. The town sent a letter asking Spiker to attend the next meeting of the town council where she can update town officials on the renovation plans for the Braethorn.

Tax Differential

Several articles were read that had appeared in Allegany and Garrett county newspapers regarding the tax differential. The mayor stated that he understands the county commissioners want to change the wording in the differential law.

Mayor's Plans

Mayor Alexander informed council that he does intend to run for the office of County Commissioner this year and will be filing shortly. He stated some of his concerns and goals as a candidate for that office.

Two Local Drivers Charged With DWI

Members of the Garrett County Sheriff's Department and the Maryland State Police at the McHenry detachment combined efforts over the past two weeks to arrest two local men for driving while under the influence of alcohol.

James Donald Bow, 27, Oakland, was arrested Saturday around 12:07 p.m. near the Deer Park Fire Hall on Route 135. He was jailed and later released on his own recognizance.

Deputy L.E. Gnegy, Garrett County Sheriff's Department, made the arrest.

James Ronald Heath, 54, Swanton, was arrested at approximately 6 p.m. January 20 on the Lower New Germany Road.

The arrest was made by Tfc. R.J. Resh of the Maryland State Police.

Goldstein Notes Helpful Changes On Tax Forms

Maryland State Comptroller Louis L. Goldstein says changes in state tax forms should help you whether you're filing the state's long or short form this year. "One important change will affect 45% of Maryland's income taxpayers—those who itemize deductions. The change in procedures should help cut confusion and errors," he said.

The comptroller noted that, for the first time, all taxpayers who itemize on the state return will be required to fill out Form 502A and send it with their return. "This similar to the procedure you follow on your federal return and it should help eliminate a lot of confusion," Goldstein said, "adding that Form 502A is included in the state tax packet. In addition, the Md. long form has been expanded to provide specific lines for more items taxpayers must transfer from their federal returns," he said.

Comptroller Goldstein pointed out an important change in the state's tax tables as well. "About one in every three taxpayers last year could use the tax tables to find the amount of tax due. More taxpayers should qualify to use the tables this year because they've been expanded to allow income levels of up to $50,000 to qualify," Goldstein explained. "The $50,000 maximum for using the state tax tables now matches the maximum on the federal tax tables which should also make it easier for taxpayers to complete their returns. It also means that more taxpayers will be able to use the state's short form, since it now carries a $50,000 maximum as well."

Taxpayers who do not qualify to use the tax tables should use the worksheet for Tax Rate Schedule R in the packet to figure their taxes. "We added an extra worksheet this year to help taxpayers filing combined separate returns. The worksheets have helped to cut the error rate in recent years. We think the worksheets will continue to help cut errors this year, too," Goldstein said.

Another innovation this year are four tax tip brochures, offering information on areas of difference between Maryland and federal tax returns. The topics covered include the state exemption for Social Security and Railroad Retirement income, the state deduction for child care expenses, the combined separate filing status for working couples and how to complete a return if you've recently moved into Maryland. The handouts are available at all Maryland income tax offices.

The comptroller noted that all 15 Maryland income tax offices will be open to serve taxpayers on Saturday, February 1 and Saturday, February 8, 1986, from 9:00 a.m. until 1:00 p.m. In addition, the offices will remain open on Wednesday, February 12, and Monday, February 17, while most state offices will remain closed in observance of Lincoln's Birthday and Washington's Birthday, respectively. "These and other extra hours of free state tax help are listed in the state tax packet," he said.

"Our experts will also be happy to complete your Maryland income tax return free of charge during regular hours (Monday through Friday, 8:30 a.m.-4:30 p.m.) or during the extra hours of help. Just be sure to bring along a completed copy of your federal return and all W-2 statements," Goldstein said.

Lakers Edged By Frederick Before Upsetting Potomac State And CCAC

The Garrett Community College Lakers were edged by host Frederick Saturday night, 50-45, but came back this week with an 84-68 thrashing of visiting Potomac State on Monday and a big one-point overtime victory last night against CCAC-Allegheny of Pittsburgh, also in McHenry.

Coach Dennis Gibson's 13-7 squad will return to action this Saturday at the Community College of Baltimore and at Dundalk CC on Sunday afternoon, before returning home to host arch rival Allegany CC next Wednesday.

Extreme foul trouble and a questionable call by the officials concerning a timeout were the "lowlights" of the Lakers' game against the Frederick Cougars on Saturday.

The Cougars had 30 opportunities at the free throw line, compared to only two for Garrett, who out-gunned the host team from the floor by a 22-16 margin.

Four foul shots in the final two seconds of the game by Jeff Summers, two of them technicals, sealed the JUCO Conference American Division win for the Cougars.

Summers was fouled as the Lakers, trailing 46-45, attempted to regain possession of the ball in the final moments. Coach Gibson then called a timeout because, according to his scorer's book, the Lakers had one timeout remaining. The officials ruled that the Lakers did not have another timeout, which led to the technical call.

Jim Feagins, 6-2 freshman from Randallstown, led the Lakers with 23 points. Garrett was playing without the services of two standouts, Scott Stem and Jim Ragler. Stem is still out with an injured knee and Ragler missed the contest with an injured ankle.

Also reaching double figures for Garrett was Jerry Monroe, who finished with ten points. Feagins also pulled down seven rebounds and was credited with three steals. Justin Fagan had seven rebounds for the Lakers and Sean Hazel provided six assists.

Keith Collins and Summers led Frederick with 11 points each.

Gibson said following the game that "the fouls killed us." He also noted that both teams were "flat" and had just come off close, emotional losses a few days before.

A 29-point performance by Feagins highlighted the Lakers' surprisingly easy win over Potomac State on Monday, while a rejuvenated Ragler added 17 points and Monroe netted 16.

The Catamounts came into the contest with a 12-3 record, but never managed to get on track, as the Lakers were on top by 11 at halftime, 39-28.

Rick McCollum was the only Potomac State player to reach double figures, finishing with 19 points.

The Lakers out-shot the Catamounts by only one bucket, 33-32, but sunk 18 of 22 free throw attempts, compared to a four-for-14 effort by Potomac State.

A foul shot by Sean Hazel with just one second remaining in overtime resulted in the Lakers' big upset last night over visiting Allegheny of Pittsburgh, which snapped a 13-game winning streak by the Cougars. It was the first regular season win over Allegheny by the Lakers.

Feagins led the Lakers in scoring with a career-high 36 points on 16 baskets and four of five free throws, while Monroe netted 20 points and Torin Savoy, 11

The contest was knotted at 43 at halftime and the scores of each team were never separated by more than four points throughout the second half. The regulation time expired with the score tied at 78.

Garrett had an opportunity to win the game in the regulation time after Ragler sunk two free throws to tie the score with 44 seconds remaining. The Lakers then forced a turnover and set up for a final shot, but Hazel's attempt bounced off the rim.

A steal and bucket by Ragler in the overtime period gave Garrett an 80-78 advantage, but a three-point play by CCAC's Darrell White gave the visitors a one-point lead.

Ragler then stole the ball again and fired it to Feagins under the basket for a lay-up to give the Lakers the lead again. A baseline jumper by Feagins followed, putting Garrett up by three, but Deondre Smith answered with a pair of free throws to bring Allegheny to within one.

The Lakers maintained a lead, but Dana Zajicek's short baseline jumper at the nine-second mark tied the game at 87.

Hazel was then fouled and missed the first shot at the line, but made good on the second one to give the Lakers one of their biggest victories in the history of the school.

A 20-foot desperation shot by the Cougars at the buzzer bounced off the rim.

White led the Cougars with 31 points, while Darrell McClung finished with 24.

Garrett also out-rebounded the visitors, 41-35, and committed only six turnovers in the entire game. Monroe led with 1 rebound, Hazel grabbed nine, and Savoy, seven. Ragler was credited with eight steals and five assists.

"This is a heck of a win for us and it was a great, great effort by our kids because Allegheny has a very good team," Gibson stated.

Huskies Defeated By East Preston And Mt. Savage

Although the Northern Huskies played a strong game against heavily favored East Preston Friday night in Accident, and outscored the visitors in the final stanza, 22-15, it was not enough, as the West Virginians took home a 51-45 win.

Adding insult to injury, the Huskies were crushed again Tuesday night by visiting Mt. Savage, 66-28. The losses dropped the Huskies' record to 6-10.

East Preston moved out to a 12-7 advantage in the first quarter against the stubborn Huskies, increased their lead to 24-16 by intermission, and 36-23 in the third quarter before the home team began its comeback in the final period.

Rick Myers led four Eagles in double figures with 14 points. Tony Haskiell and Steve Gibson finished with 12 each, while Rob Haskiell chipped in with ten points.

Aaron Zumpano was the only Husky to reach double figures, finishing with ten points, as Northern's leading scorer, Bill Torres, was limited to just six points.

The Northern jayvee squad was edged by East Preston in the preliminary game, 55-51, despite a 22-point performance by Kyle Zehr and a 15-point effort by John Harmke for the junior Huskies. Bill Sisler led the Little Eagles with 24 points.

After a close first quarter against Mt. Savage Tuesday evening, when the Huskies were down by only one, 11-10, the Indians stretched their advantage to 29-18 by halftime and then raced out to a 50-20 lead in the third period, allowing the Huskies just two points of their own in that period.

Scott Williams led the winners with 23 points, while Brian Hoppert netted 18 and Doug Deremer, ten.

None of the Huskies reached double figures.

Northern will return to action this Friday evening against Flintstone on the Huskies floor.

Rams Roll Over Stags, Then Fall To Petersburg

The Southern Rams blasted visiting Elk Garden Friday night, 56-33, to record their fourth win of the season, but then dropped to 4-10 on Tuesday evening by losing to powerful Petersburg, 65-55, on the Vikings' floor.

The Stags of Elk Garden held a 10-8 lead by the end of the first quarter, and the Rams were on top by only three at intermission, 23-20, but then held the Stags to just three points in the third stanza. The Rams led 35-23 as the final period began and then proceeded to pull away from the visitors.

Max Hill and J.R. Bosley, who was playing his first varsity game, each netted 12 points for Southern. Greg Moreland led the Stags with 12 points.

It was Elk Garden's seventh loss in nine contests.

The 11-1 Petersburg Vikings displayed a balanced offensive effort Tuesday night, as four players finished with double figures. Ron Stephens and Bill Mitchell each netted 19 points, Chad Curtis sunk 11, and Jeff Roth added ten. Mitchell also pulled down eight rebounds, while Stephens was credited with four steals and five assists.

Hill again led the Rams with an 18-point effort, followed by Jon Reneslacis with 16 points and Danny Jackson with 11.

The Rams trailed throughout the contest by a similar margin, as the Vikings held quarter leads of 19-10, 31-23, and 46-34.

Southern was out-gunned by only two buckets, 25-23, but the Vikings made good on 15 of 21 free throws, compared to a nine-for-13 effort by the Rams.

The Southern jayvees also lost Tuesday evening to their Petersburg counterparts, 62-45.

TO WATER CUSTOMERS IN OAKLAND

The Town of Oakland has approximately 850 water customers. Some have experienced frozen water lines and others have let water run to prevent freezing. Some have shared with their waterless neighbors. Neither the Town nor the customers have been at fault in the situation. In fairness to both, where there is evidence that any of the above has occurred, the March quarter water bills will be adjusted as follows:

1. The least amount a customer will pay will be the minimum quarterly charge.
2. The maximum a customer will pay will be the highest amount paid in any quarter during the past year.
3. If the amount of water consumed is less than the last quarter the customer will be billed for that amount.

Eastern Garrett VFD Releases 1985 Statistics

The Eastern Garrett County Volunteer Fire Department, located at Finzel, responded to 41 calls for assistance during 1985, according to statistics released this week by Jim Raley, chief. The department, which was established in 1967, answered 35 alarms in 1984.

Raley said the department vehicles traveled some 3,500 miles and the members recorded 1,110 man hours on these 41 alarms, 452 of which were spent at the scene of a hazardous materials leak on U.S. Rt. 48 at the Finzel Exit on September 8.

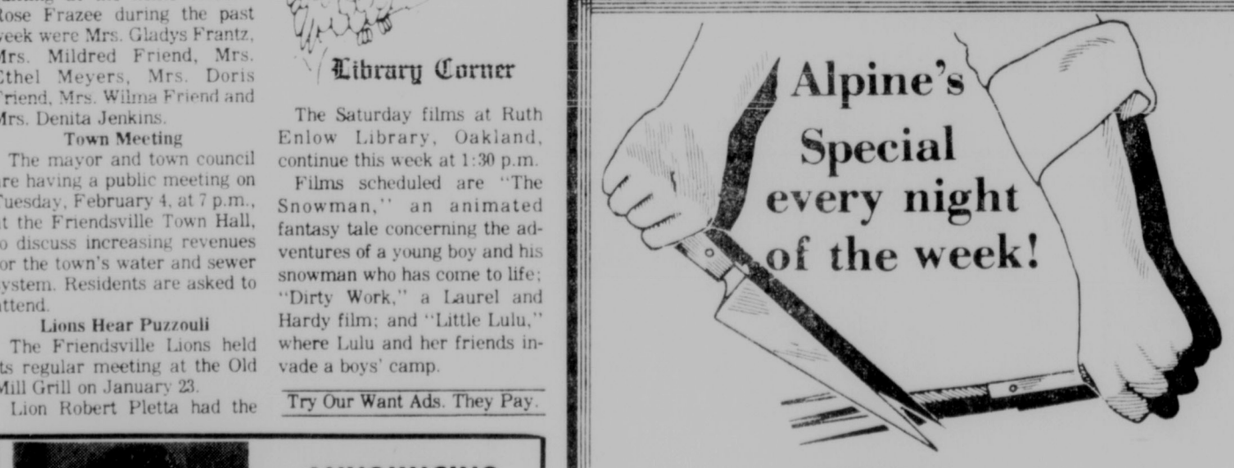
Eastern Garrett VFD also sponsored a number of fire prevention activities and programs for the community. In July, they gave a presentation to a group of children on the dangers of fire, and what they can do to prevent fires. The children were involved in the School Community Center Program of the Board of Education.

During Fire Prevention Week the fire department sponsored an open house for the community, which included demonstrations on home-safety checks and fire extinguishers, showing films, and handing out brochures on fire safety. The members also visited Route 40 Elementary School to discuss fire safety with the children. Included in the program was an explanation of the 911 emergency telephone number, evacuation procedures, and methods to prevent fires.

The department held a poster contest in conjunction with Fire Prevention Week. Winners, in order of finish, were: kindergarten - Wendy Hunter, Doug Weimer, and Stacy Cecil; first grade - Candy Opel, Marty Ritchie, and Krista Drees; second grade - Tara Burdock, Clint Malone, and Bernard Wolford; third grade - Amanda Galica, Jimmy Smith, and Darren Klink; fourth grade - Jennifer Friend, Dwayne Arnold, and Tara Willey; and fifth grade - Brian Kamp, Chrisy Crowe, and Cheri Garlitz.

The department also offers free home inspections to community citizens to advise on potential fire hazards in or around their homes.

Among the members of Eastern Garrett VFD who received special honors and recognition during 1985 were: Chief Raley, who was named 1985 Fireman of the Year by the Allegany-Garrett Firemen's Association; Beatrice Opel, a member of the Eastern Garrett VFD Auxiliary, was named Allegany-Garrett County Firelady of the Year; Dale Fike was named as the first Eastern Garrett fireman to the Hall of Flame; and James Baker Jr. was named 1985 Fireman of the Year by the Garrett County Firemen's Association.



Raley stated that the department is now making preparations to purchase a new pumper/tanker, with hopes of taking delivery during the spring of 1987. He stated that this will be made possible through the department's continued Tuesday evening social events, monthly spaghetti dinners, shooting matches, and the banquets and various other fund-raisers sponsored by the Ladies Auxiliary.

Raley noted his appreciation for the "generous support" of the fire department exhibited by the Finzel community.

Reappraisal Topic For Rotarians

Reappraisal of property was the program topic for the January 9 meeting of the Terra Alta Rotary Club.

The guest speaker was Charles Whetsell, Preston County assessor, who was the guest of Ken Frankhouser. The purpose of reappraisal was not to raise taxes, he said, but was an effort for uniformity. Whetsell pointed out the controversies it created and means of correcting the mistakes and solving the problems. Questions from the audience helped to clarify many obscure points. Implementation of the reappraisal probably will not be in effect for two or three years, he concluded.

On December 15, Rotary elected officers for 1986-87. They are: president, Logan Weber; vice president, Harold Rasco; secretary, Bud White; treasurer, Roy Cale; and board of director members, Bruce Reed, Lee Rice, Charles Thomas and Stephen Forsythe.

The program chairman for January 23 will be Richard Hopkins. Ladies Night will be January 30.

Rotarians from Terra Alta visited Hopemont Hospital residents on January 16 as they do the third Thursday of every month.

IN LOVING MEMORY

Of our dear Mother, Iona Rodeheaver, who passed away on February 4, 1980:

Only God knows the grief that we all bear,
When our family gets together and Mom's not there.
Gone is the face we loved so dear,
Silent is the voice we loved to hear.
We cannot hear her laughter, her hand we cannot touch,
But we shall never lose the sweet memory
Of the Mom we loved so much.
Forget you Mom, we never will,
And in our hearts we love you still.

Sadly missed by Sons, Daughters, and Families

THANK YOU

We the family of Edna A. Lewis wish to extend our thanks and appreciation for the acts of kindness, messages of sympathy, the beautiful flower arrangements, memorials, cards and food received from our friends, neighbors, relatives in the loss of our beloved Mother.

Local Native Awarded State Honor

A Mtn. Lake Park native was among six individuals who were honored recently by the Maryland Rehabilitation Association for outstanding service to the vocational rehabilitation of disabled persons.

Karen McHenry Van Dyk, daughter of James and Helen McHenry, Mtn. Lake Park, was presented the Mary E. Switzer Award at the MRA's Annual Awards and Educational Meeting, held recently in Baltimore. The award is presented to a female member of the association who has made significant contributions in helping the disabled.

Ms. Van Dyk, an employee of Vocational Counseling Associates, Inc., is a 1972 graduate of Southern High School, a 1976 graduate of the University of Maryland with a bachelor degree in counseling psychology, and is currently pursuing a master's degree in rehabilitation counseling. She began her career as a rehabilitation counselor with the Maryland Department of Vocational Rehabilitation in 1977, working with developmentally disabled young adults. While there she organized a resource and information program for parents of handicapped youth and served as a representative to a counselors' task group for problem resolution.

In 1978, she transferred to the private sector as Counseling and Administrative Director of Comprehensive Rehabilitation Consultants. She was a founding partner of Vocational Counseling Consultants in 1982, which is a private rehabilitation firm specializing in assisting industrially disabled workers in their return to productive lives.

Ms. Van Dyk was a founding member of the Chesapeake Association of Rehabilitation Professionals and served as its president for two years. She has actively sought the establishment of standards and ethics of procedure for the counselor and is currently chairing a task force of state and private counselors to facilitate better cooperation and understanding between the two.

She is a member of a number of state and national professional organizations, has given lectures to classes in rehabilitation counseling at various universities and served on a curriculum review committee for rehabilitation education at George Washington University.

Ms. Van Dyk resides in Columbia with her husband, Ken. She is pictured above, right, receiving the Mary E. Switzer Award from Gaynell Colburn, Miss Wheelchair of America, and Fred Neill, president of the Maryland Rehabilitation Association.

National Bus, Truck Safety Week Proclaimed

Preliminary figures for 1985 show that 126 people died in accidents involving heavy trucks and buses, according to Ron Lipps of the State Transportation Department's Safety Division. There were 107 fatalities in 1984.

"The week of January 26 is National Bus and Truck Safety Week," said Lipps. "Marylanders should be aware that the state's new Motor Carrier Safety Program was developed to spot defective equipment and take unsafe vehicles off the road," he added. "Many people don't realize there were over 10,000 Maryland accidents involving large trucks and buses, just in 1984." Maryland's safety program has the full support of labor and the motor carrier industry, he noted.

Under a Governor's Executive Order, Maryland Department of Transportation is the lead agency in the motor carrier program launched in November, 1985. Responsibility for the major operational aspects of the program, however, has been assumed by the Automotive Safety Enforcement Division of the Maryland State Police (MSP), the Public Service Commission's Transportation Division and the Science and Health Advisory Group within the Department of Health and Mental Hygiene's Office of Environmental Programs.

Captain Richard W. Janney, Commander, Automotive Safety Enforcement Division, MSP, believes Truck and Bus Safety Week is a time to remind Marylanders that officials are concerned about their safety as they travel the state's highways. "Since the last nine months of 1985, nearly 730 dangerous vehicles have been taken out of service; over 2,000 were inspected," said Janney. "We are stopping operation of about one-third of those we inspect and hope through additional manpower and funding that we can step up our efforts to inspect more trucks and buses on a monthly basis."

Certified inspectors look at brakes, wheels, tires, steering mechanism, connection assemblies, suspension, stop lights, turn signals and secured cargo. Drivers can also be grounded (placed out of service) for exceeding permitted driving hours.

Roadside inspections are conducted at sites along major commercial routes. Inspections are regularly held on I-95 in Cecil and Prince George's Counties, 301 near Upper Marlboro, and U.S. 40 in Cecil County. Two new weigh/inspection stations have been constructed on Interstate 70 between Baltimore and Frederick. Operations will be expanded to sites on other Interstate, U.S. and Maryland numbered routes.

State safety inspectors have been trained in safety and hazardous materials regulations. They will randomly select buses or trucks for inspection at roadside sites. Presently, buses carrying passengers are only stopped for identification of such things as their drivers, carriers and destinations. Passenger comfort and safety precludes placing a bus out of service except where a serious or immediate safety hazard is observed. The average vehicle/driver inspection takes approximately 30 minutes. None of the vehicle's safety equipment is disassembled.

Free Tax Help Available Next Two Weekends

"The next two weekends are a good time to work on your Maryland income tax return," Maryland State Comptroller Louis L. Goldstein said. "Most taxpayers now have the W-2 statements and other information they need to complete their returns, and we are providing extra hours of free state tax help."

All 15 Maryland income tax offices will offer extra hours of free taxpayer assistance on Saturday, February 1, and Saturday, February 8. Free assistance will be provided from 9:00 a.m. until 1:00 p.m.

State tax experts at all 15 locations will answer any questions, provide the necessary forms and even complete Maryland tax returns free of charge. "Just be sure to bring along a completed copy of your federal return and all W-2 statements," Goldstein said.

The addresses and telephone numbers of all Maryland income tax offices are listed on the back of the state tax packet and in local telephone directories.

Inducted Into Pi Gamma Mu

A Western Maryland College student from Garrett County was one of 32 inductees into Pi Gamma Mu, the international honor society for social science students.

He is Donald R. Bender, a senior sociology major, son of Shirley Bender, Grantsville.

Pi Gamma Mu encourages excellence in the social sciences among undergraduate and graduate students. The purpose of this honor society is to improve scholarship in the social sciences, to inspire service to humanity, and to engender sympathy towards others with different opinions.

Western Maryland College, located in Westminster, is a private liberal arts college.

DHMH Confirms Cases Of Type B Influenza

The Maryland Department of Health and Mental Hygiene has reported the first positive-culture of Type B influenza, which confirms the presence of the respiratory illness in the state. The cultures, obtained from three school age children in Baltimore City, Carroll and Prince George's Counties, tested positive in the Department's Laboratory Administration.

Influenza, said Feng-Ying Lin, M.D., Chief, Division of Clinical Epidemiology, is an acute viral illness of the respiratory tract characterized by fever, sore throat, headache, cough and muscle ache. Without complications, recovery usually takes two to seven days.

According to Dr. Lin, the following groups are at highest risk of serious illness from the flu and are particularly recommenderd to receive the protection of Vaccination:

•Adults and children with long-term heart or lung problems and other chronic medical problems, which caused them regularly to see a doctor, or be admitted to a hospital for care during the past year.

•Residents of nursing homes and other facilities housing patients of any age who have serious long-term health problems.

•Doctors, nurses, and other medical personnel who have extensive contact with people who have long-term health problems.

•Healthy people over 65 years of age.

The vaccine available in Maryland this year includes protection for three types of flu: Type A/Philippine, Type A/Chile and Type B/USSR. Because adequate protection takes 10 to 14 days to develop after immunization, Dr. Lin said high risk persons who have not received the vaccine during this season should get it as soon as possible. The medication amantadine, which has been recommended as a treatment for influenza, is not effective against Type B, she added.

Also, said Dr. Lin, parents should be aware of a rare, but serious, medical condition called Reyes' Syndrome, which can sometimes develop in children several days after a flu-like viral illness or chicken pox.

The symptoms of Reyes' Syndrome may first appear as vomiting, nausea and seizures, often following changes in the mental and behavorial status of the child. The State Health Department, the Food and Drug Administration, the Centers for Disease Control and the American Academy of Pediatrics caution parents against giving aspirin to children with influenza or chicken pox because of a possible association with Reyes' Syndrome.

Former Resident Makes Dean's List

Angela Lewis, a former Garrett County resident, received word recently that she was among the students at Shenandoah College and Conservatory, Winchester, Va. who were named to the dean's list.

Lewis, who obtained a 3.83 grade point average while carrying a 22-credit semester, was cited by the dean for outstanding academic performance. She is undertaking a four-year course in two years.

She is presently a sophomore majoring in elementary education and did her first grade practicum at Robison Memorial School. She is presently doing her advanced practicum at the same school.

Lewis is a graduate of Southern High School and attended Allegany Community College. She is the daughter of Ronald and Violet Lewis, Oakland, and the wife of Ralph E. Lewis, Winchester.

On Dean's List

Pamela K. Bittinger, Mountain Lake Park, has been named to the dean's list at Thiel College for the fall semester.

Miss Bittinger, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Gary Bittinger, 904 Philadelphia Ave., had to attain an overall grade point average of 3.4 or better on a 4.0 scale to qualify for the dean's list.

Dr. John J. Agria, vice president for academic services, commended Miss Bittinger for her "outstanding accomplishments."

Miss Bittinger, a graduate of Southern High School, is a senior majoring in medical technology at the western Pennsylvania liberal arts college.

exclusive local TV Listings

Saturday, February 1 — Friday, February 7

She was tempestuous, terrifying, tawdry and — above all — talented. Find out why Josephine Baker was also called a tigress in "Brown Sugar," a four-part series profiling the careers of black female performers. Part two airs Friday, Feb. 7 on PBS. (Check local listings.)

Joan Collins leads a life filled with 'Sins'

By Marc Minnelli

Joan Collins wants to talk about sex. "Don't you know a man is past his sexual prime after he turns 30?" she informs a visitor to her "Dynasty" dressing room. "After all, statistics show that a man is really in his prime when he's 17."

Joan Collins

The actress lights a Marlboro and waits for an answer. "Well, then," the visitor says, refusing Miss Collins' offer to smoke, "since your husband Peter is 37-years-old ... "

Miss Collins, 52, smiles. "No, dah-ling," she says, puffing and preening herself sans a mirror, "Pe-tah (her accent is veddy British today) is not past his prime. That would be a sin!"

This week, however, Miss Collins' life is filled with "Sins." On Sunday, Feb. 2 (and airing through Tuesday, Feb. 4), the actress stars in the seven-hour, multi-million mini-series in which she portrays Helene Junot, the glamorous head of an international fashion magazine publishing empire. The soapy saga is chockful of couture (Miss Collins wear 92 different costumes), grandeur (champagne overflows against lush French locales) and glitterati (a star-studded cast including James Farentino, Marisa Berenson and Gene Kelly).

"Sins" is the first major project Miss Collins has tackled during her "Dynasty" reign; she dismisses "My Life As a Man" and "The Cartier Affair," two NBC movies in which she recently starred.

And though not one snippet of "Sins" has yet aired, Miss Collins offers her previewed (and prejudiced) opinion. "I saw it the other day," she says, "and found it thrilling, exciting, beautifully photographed and wonderfully well cast."

Indeed, if "Sins" is a smash, Miss Collins can pat herself (and Holm) on the well-paid shoulder. The two co-produced the miniseries — her husband's deal with CBS gave Miss Collins a reported $2-million take-home pay — and Miss Collins had approval over costume changes, dialogue and cast members. But if the show bombs ...

"I don't think the critics are sitting out there, waiting for 'Sins' to air so they can rip it apart," Miss Collins insists. "If they are, then I don't respect them as people or critics. I think 'Sins' — just like any other show — should be judged on its own merits."

The verdict should be in soon.

ASK ME ABOUT TV

By Val Carew

Whatever happened to William Katt, the actor who starred in the fright film "Carrie"? The last project I remember was his TV series, "The Greatest American Hero." — T.A., Milwaukee, Wis.

William Katt

Katt was recently seen in NBC's "The Return of Perry Mason," in which he played Paul Drake, Jr. Barbara Hale, the actress who created the role of Della Street on the original "Perry Mason" TV series, is Katt's real-life mother.

I'd like to write a letter to David Wolper, the man who produced the splendid ABC miniseries "North and South." I loved the show, and want him to know it. — J.K., Niles, Ill.

I come to the rescue — again! Address your notes to Wolper c/o Wolper Productions, The Burbank Studios, Burbank, CA 91505. Remember, "Love and War," the sequel to "North and South," airs on ABC in the spring.

How old is "Facts of Life" star Lisa Whelchel? Where can I write to her? — R.M.P., West Lafayette, Ind.

Miss Whelchel was born on May 29, 1963 in Fort Worth, Texas. You can write to her c/o Embassy Television, Universal Studios, Universal City, CA 91604.

Susie motored her way to Hollywood

By Gregory Garver

HOLLYWOOD — Show biz may have its drawbacks, but it sure beats life on the assembly line. You have Susie Garrett's word on that. And Miss Garrett should know.

Susie Garrett

She spent 11 years on the assembly line at the General Motors plant in Detroit, where, for most of the time, she was employed as a machine operator. Now Miss Garrett plays Mrs. Johnson, the grandmother on NBC's "Punky Brewster."

"There's a big difference between those two jobs," she explains. One of the nicest is the money.

"They sure are giving me a lot of money," the actress quips, "and I don't want to spend it too quickly. You know how it is with money: if you make $1,000, you spend $1,000 a week. Before I got into 'Punky Brewster,' I was making around $100 a week. Now I'm near $1,000 a week, so I try to spend $1,000 — but a little slower. And I can't begin to tell you how wonderful that is!"

Miss Garrett quit her job at GM when she realized she wanted to go to college. She majored in psychology at Detroit's Shaw College, and still has ambitions to receive her graduate degrees. If that happens, she says, she'll be torn between acting and counselling troubled people.

Yet the actress figures when — and if — the time comes, God will help her make a decision. After all, she says, it was God's idea that she leave Detroit and move to California.

"I'm sure He sent me out here," she says, "because it sure wasn't my idea. That's why I never questioned it, and that's why I'm not questioning it now. I'm just following instructions."

Actually, Miss Garrett went West to visit her sister, Marla Gibbs, who was then starring on "The Jeffersons." And it was Miss Gibbs who urged her sister to audition for a play, even though she had never acted before. Miss Garrett did what Miss Gibbs suggested, and began carving out a show-biz niche.

"I had nothing to do with all this," she insists. "I'm just trying to do good with what God has given me."

Meanwhile, she's enjoying it all the way to the bank.

THURSDAY

Shake, rattle and roll! Sergeant Jablonski (Robert Prosky) grudgingly agrees to star in a video in "I Want My Hill Street Blues," the episode of "Hill Street Blues" airing Thursday, Feb. 6 on NBC. Pam Rossi co-stars.

(Stations reserve the right to make last-minute changes.)

Lilli Palmer, Vanessa Redgrave and Omar Sharif (left to right) are three of the stars who populate "Peter the Great," the sprawling miniseries based on the Russian czar's life. The miniseries airs on four consecutive nights, beginning Sunday, Feb. 2 on NBC.

Teri Garr goes off to work, leaving Michael Keaton to handle the bevy of boisterous brats in "Mr. Mom," the 1982 film about the art of house-husbandry, airing Sunday, Feb. 2 on ABC.

Tommy's out-of-tune Broadway video-play

By Cindy Adams

Broadway's "My One and Only" will be immortalized in a video, and the show's star and co-choreographer, Tommy Tune, is torn between two leading ladies: Lucie Arnaz and Sandy Duncan. Twiggy, Tune's original co-star and one-time love interest, isn't even being considered.

Tommy Tune

Dean Martin is happy with RCA's takeover by General Electric. Eleven years ago, NBC bought all of his TV shows, and Dino was paid off in shares. Not as ecstatic are 12 RCA employee shareholders, who are suing on the basis of "no forewarning." They claim RCA's board chairman Thornton Bradshaw made moves without even the knowledge of RCA's president. They've filed in Delaware (the state of incorporation) against the sale.

Brooke Shields's new mystery man? A bodyguard. Her New Jersey home was recently burglarized. ... Mickey Rooney bought a flexibility machine to exercise his 65-year-old legs. What does it actually do? I don't know, but I do know Olympic gold-medal gymnast Jim Hartung also uses one. ... Fess Parker, the Daniel Boone of TV, plans to do a Ronald Reagan. He wants to run for the United States Senate. His coonskin cap will look fabulous in the Oval office.

Dean Martin

Debbie Reynolds, who has read "Mommie Dearest" and all those other tell-all tomes written by children of the stars, is beating her kids to the punch. She's penning her autobiography. ... Frank Sinatra sent good pal Walter Annenberg a get-well gift after the former publisher and former ambassador to England had hip-replacement surgery. Ol' Blue Eyes sent a pogo stick.

Miss Bregman's past; Todd Curtis's "dad"

By Kimberly Redmond

I'm a big fan of "The Young and the Restless," and I particularly like Tracey E. Bregman, the actress who portrays Lauren Williams. Please tell me about her background. — S. J., Greenville, Texas.

Tracey E. Bregman

Born in Munich, Germany, Miss Bregman began her soap opera career portraying Donna Temple on "Days of Our Lives." She also had a role in the defunct series "The Second Family Tree." Other acting credits include guest spots on "The Love Boat" and "One Day at a Time." Miss Bregman was in the feature films "Happy Birthday to Me" and "The Funny Farm."

I'm convinced that "Capitol" actors Todd Curtis, who plays Jordy Clegg, and Rory Calhoun, who plays Judson Tyler, are father and son in real life. Am I right? — L.L., Ocean City, Md.

Although there's a striking resemblance between both thespians, the two aren't related. Curtis does admit, however, that he enjoys calling Calhoun "Dad" just for fun.

Can you tell me the name of the longest-running soap opera? — N.W., Astoria, N.Y.

The longest-running soap opera on television is "Search for Tomorrow," which premiered on Sept. 3, 1951. If you're counting radio days as well, "The Guiding Light" takes the prize. "GL" hit the (radio) waves in 1937, and premiered on CBS on June 30, 1952.

SUNDAY

Laurence Olivier (l.) stars as King William of Orange and Maximilian Schell portrays legendary Russsian czar Peter the Great in "Peter the Great," an eight-hour miniseries premiering Sunday, Feb. 2 on NBC.

CANADA

Presto! Hal Linden is magically back on TV

By Gillian George

"Hey," says Hal Linden, "what's life all about if you can't turn around and surprise yourself every once in a while?"

Hal Linden

Which is exactly what he says he did when he went back on a long-standing promise to never again put himself through the rigors of a weekly television series.

"Don't get me wrong," the actor adds. "Doing 'Barney Miller' was one of the great joys of my life. But eight years of knocking yourself out for 12 hours a day, five or six days a week, can really take it out of an old guy like me."

Hardly. Linden, 54, still has the lean body of the song-and-dance man he has been for the past three decades. So the physically grueling responsibilities of "Blacke's Magic," his new Wednesday-night series, obviously didn't scare him. Still, his decision to accept the series was anything but a snap.

"I had my heart set on doing either a big Broadway musical, a great play or a major motion picture," he recalls. "But I spent three years after 'Barney' wrapped up reading bad scripts. All they wanted me to play was Barney Miller the doctor, Barney Miller the lawyer, Barney Miller the private eye. So I took a pass and played a lot of golf instead."

Somewhere along the way, Linden said he was approached with a script about a magician who solves crimes with his illusions. He originally dismissed the idea. But when the project was joined by the celebrated creative trio of Peter Fischer, William Link and Richard Levinson — all of whom had made it big with "Murder, She Wrote" — Linden had a change of heart.

In the new version, Linden says, "Alexander Blacke intrigued me because of his possibility as a larger-than-life theatrical character. The man is a world-famous magician, a cross between Harry Houdini and Doug Henning, someone who has retired from the circuit with considerable wealth, and now only looks for challenges."

Just to add to the fun, Blacke's mentor-father is played by Harry Morgan, best-known as Col. Potter on "M*A*S*H."

"Sidekicks just don't come any better, or much more popular, than Harry," says Linden.

The actor says he's pretty satisfied with his life these days. "Thanks to Barney, I don't have to work for money anymore."

ROCK VIEW

New chapter begins for rock 'n' rollers

By Marianne Meyer

When the TV gets turned off, you can still enjoy a visual rock show with one of the many new music-oriented books on the market.

Bruce Springsteen

"Sun City" (Penguin, $8.95), by Artists United Against Apartheid and Dave Marsh, is actually two books in one. The first and more musical component is the story of how the all-star protest record decrying South African apartheid was conceived and recorded. There are lots of great color photos of the more than 50 artists who contributed to Steve Van Zandt and Arthur Baker's stirring political rap-rock number, and behind-the-scene anecdotes of the recording and video process that illustrate the commitment of people like U2's Bono, Miles Davis and Bonnie Raitt. But there's a much different and stronger impact in the book's other element — a series of stark black-and-white photos and text depicting the destructive, dehumanizing policies of apartheid and the forced relocation of South African blacks. Royalties from the book — and record — are being donated to a non-profit trust working against this racist state of affairs. So how can you go wrong? Read it!

"Springsteen" (Rolling Stone/Scribner's, $32.50) is the long-awaited biography of The Boss by Los Angeles Times music critic Robert Hilburn, a long-time Bruce fan and one of the few journalists to have talked several times to the elusive superstar. Given Hilburn's credentials and the photo archives of the publishers, the real surprise here is the sense of deja vu that permeates the project.

Springsteen fanatics will probably be disappointed at how little of the material is new or unusual, but for them, it's nice to have it all collected in one coffee-table volume.

"The Pop Sixties: A Personal and Irreverent Guide" (World Almanac Publications, $8.95), by Andrew J. Edelstein, is not, by strict definition, a music book. But there's certainly a lot about the "'60s sound" in this look back at the historical, hysterical decade. The music section is the longest with black-and-white photos, interviews and trivia, and some rather touching first-person reminiscences of what the beat and the Beatles meant to us then. Fact-filled despite its flip veneer, "The Pop Sixties" is a bubbly hodgepodge of great nonsense about '60s television, film and fads as well as music. An out-of-left-fielder worth catching.

Lally wants to give O. Henry a fair shake

By Frank Lovece

Paul Lally isn't a Hollywood film maker. Or a New York film maker. Or even a Florida film maker. Paul Lally is a film maker — in Pittsburgh — and his adaptation of O. Henry's "A Retrieved Reformation" (airing as "Valentine's Revenge," Monday, Feb. 3 on PBS' "American Playhouse") is being overseen by his boss, a man named Mister Rogers.

Paul Lally

"Fred Rogers — one and the same," explains the cheery, 40-year-old Lally. "Aside from (hosting and producing) 'Mister Rogers' Neighborhood,' — a 23-year mainstay of young children's programming — "he's also the president of Family Communications." The non-profit corporation co-produced "Valentine's Revenge."

For Lally, who directed most of the "Mister Rogers" shows made over the last five years, his script is a way of paying homage to one of his literary heroes. O. Henry — the pseudonym of William Sydney Porter (1862-1910) — was primarily a short-story writer whose twist endings in tales like "The Gift of the Magi" gave rise to the slightly derisive phrase "an O. Henry ending."

"Yet," says Lally, "even though his stories have been adapted so many times in so many media and get taught to every 13-year-old kid, the critics still dismiss him. O. Henry was a cult figure in his time, a writer of popular entertainment. What's wrong with that?"

Lally got his chance to address O. Henry's reputation after having earned a University of Maryland broadcasting degree on the G.I. bill. He first worked for a Washington, D.C., public-TV station, before joining Rogers' Pittsburgh-based company. He won two Daytime Emmy Awards, and has produced and directed for PBS and The Disney Channel. And he has no intention of leaving his adopted city.

"This is a great place to work," he says. "The crews are tops — when they're not doing 'Mister Rogers,' they'll be working on a picture for George Romero," whose "Night of the Living Dead" trilogy are kiddie fare of a slightly gorier order.

"Michael Keaton's one of the legends here," Lally adds. "He used to work on the crew. Today we have four more guys like that who just haven't unfolded. How do you like that?" he laughs. "Hollywood on the Monongahela River!"

But wherever it shines . . . there are shadows.

Wherever there are golden opportunities there are also sombre tragedies. Some fail to grasp their blessings.

Ours is a nation which guarantees to every child the opportunity for religious training. Yet ours is a nation which smarts under the scourge of a moral disease — juvenile delinquency.

In blessing you with a son or daughter, God has entrusted to you a precious soul. You are required by law to give your child a secular education. But, despite the scourge of delinquency, a free nation must leave to your conscience the question of your child's moral and religious education.

God has blessed America. With a nearby Church or Synagogue ready and eager to provide Christian training for your child, and religious foundation for your family's life — the Sun shines bright. But there are shadows. You must decide!

IT'S A LITTLE RED PILL!

Can you tell what a medicine is by just looking at it? It's pretty difficult considering that there are dozens of shapes, a full spectrum of colors and hundreds of markings for pills and capsules. The possible combinations are endless.

Knowing about medicines is the most important part of being a pharmacist. We take this responsibility and challenge seriously and carefully study about each new drug as it is released to us for public use. But, when someone stops in and says, "You know. It was a little red pill," it is not an easy matter to know exactly what medicine it is.

"A GREAT MANY PEOPLE ENTRUST US with their prescriptions, health needs and other pharmacy products. We consider this trust a privilege and a duty. May we be your personal family pharmacy?"

THE BIBLE SPEAKS
BY LAWRENCE W. ALTHOUSE

A BIGGER NEIGHBORHOOD

February 2, 1986

Background Scripture: Luke 10:25-37.
Devotional Reading: James 2:8-13.

And who is my neighbor, Lord? Is it the indigent street person to whom my church ministers and to which I contributed? Is it the African, Asian or South American to whom my denomination sends missionaries? Is it the flood victim to whose relief I contributed several months ago, or the Mexican made homeless by an earthquake? Is it the person helped by Goodwill Industries whom I call once a year to haul away my unwanted goods?

One does not have to be all that perceptive to realize that the question asked, "And who is my neighbord, Lord?", is not really a question, but a thinly-disguised answer. I've asked God to tell me who is my neighbor, but it is apparent that I think I already know the answer: my neighbor is the person whom I have helped in some way. Thus, it is not a question but an act of self-congratulation.

TO JUSTIFY HIMSELF

This was also true of the lawyer in Luke 10. Luke indicates that his question was prompted, not out of a sincere desire for enlightenment, but because he desired "to justify himself" (10:29). In other words, he was attempting to impress upon Jesus that he fulfilled the duty of loving "your neighbor as yourself." He probably could have ticked off an impressive list of "neighbors" to whom he had been benevolent. So can we all.

But, although he was really telling and not truly asking, Jesus nevertheless gave him an answer that the lawyer had neither expected nor wanted. And Jesus did it in his inimitable way: he told a story, a parable, through which the lawyer learned more than he had wanted to know. And what he learned is that he had not fulfilled his duty because, although he had in truth loved some of his neighbords, his neighborhood was just not large enough.

To make sure that there could be no misunderstanding his answer, Jesus chose carefully the ingredients of his story. Because he knew that a "neighbor" is not just "one of us," but frequently "one of them," he chose a Samaritan as the "neighbor" of his parable. Nothing was more distasteful to a Jew than a Samaritan. Samaritans were "the wrong kind of people." Indeed they wouldn't be caught dead having a Samaritan for a neighbor.

UNCONDITIONAL

Furthermore, Jesus made it clear that the only stipulation for someone to be our neighbor is that he or she be in need. Their religion may be different—they may even be atheists!—and we cannot expect that, by our act of benevolence we will make them one of us. In the parable, the Samaritan made no demands or expectations for the help he gave. It was unconditional—the same kind of love to which all of us are called.

Oh yes, we all have ministered to various and sundry neighbors, but is our neighborhood large enough?

Manure—How Valuable as a Fertilizer?

In most cases the cost of handling and storing manure costs more than the fertility value. However, it must be put somewhere. During the last couple of years the University of Maryland has been doing experimental work in handling and increasing the value of manure as a fertilizer. At the Agronomy Day, Tuesday, February 11, starting at 10:00 a.m. at the Bittinger Community Building, Dr. Allan Bandel will present a program on Manure Management. Dr. Bandel will provide you information on how to determine the value of manure, management practices that will give you maximum fertility return and how to calibrate the manure spreader.

Managing Alfalfa for Maximum Economic Results

Alfalfa continues to be the "king" of the forages. Through continued research we also learn more facts that increase yields. Dr. Les Vough, one of the leading experts in forage production, has achieved the 10 ton per acre production here in Maryland. Dr. Vough will be at the Agronomy Day meeting to present a program on management practices, particularly fertilizing, that will help you increase your alfalfa yields. Les will assist you in calculating the point of maximum return on dollars invested in alfalfa production.

Come Out to Agronomy Day

In addition to the two people mentioned above, Dr. Kim Cassel, Animal Nutrition Specialist, will be presenting a program entitled "Forage Quality: Room for Improvement"; Dr. Ronald Ritter, Weed Specialist, "Weed Control Programs for Garrett County" and "Update on Herbicides"; Dr. Gerald Jubb, "What's Happening at the Western Md. Agricultural Research Center." The program will be on Tuesday, February 11, from 10:00 a.m. to 3:00 p.m., at the Bittinger Community Building. A full course family style chicken dinner will be served for $5.00. Reservations must be made by contacting the Garrett County Extension Office at 334-2145. Everyone is welcome.

Small Grains Set Record Yields

Winter wheat, rye and oat yields set records in Maryland in 1985. Wheat production at 6.52 million bushels was eight percent below last year but yields at 49 bushels per acre were six bushels above last year and at a record level.

Rye production for 1985 at 198,000 bushels is 12 percent below last year's 224,000 bushels. Oat production at 900,000 bushels is five percent above last year's 855,000 bushels. A record yield of 60 bushels per acre was obtained, three bushels above that for 1984.

Barley production from the 1985 crop totaled 5.47 million bushels, one percent below the record 5.51 million bushels produced in 1984. Barley acres harvested at 96,000 acres set a record in 1985, 1,000 acres above 1984's acreage.

Wheat acreage seeded in 1985 for 1986 harvest at 160,000 acres is 14 percent above the 1985 acreage seeded. Rye seeded this fall totaled 46,000 acres, two percent above the 45,000 acres seeded in 1984.

Winter wheat production across the United States in 1985 is estimated at 1.83 billion bushels, down 11 percent from 1984 and to the lowest level since 1979. Barley production in 1985 is estimated at 589 million bushels, down two percent from last year's record high production of 599 million bushels.

Oat production in 1985 is estimated at 519 million bushels, nine percent above the 1984 crop of 474 million bushels. A record high average yield more than offset a fractional decrease in acres harvested for grain from a year ago. Rye production for 1985 is estimated at 20.6 million bushels, 36 percent less than 1984.

Area seeded for the 1986 winter wheat crop is estimated at 54 million acres, seven percent less than the 57.8 million acres seeded for 1985. The 1986 rye acreage seeded for all purposes is placed at 2.39 million acres, down seven percent from 1985's 2.56 million acres.

December Weather

December 1985 was a cold dry month. Maryland's average temperature was 33.8 degrees (normal 36). December 1984 was a record warm month while December 1983 with its average 33.4 degrees was a little cooler than 1985. The highest temperature for the month was 69 at Denton on the 11th and Snow Hill on the 12th. The lowest recorded temperature for December was -14 at Eagle Rock in Garrett County on the 26th.

The average precipitation for the month was 1.27 inches, (normal 3.46 inches). December 1985 was the fifth driest on record, based on records dating from 1895 and the driest December since 1980 when the average precipitation was 0.86 inches. The greatest total precipitation for the month was 3.53 inches recorded at McHenry in Garrett County. Snowfall was light except in Western Maryland, where some stations reported over 20 inches. McHenry had 28.0 inches of snow in December followed by Eagle Rock with 27.9 inches.

No-Till Bill Is Rescheduled

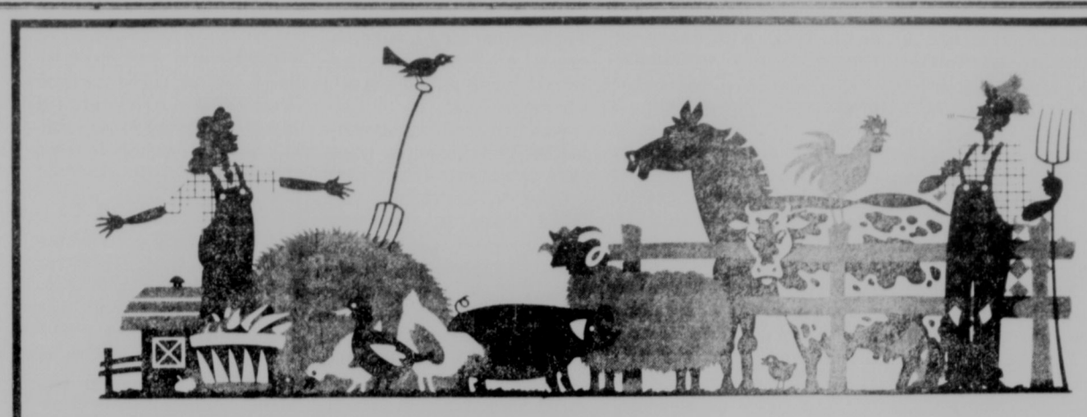
A bill which would give farmers an income tax credit for conservation tillage equipment, originally scheduled for a hearing January 17, will be heard by the Senate Budget and Taxation Committee on Friday.

The hearing was delayed because the sponsor had some problems with the bill. A representative of the Maryland Farm Bureau, representatives of the state Comptroller's office, and the Department of Agriculture have met to work out the problems with the bill.

As written, the bill would have provided an individual with a tax credit against the state income tax for expenses incurred in purchasing and installing conservation tillage equipment. Conservation tillage equipment is defined as a no-till planter or drill.

As amended the bill would provide for a tax deduction instead of a tax credit. It mandates that a farmer must own the equipment for three years before qualifying for the deduction. It also qualifies equipment purchased since 1983.

Farmers Asked To Return Survey Questionnaire



Farm operators and other entities in Garrett County with noncommericial storage have received a questionnaire requesting information on the amount of storage space available on their farms for grain and oilseed crops.

G. P. Halterman, local ASCS manager, reminds area farmers who have received a copy of the survey questionnaire to return the finished survey to the ASCS office in the Garrett County Courthouse before February 7. "The survey will give more precise figures on grain storage facilities," said Halterman, "and it is very important that this information be returned to us by the February deadline."

This survey is being conducted in Maryland by the U.S. Department of Agriculture to determine storage capacity in different areas of the state. Large carryover stocks have necessitated more space both on and off the farm. To verify off-farm storage space, ASCS and the Statistical Reporting Service will jointly survey commercial facilities.

A large 1986 crop could place considerable pressure on storage facilities, particularly in areas where tight storage conditions existed last fall.

By conducting the survey, ASCS and SRS will determine Maryland's storage capacity for permanent and temporary dry grain or oilseed crops, storage space for ear corn and the storage capacity for high moisture grain.

Oversized Vehicle Bill Killed In Committee

The Senate Judicial Proceedings Committee killed by a large vote a bill which would have required all oversized farm equipment and oversized farm vehicles to be led by a warning vehicle before being moved on a highway in this state. It would also have required liability insurance on any oversized farm vehicles. Slow moving vehicle signs and flashing amber lights would also have been required.

Maryland Farm Bureau Lobbyist Jack Miller credited Senator John N. Bambacus for his support of farmers by sending a letter on their behalf to the committee against the bill. Bambacus sent the letter after receiving phone calls from farmers in Garrett County explaining to him what a handicap this law would be for most of them.

Lobbying in favor of the bill during committee hearings was Emery Hertelendy, a farmer from Easton, whose wife was seriously injured when she drove into an oversized tractor and plow on a public road in 1984. Hertelendy could not get his local legislators to introduce the bill last year, so he appealed to Senator Howard A. Denis (D-Montgomery County) this year and Denis introduced the bill.

The opposition, including the Maryland Farm Bureau, was sympathetic to Hertelendy's tragedy and his goal, but said the bill went too far. "He's a reasonable man who has a point, but Farm Bureau just can't go along with this bill," said lobbyist Miller. "It would be a severe handicap for most farmers moving equipment from one field to another. It would be impossible for the one-man operations."

Miller said that Farm Bureau already advises farmers about safety on the job, including the use of warning vehicles when moving equipment on well-traveled roads. But the group sees no need for warning vehicles on all equipment on all roads.

"From the statistics we have gathered, this kind of requirement just isn't necessary," Miller said. "There are some accidents of this type, but there are not very many of them. The requirement of escort vehicles is just too much."

Farm-Related Bills, Hearings Go Before The House

The House Ways & Means Committee heard a bill on Tuesday which would clarify the Maryland Agricultural Land Preservation Easement law. The purpose of this bill is to make it clear that the restrictions regarding the number of lots permitted a landowner for himself and his children, under the Preservation of Agriculture Program, is the same regardless whether this property is owned by an individual, partnership, or corporation.

Farm Bureau's lobbiest, Jack Miller, explained that the bill is "basically still what we thought we had in the beginning." The restriction is based on the allocation of one one-acre lot for each 20 acres, or portion thereof, and the total number of lots not to exceed 10.

Miller said that the law as it is written should be corrected because of a potential loophole which could allow multi-owners of a farm to develop the whole thing.

Two bills that will be of interest to farmers went before committee yesterday. They are HB236, introduced by Delegate Marilyn Goldwater (D-Montgomery County), involving vehicle laws and penalties that have to do with the transportation of hazardous material; and HB361, introduced by Delegate Frederick C. Rummage (D-PG County), which also deals with the transportation of hazardous materials.

Miller explains that all farm chemicals are considered hazardous materials, and the passage of these bills could create some major problems for chemical dealers, haulers, and farmers, with a potential need for high insurance coverage.

Goldwater's bill states that any person convicted of a violation of any provisions of the Maryland Vehicle Law when driving a vehicle that carries hazardous materials as a cargo on a highway in the state is subject to a fine of not more than $1,000 for a first offense, and a fine of not more than $2,000 for any subsequent offense. This could mean that a driver could receive a large fine for a minor offense.

Rummage's bill would authorize the administrator of the Motor Vehicle Administration to adopt regulations regarding the transportation of hazardous materials. Some of the issues to be addressed by the regulations are: packing, loading, unloading, qualifications of drivers, routing and parking of vehicles, and inspection.

It mandates that a vehicle carrying hazardous material may not be equipped with a retread tire. The penalty for a first offense of these regulations and requirements is a fine not exceeding $25,000 or imprisonment not exceeding one year, or both.

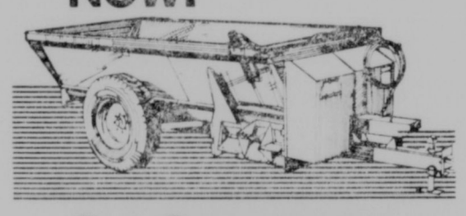
The bill would also establish an advisory committee to review the regulations and advise the department on matters that concern the transportation of hazardous material.

"Agronomy Day" Can Help Improve Crop Production

When the profit margin keeps getting smaller and smaller, farmers need to improve management practices and increase efficiency. This is what it is all about this year at the Garrett County Agronomy Day. A team of agronomy crop specialists will be at the Bittinger Community Building on Tuesday, February 11, to present a variety of farm crop management programs. Dr. Allan Bandel will present a program on the "Economics of Managing Manure." Handling and storing manure is a time consuming operation on most farms. Also, most farms are not getting the maximum fertility return. Dr. Bandel will present as part of his program management practices that will improve the fertility dollar return and will demonstrate how to calibrate a manure spreader.

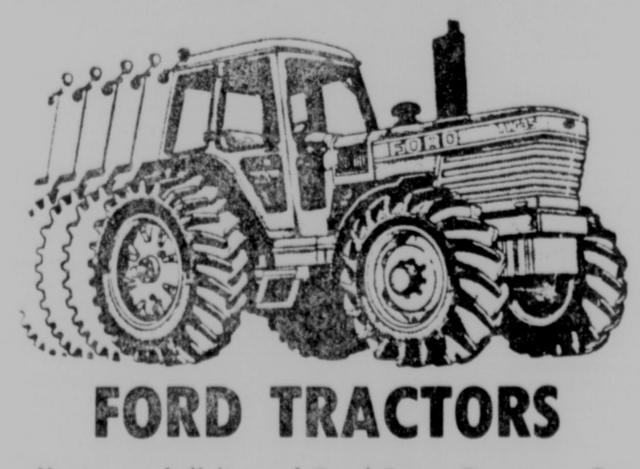
Dr. Les Vough, forage specialist, is noted as one of the top experts in forage production in the easternpart of the United States. Dr. Vough has been running a variety of experimental tests with alfalfa and this year has achieved the eight ton per acre level. Dr. Vough will be presenting a program concerning how to achieve the maximum dollar return in alfalfa production.

Dr. Kim Cassel, animal nutritionist, will be presenting a program on forage quality. This program will be interesting from the standpoint that forage samples have been taken all over the state of Maryland and summarized by quality. A lot of important information has come out of this project which can be of value to farmers.



Dr. Ron Ritter, weed specialist, will be helping farmers to set up their weed control program for the coming year. Dr. Ritter will be targeting on weed problems that occur in the area. Also, Dr. Ritter will be updating farmers on the new herbicides that will be available this year.

Dr. Skip Jubb, director of the Agricultural Experimental Station, will present a program on "What's Happening at the Western Maryland Agricultural Experimental Station."



This educational program will be on Tuesday, February 11, starting at 10:00 a.m. at the Bittinger Community Building. A full coarse chicken dinner is available at $5.00 a person. Reservations must be made by contacting the Garrett County Extension Service at 334-2145.

WVU Extension Continues To Help Farmers Recover From Flood

Teams of West Virginia University Extension faculty are helping farm families in prime agricultural regions to deal with the toughest post-flood decisions: Should we rebuild and resume our operations? If so, how can we do this? If not, what else is there?

Such decisions depend on widely varying individual circumstances, making face-to-face counseling and discussion important, according to WVU associate vice president Rachel B. Tompkins.

"We are sending experts in such fields as farm management, livestock and agronomy to sit down with individual farmers and help them make decisions about where to go from here," she explained.

Dr. Tompkins is WVU's associate vice president for university extension and public service and director of the Cooperative Extension Service. She said that extension faculty will use computer simulations and group information sessions along with individual counseling to help farmers make the best choices.

Extension agricultural economist Gerald V. Eagan is training extension faculty members with computer software developed at the University of Minnesota. This program helps farmers analyze their financial status. Where farm production records are still available, it can help them project the profit potential and debt payment implications of various options.

"This is a planning tool, a way of building on whatever information the farmer has," Dr. Eagan explained. "It is simplified, easy to use and probably more realistic in the way that farmers make decisions than other kinds of software."

Eagan said extension will work closely with the U.S. Farmers Home Administration, local banks and farm credit officials to help them understand the basis for the production decisions that the farmers will be making.

Flood-affected farmers who could use this free decision-making help should register at their county extension office. WVU county agents will notify these persons when sessions are scheduled in their area.

Tompkins said this latest assistance is an outgrowth of extension's earlier role in clean-up operations, information dissemination, and volunteer recruitment and organization immediately following the devastating November 4-5 floods.

"Every county Extension office in the state has a disaster handbook that tells exactly what to do and how to do it. When the floods hit, we were able to get that good information out at once," she said.

County-based extension faculty, some of whom were themselves flood victims, immediately responded to the needs of their communities. Some led search and rescue teams looking for missing persons and livestock. Others organized emergency cleanup, repair and assistance efforts.

Thirty-seven WVU campus-based specialists and agents in non-affected counties went to the severely hit counties—including Hardy, Pendleton, Grant and Tucker—to lend technical expertise, coordinate volunteers or simply pitch in and help where they could.

Based on needs assessments in the flood-stricken counties, state extension administrators decided to concentrate their initial efforts in these four areas:

Restoring feed supplies and fencing for cattle and finding markets for these animals; securing housing for West Virginians left homeless; and "Adopt-a-Family" program to match resources with persons in need; and alleviation of the extreme emotional stress that disaster victims experience.

Each of these efforts has achieved successes and is continuing, says Tompkins. Emergency aid for livestock has grown into a statewide, inter-agency hay donation program. A low-cost housing replacement plan created by extension agricultural engineer Art Selders is gaining acceptance in the flood-ravaged areas. Home economics and 4-H agents and specialists are training assistant workers to more effectively help stressed flood victims.

Extension faculty in community planning and environmental quality are assisting municipal officials in their attempts to rebuild communities in Parsons, Rowlesburg and Albright. The university also is planning an educational conference on flood plain management to help local officials explore their options.

"Even in tragic situations like this, communities have choices. It is our goal to provide them with the means to make informed choices," Tompkins said.

Milk—It Does A Body Good
by Sheila Bender
Maryland Dairy Princess

We are well on our way into 1986. Some resolutions may have already been broken, but there is still time to renew them.

Often after the holiday festivities are over, one misses the family being together, the delicious meals, and of course the tempting desserts. Why not try to make this year more family orientated? The family is the backbone of America—as the saying goes, "The family that prays together, stays together."

By serving your family dairy foods, you are providing them with vitamins and proteins that will benefit their daily needs. Thus producing a happy and healthy family and a great start in 1986.

Delicious meals and desserts can be enjoyed throughout the year. The rush to get things running smoothly again after the holidays can be very stressful, and time-consuming. Yet your family time and health is still a top priority. The following recipes are not only easy to prepare but delicious.

LASAGNA - eight servings

1 package (8 oz.) lasagna noodles
1 pound ground beef
1½ cup chopped onion
2 (8 oz.) cans pizza sauce
1 can (6 oz.) tomato paste
1 teaspoon garlic salt
1½ teaspoon leaf oregano
1 cup cottage cheese
2 cups (8 oz.) shredded Mozzarella cheese
¾ cup grated Parmesan cheese

Preheat over to 350-degrees. Cook lasagna noodles according to directions; drain.

In a skillet cook beef and onion until beef is brown; drain excess fat. Add one can pizza sauce, tomato paste, garlic salt and oregano. Bring to boiling; reduce heat and simmer for 20 to 15 minutes.

In a buttered 12-by-7½-by-2-inch baking dish layer ⅓ noodles, ⅓ beef, and ⅓ of the cheeses. Repeat layers once; then layer remaining can of pizza sauce and top with the remaining cheese. Bake for 30 to 40 minutes.

Allow to stand at room temperature 10 minutes before cutting into squares to serve.

BANANA SPLIT DESSERT

2 or 3 bananas
½ gallon Neopolitan ice cream
1 cup chopped walnuts
1 cup chocolate chips
½ cup butter
2 cups powdered sugar
1½ cups evaporated milk
1 tsp. vanilla
1 pt. dairy whipping cream
1½ graham cracker pie recipe

Cover bottom of 11-by-15-inch pan with graham cracker crust (reserve 1 cup crumbs).

Slice bananas crosswise and layer over crust.

Slice ice cream in ½ inch thick slices and place over bananas. Sprinkle ice cream with 1 cup chopped walnuts. Freeze until firm.

Melt 1 cup chocolate chips and ½ cup butter. Add 1 cup powdered sugar and 1½ cups evaporated milk. Cook mixture until thick and smooth. Cook about 20 to 30 minutes. Remove from heat and add 1 teaspoon vanilla.

Cool chocolate mixture, then pour over ice cream. Freeze until firm.

Whip cream, spread over chocolate layer and top with reserved crumbs. Store in freezer.

Remove about 10 minutes before serving.

Makes about 25 servings.

Agriculture Eyes EPA's Ban On Leaded Gasoline

When the lead drops out, where will agriculture find itself?

That's the question farmers across the country are asking as the U.S. Environmental Protection Agency (EPA) plans to eliminate all lead from gasoline by 1988.

Although many farmers these days are buying diesel-powered equipment, the U.S. Department of Agriculture (USDA) estimates there are 1.7 million gasoline-powered tractors and 308,000 gasoline-powered combines now on farms across the nation. More than half of these will still be in operation in 1988 when the new EPA regulations on gasoline go into effect, according to USDA. Most use leaded gasoline.

Maryland farmers, who are also shifting to diesel-powered equipment, mirror on a smaller scale the national figures for leaded gasoline consumption.

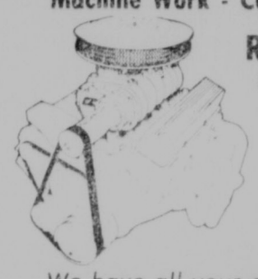
Although some gasoline suppliers conceivably could add small amounts of lead to lead-free gasoline after 1988, farmers should prepare for a possible no-lead future, according to Dr. Larry E. Stewart, agricultural engineer for the University of Maryland's Cooperative Extension Service.

If that is the case, says Stewart, owners and operators of gasoline-powered equipment should keep some of these points in mind.

*On some engines manufactured before 1974, using lead-free gasoline could lead to valve failure if the engine does not have hardened valves and valve seats.

*It takes less than a quarter gram of lead per gallon of gasoline to prevent valve failure.

*Consult your operator's manual to determine if lead-free gasoline can be used with your gasoline-powered equipment. It may be necessary to modify the engine's performance by retarding the ignition timing to accommodate lead-free fuel.



Sticker Puts Farmland Message On The Bumper

A bumper sticker designed to promote awareness of the need for preserving Maryland farmland is now available to Maryland residents. The bumper sticker, which carries the message, "Save Maryland Farmland" is a project of the Maryland Agricultural Land Preservation Foundation. Maryland currently leads the nation in the amount of permanently preserved agricultural land.

"The bumper sticker is needed to make the public aware of the threat to agricultural land and the need to preserve it," said Gerald Talbert, executive director of the Maryland Agricultural Land Preservation Foundation. "It's important that Maryland farmland be saved so that there will always be an adequate local supply of agricultural products here in the state."

Bumper stickers are available free of charge through the Garrett County Planning and Zoning Department's head, John Nelson, and the agricultural preservation advisory board. The car stickers may also be obtained by sending a stamped self-adressed envelope to Farmland Bumper Sticker, Gerald Talbert, Maryland Department of Agriculture, Annapolis, Md., 21401, or by calling 841-5860.

PUBLIC NOTICES

IN MEMORIAM

In loving memory of my father, Ed Lewis, who departed this life two years ago, February 3, 1984.

Memories of days returning,
Of a life when we were young;
Of a dad and mom together,
us around a happy home.
Special moments we have known, that time can never dim.
Fishing by the river,
or singing an old time hymn.
In my memories I can see him, with his lantern all aglow.
For dad worked upon the railroad, in the rain, the cold, the snow.
Then at last when he was older,
it was time to retire.
In my memories I see him, in his chair beside the fire.
There was no time to say farewell, before we had to part.
The pain and sadness that it left,
still lingers in my heart.
And though he's resting now with God,
the memories still live on.
And we thank him for the time we shared, before God called him home.

Dad, we miss you.

Jean and family

HEARING QUIZ

QUESTION: What causes hearing loss, and who should I see about my hearing?

ANSWER: Hearing loss can result from a variety of causes, ranging from such a simple thing as a cerumen in the ear canal to hereditary factors, exposure to noise, the aging process or damage to the middle ear (eardrum or middle ear bones).

A Clinical Audiologist holds a Bachelor's and Master's degree in Audiology, and is qualified to test your hearing, discuss your hearing loss with you, recommend a hearing aid, when necessary, or refer you to an otolaryngologist, a doctor who is a specialist in the areas of Ear, Nose and Throat.

Letter-Writing Contest Noted By Rotary Club

During the International Year of Peace, 1986, Rotary International has announced it wants to give young people a chance to speak out on the subject of peace, and is sponsoring a worldwide Rotary "Letters for Peace" writing contest for all young people who are aged 14-18 years as of December 31, 1985.

Letters should be between 450 and 600 words in length, addressed to any recognized world leader, and submitted to the local Rotary Club by March 1, 1986, for judging. The winning entry of the Club contest will be forwarded to the Rotary district level to be considered for entry into the regional and international segment of the contest.

The letters will be evaluated at the international level to determine the Regional and Grand Prize winners, based on originality of thought, internationality of ideas and effective use of language.

The local winner will receive a $100 savings bond, the district winner a $500 savings bond, and the regional winner a $1,500 cash prize to be used for educational purposes. The International Grand Prize winner will be presented with a cash prize of $10,000, to be used for educational purposes and a five-day all expense-paid trip for two to Epcot Center, Orlando, Fla. The Grand Prize winner also will attend selected Rotary meetings and events, and the winning entry may be considered for possible publication in "The Rotarian", "Revista Rotaria", and in a "Letters for Peace" booklet.

Entries submitted must be original and unpublished and must be accompanied by an official entry form. The entry form and additional detailed information may be obtained by contacting any local Rotary Club member, or Ken Ridder, Oakland Rotary Club president, at 334-3828.

ADVERSE POSSESSION

The law has made a public policy decision that land should be used, and not lie idle. This is the underlying reason for a principle known as "adverse possession". This means that if you use land as your own—even though you don't have a deed or other title document—you will eventually become its owner.

This legal principle does not come into operation in cases where the land is being leased or rented, or if permission in any other way is given by the true owner. Rather, the use of the land by the one claiming adverse possession must meet all of these requirements: the possession must be open, continuous (for the minimum period in each state, usually 15 to 20 years) exclusive, adverse, and notorious. An occasional use of the land is not sufficient to ripen into title by adverse possession.

If you own land which someone else is using without your permission, you could lose title to the land if you wait too long. Don't let this happen to you.

Tax Assistance Offered Free By VITA Program

The 1986 tax filing season marks the 17th year the Internal Revenue Service has sponsored VITA, the Volunteer Income Tax Assistance Program. VITA is designed to provide free tax help to people who need assistance in preparing their basic income tax returns.

VITA focuses on low-income, elderly, handicapped and non-English speaking people who cannot afford professional tax help, particularly those who file simple forms and qualify for the Earned Income Credit. VITA volunteers also alert these taxpayers to other special credits and deductions for which they may be eligible.

The VITA volunteer for Garrett County is John Spencer, Rt. 5, Box 150, Oakland. Persons may make an appointment to see Spencer by telephoning 387-6156.

Persons who visit a VITA center should be sure they bring this year's tax package, wage and earnings statements (Forms W-2, and W-2P) from their employer(s), interest/-dividend/Social Security/State refund statements (Forms 1099), a copy of last year's tax return if available, and other relevant information about their income and expenses.

VITA volunteers receive a three to four-day IRS training course in basic income tax preparation of Forms 1040, 1040A, and 1040EZ and are required to pass a test before assisting taxpayers.

Local Schools In Read-A-Thon By MS Society

Five Garrett County elementary schools are participating in the annual Multiple Sclerosis Read-A-Thon this winter, according to William R. Clow, representing the Western Maryland Office of the Maryland Chapter of the National Multiple Sclerosis Society.

Student participants in the Read-A-Thon secure sponsors and then read as many books as they can from January 14 to February 14. Proceeds from the effort support multiple sclerosis research and client care.

Prizes according to specific levels of donations are awarded to the students, with the grand prize being a ten-speed bicycle.

Schools participating include: Accident, Dennett Road, Grantsville, Yoder, and Broad Ford elementary schools.

Multiple sclerosis is a disease which affects the auto immune system of the body, according to Clow.

School Attendance Down Due To Flue

School attendance in Garrett County has suffered recently due to a large number of cases of the flu.

Loch Lynn Elementary School reported the largest absentee percentage, with 25 percent out on Tuesday. In December, when school attendance is normally down, they had nearly 93 percent attendance.

Kitzmiller Elementary reported 20 percent absent on Tuesday. However, Accident Elementary reported only 6 percent absent, which was about the same as the December average of 94 percent attendance.

Southern High School reported nearly 21 percent absent, with a constant flow of students going home early because of illness. However, Northern High School reported that their attendance was down in December, and has now risen to almost double the December attendance.

The Garrett County Health Department reported that influenza, or the flu, is caused by a virus which enters the body through the nose or mouth and attacks the protective lining in the respiratory tract. It is highly contagious, and can be contracted directly, with a cough or sneeze, or indirectly, by touching objects that infected people have used, such as towels, dishes, or even telephones and toothpaste tubes.

Some precautions which can be taken during the flu season are to avoid crowds, wash hands often, and avoid rubbing the eyes or touching the nose or mouth. One should eat a well-balanced diet with extra fruits and juices, get enough sleep, and exercise regularly, all to keep resistance up.

Early symptoms usually begin about one to four days after exposure, and include fever, chills, headache, body aches, and a general sick feeling. A physician should be contacted if symptoms are severe, persistent, or the condition worsens.

Since the flu is a virus, it cannot be treated with antibiotics. Once it is contracted, one should stay away from others as much as possible, rest in bed to help the body recover, drink fluids to loosen respiratory secretions and replace fluids lost by fever, keep warm, eat nutritious meals, and take aspirin to relieve pain and fever.

However, public health officials have advised that aspirin given to children may increase their risk of developing a rare but serious illness known as Reye Snydrome.

OFF TO THE RACES — Although the ground in Garrett County is now almost bare as a result of four consecutive days of rain and warm temperatures, there was still enough snow Saturday morning to hold a six-mile cross-country ski race at New Germany State Park. Over 70 skiers turned out to participate in the event, which was won by Chris Flavin. Above is a shot of the start of the race, whereby the participants' starts are staggered at 15-second intervals. At left is Dr. William Pope, Mtn. Lake Park, who placed second in the men's 35-49 class, just three seconds behind Emmanuel Birstein. The slopes and meadows may once again be covered this weekend, as a winter storm watch was issued this morning for tonight and tomorrow. Snow is also expected next week.

Judge Sentences Area Men For Drug Charges

Several cases involving drug charges were heard by Chief Judge Fred A. Thayer during Garrett County Circuit Court proceedings last week.

Michael L. Bittinger, 29, Grantsville, was sentenced to a total of two years in the Garrett County Jail and fined $200.

Upon his release from jail, he will be placed on two years supervised probation with the conditions that he pay a fine and court costs, make restitution of $50 to the State of Maryland, and participate in an alcohol/drug rehabilitation program.

A pre-sentence investigation had been ordered for Bittinger following a December 19 hearing when he was found to be guilty of possession of marijuana and two counts of distribution of marijuana.

For the possession charge, Bittinger was sentenced to one year in jail and given a $200 fine. The judge then suspended the sentence.

For each of the distribution charges, he was sentenced to two years. The judge then suspended one year of each of the sentences.

The charges were filed by Tfc. Gary D. Resh and Sgt. C. H. Hinnant following various incidents from April 18 to June 7 on the Glendale Road. According to court documents, marijuana was found in Bittinger's vehicle and on his person. He also distributed the drug to Sgt. Hinnant.

Three counts of maintaining a common nuisance and two counts of possession of marijuana were not prosecuted by

Commissioners Deny College's Funding Request

The Board of Garrett County Commissioners, in the form of a letter, denied additional county funding for the present fiscal year to Garrett Community College.

GCC Comptroller John Culp met with Garrett County Clerk Robert J. Fousek on January 22 to request the funds as a result of the college's budget being revised.

In his letter to Culp, Fousek stated that he had several concerns as to the legality of the request. "As you are probably aware, the Annotated Code of Maryland, Articles of Education, Section 16-401, regarding fiscal matters, requires that the college prepare and submit to the county governing body their operating budget," the letter read.

He stated that process had occurred in May of 1985 and said that as far as he could determine it culminated on May 16, 1985, when the college reduced their cash request from $590,533 to $565,000. He added that the commissioners, in adopting the county levy on June 25, 1985, included the $565,000 funding request.

Fousek continued, "In further review, I believe the revised budget is deficient legally. The revised budget you gave to me is dated November 13, 1985, with the detail pages dated December 17, 1985, was approved by the GCC Board of Trustees at their November meeting."

The county clerk cited Section 16-401 (e) (Action by county governing body) the county governing body shall review and approve the budget of the

Oakland Man Seeks $35,610,000 In Suit Against County Officials

An Oakland man filed suit this week in United States District Court against four county officials and the Garrett County Sheriff's Department and is seeking a total of $35,610,000 in punitive and compensatory damages.

Jerry A. Cline, 34, filed the suit with the Office of the Clerk in the U.S. Courthouse in Baltimore and has named State's Attorney James Sherbin, State's Attorney Investigator William Ferry, Court Commissioner Charles Pariseau and former Garrett County Personnel Director Paul Shockey, along with the Garrett County Sheriff's Department in the 11 various counts.

The counts filed against the defendants include malicious prosecution, abuse of due process of law, abuse of civil rights and defamation of character.

Cline alleges that the incidents that prompted him to file the suit began in 1979 and continued through 1985.

The plaintiff states that on or about 1979, Shockey, who was at that time an advisor (personnel director) to the Garrett County Commissioners asked him to seek, inquire into, and keep a record of any and all illegal and/or criminal activities instituted and performed upon the part of the defendants, the Garrett County Sheriff's Department, meaning deputies and/or anyone affiliated with that department.

He said Shockey entered into an agreement with him verbally that all data, criminal or illegal, and corruption on the part of the sheriff's department concerning all personnel should be reported to Shockey. Cline said he was further instructed not to divulge any of the acquired information outside of Shockey's office. Cline further stated that there might or could already be corruption in the department.

The plaintiff stated at that time Shockey said his sole concern was to help save the Garrett County taxpayers money by relinquishing most of the sheriff's department personnel if there was corruption in the department.

Cline later stated that he wanted no money or reward from Shockey and said he found later that Shockey was accumulating information for the sole purpose of his political career. He said that after the initial stated investigation, Shockey entered in the running for the position of sheriff.

Further, the plaintiff states that while he was actually conducting an investigation of the allegations of corruption, he suffered harassment, threats, assaults and batteries upon himself from the defendants.

He said that upon threats and actual assault and battery from the defendants at the sheriff's department, he stopped his inquiry and reported everything to the Maryland State Police, the Justice Department and the FBI.

Cline further stated that assault and battery was committed on him by Deputy David Crossland in the state of West Virginia where he sustained fractures of his ribs, cuts, bruises, scrapes and much pain and suffering, including the loss of his automobile. He said he reported the incident to the sheriff's department and they refused to arrest or punish Crossland and protected him from any criminal procedure. He said he was also refused assistance from Pariseau and the state's attorney's office.

The plaintiff stated that he finally received assistance from Sgt. Charles Hinnant of the Maryland State Police and the West Virginia State Police for the arrest and apprehension of Crossland. The state of West Virginia issued the arrest warrant and Cline stated that Crossland pled nolle contendre (no contest) to the charges.

He said he was continuously harassed to drop charges against the deputy by Deputy Charles Nolan and friends or suffer severe consequences, meaning arrests, incarcerations and further batteries. Cline said he demanded that the deputies cease and desist from such actions.

The plaintiff alleges malicious prosecution in the first count and names Sherbin, Ferry, Pariseau and Shockey. Cline contends that on or about November 27, 1980, Pariseau, in

Shockey Presents Priorities List For Bridge Repair

Garrett County Roads Administrator Paul Shockey presented a priorities list of bridges that have been recommended for repair or replacement in Garrett County. The state requires an evaluation of all bridges in the state every three years.

The administrator based his priorities list on school bus routes and traffic volumes and told the commissioners he plans to develop additional plans and recommendations for addressing the bridges in question.

The county now has 115 bridges in the county roads system.

Harris-Smariga, an engineering firm, undertook the study for the county to determine which bridges were in need of repair or replacement and which bridges would have to have weight limits reduced to meet specific state and federal requirements.

CATHOLIC DAUGHTERS SUPPORT HOSPICE — Hospice of Garrett County, an organization which provides support and counseling to terminally ill patients and their families, recently received strong support from Court 2209, Catholic Daughters of America, Oakland, in the form of a $1,000 donation. The check was presented at a recent meeting of the organization at which Wayne Johnson, executive director of Hospice of Garrett County, was the guest speaker. Johnson presented a film strip entitled "Choices", which revealed the various forms of care offered through Hospice. He also acknowledged the support of the Hospice board of directors, the volunteers who serve with the program, and the medical and nursing staff at Garrett County Memorial Hospital. Above, Brenda Marucci, first vice regent for Court 2209, presents the check to Johnson.

Meeting Slated By DECD For Coal Industry

A meeting has been scheduled in Annapolis for February 12 on the subject of how the State of Maryland can assist the Western Maryland Coal Industry through business marketing. The meeting was scheduled at the insistence of the Board of Garrett County Commissioners, according to John G. Braskey, commissioner.

Scheduled participants in the session will include John Carey, president, and other members of the Maryland Coal Association; Tim Torba and James Pfeiffer of the Business and Industrial Development Office from the Department of Economic and Community Development; and Harold R. Zassenhaus, from the Office of International Trade, Department of Economic Development and Community Development.

Topics of discussion at the meeting will include:

1) How can Maryland effectively market domestically the coal it produces?

2) Can Maryland's industrial marketing offices in Europe and Japan be effective tools for finding new customers for Maryland coal?

3) Is the establishment and use of an Export Trading Company composed of Maryland Coal producers an effective marketing tool for the future?

4) Does an export marketing program for Western Maryland coal qualify for cooperative grant assistance from the State?

Commissioner Braskey said he is hopeful that DECD will take measures to correct the ailing coal industry, especially

Grantsville Man Cited For Illegal Bear Possession

A Grantsville man was arrested last Friday and charged with the possession of a nongame wildlife animal and was cited for three additional violations, including the battery of a police officer, according to reports filed by the Maryland Department of Natural Resources Police.

Charles Blake Garlitz, 43, was arrested at 12:30 p.m. Friday following a tip and the use of a search warrant which had been issued earlier in the week. DNR police said they expect to make arrests this week of those responsible for killing the radio-collared sow which was killed in the New Germany State Park last month.

A $250 citation was issued for the possession of the bear. Investigating DNR officer Rich Towers said that during the search other evidence was uncovered and Garlitz was also charged with possession of an illegal deer head for which he was issued a $200 citation, and keeping game birds (pheasant) without a permit for which he was issued a $50 citation.

Towers said at the time of the arrest the suspect grabbed Officer Timothy Doolan around the neck and was subdued and handcuffed by Towers and another DNR policeman.

Garlitz was released on his own recognizance for the battery charge following a bond hearing in Grantsville last week.

County, State Officials Meet, Discuss Coal, Whitewater Races

The Board of Garrett County Commissioners were in Annapolis last week to attend a MACo legislative meeting and to meet with various state heads to discuss the deteriorating coal industry in Garrett County, the 1989 World Whitewater Championships and the ORV trail plans.

The meeting on the local coal industry was attended by Dr. Paul Massicot, director of Energy Administration; Anthony F. Abar, director of the Bureau of Mines; Steven Layton, chief of the inspection of enforcement for the Bureau of Mines; George C. Edwards, District 1-A delegate; Elwood Groves, county commissioner; John Braskey, commissioner; Tom Jones, economic development director; and John Nelson, planning director.

The purpose of the meeting was to discuss how agencies of DNR, especially the Bureau of Mines, can assist the coal industry in Garrett County, according to the local officials.

The commissioners stated that they were very concerned "in respect to the rapidly deteriorating state of affairs in the local coal industry."

The county heads said they believed that public sector assistance to the ailing industry could have maximum impact on the following areas: 1) marketing assistance, 2) rail rate intervention, 3) mining operations regulatory relief, particularly obtaining permits and 4) maximize coal utilization.

The commissioners stated that they acknowledged that DNR was not the state agency which conventionally becomes involved in matters pertaining to marketing and rail rate making. They said discussions were already underway with the Department of Economic and Community Development and the congressional delegation on such matters.

However, the county officials felt that DNR was the proper place to turn in the latter two areas—regulatory relief and utilization.

DNR officials told the county officials that the Bureau of Mines is restricted statutorily from becoming involved in matters other than health and safety of miners and environmental regulation and said, "Consequently, issues such as marketing, rail rates and utilization cannot be addressed by the Bureau of Mines."

Dr. Massicot mentioned that he was aware of an initiative being undertaken by certain power utilities in the area of rail rate questioning and said that PEPCO might be a good ally in that regard. He also briefly discussed the power plant siting initiative and past attempts both legislatively, regulatorily and voluntarily to use Maryland coal by the state's major coal users.

The remainder of the discussion centered on what the Bureau of Mines could do to "lighten the regulatory load" on the industry. Specific attention was given to streamlining the permitting process. Mr. Abar outlined the various steps involved in obtaining a permit. He emphasized the substantial input that is required by law from government agencies other than the Bureau. He said that often the coordination process is a "real time consumer."

Abar requested that the county commissioners work with the Soil Conservation District, for example, to streamline their own review process.

He also stated that he was in the process of developing an informational guidebook for use by coal operators and their engineering staff or consultant. He said he believed the guide would be of assistance in shortening the design and permit review duration. He further stated that it was an aid being used in a few other producing states.

The group then reviewed the present staffing of the Bureau of Mines. It was pointed out that many of the new positions which have opened in the Bureau during the past 10 years were merely lateral transfers of authority from another state regulatory office, such as Water Resources Administration.

County officials then voiced an interest in seeing a shift in personnel attention toward permit assistance during this period of substantial decline in mining activity.

Sale Of Conrail Passes In U.S. Senate Tuesday

The administration's $1.2 billion plan to sell Conrail, the government-owned freight railroad, passed in the U.S. Senate on Tuesday. It has now been sent to the House of Representatives, where its future is uncertain.

Both Maryland senators, Republican Charles McC. Mathias and Democrat Paul S. Sarbanes, voted against the passage of the bill.

Senator Howard M. Metzenbaum (D-Ohio) raised a budgetary objection to the bill, declaring that it was not a technicality but a move to prevent "violating the budget as the first act of the United States Senate" in 1986. The sale of Conrail to Norfolk Southern Corp. would yield the government $1.2 billion but cost it tax revenue estimated at $174 million by the Treasury Department and $400 million by the Congressional Budget Office.

The Treasury Department said that the government would gain $24 million in revenue through 1990 by selling Conrail to the 43-member Morgan Stanley Investor Group, which has offered $1.4 billion, instead of selling to Norfolk Southern.

Transportation Secretary Elizabeth Dole says Norfolk Southern Corp., a Norfolk, Va., holding company that already operates two railroads, would bolster Conrail with financial strength and rail experience. She says it represents the best guarantee of no recurrence of the threat to shippers that arose a decade ago when the Penn Central went under.

Her opinions are not shared by many in Maryland, though. An aide to Senator Sarbanes said that no one was left in Maryland to lobby against the sale to Norfolk Southern. "Labor unions, railroads, coal companies, everyone lobbied against it," he said.

CHILD SAFETY PROGRAM — Garrett County Sheriff's Department will be presenting a Child Safety Program to area schools. The program, featuring Safety Pup, was initiated by the National Child Safety Council. It was redesigned to fit the needs of the county, and will be presented to children in kindergarten through third grade. Sheriff M. Van Evans expressed his appreciation to the area rescue squad, Department of Social Services, and area doctors and nurses for volunteering their time to assist in the program. Mettiki Coal Corporation and Fred E. Beachy Lumber Company donated time and materials for the program, and Tom Gearhart volunteered his time as puppeteer. Pictured above are Sheriff Evans, Gearhart, and Chief Deputy Harland Tichnell with puppets Safety Pup, Cecil, Pete, Midnight and Sassy.

Pro-rated Fee For Tag Renewal Now In Effect

Tag renewal applications are now being mailed to owners of all classes of vehicles and the applications will show a pro-rated registration fee and new monthly registration date.

Some confused vehicle owners are already calling the Treasurer's Office in Oakland and inquiring about the fee.

"Registration fees have not changed," said Arzella Parsons, treasurer. "Due to the new staggered registration system, 85% of Maryland's registered vehicles will be assigned a registration month based on the first letter of the owner's last name which will evenly distribute the registration renewal process throughout the year."

New license plates will also be phased in beginning in October.

"When renewing your registration in February and March, you'll receive validation stickers for the rear plate only," said Parsons. "Two stickers will be issued per vehicle; one designating the month of renewal, the other designating the year."

MVA officials stressed that the staggered registration will not change the cost of tags, rather some stickers will be good for 6 months, while some will be good for 18 months. The cost will be equal when the staggering process is finally complete.

Officials say the benefits of staggering renewals is faster service, shorter lines at MVA offices, the continuation of registering by mail and an efficient, automated system allowing quicker updating of information.

A new computerized system is located in the Treasurer's Office to handle the registrations.

Parsons stated that those obtaining their tags at her office will be charged an additional $1.25 to offset administrative costs and the cost of the computer system, but she noted that registrations can still be mailed to save the additional charge.

Two Area Drivers Charged With DWI

Two local accidents last week resulted in drivers being charged with driving while under the influence of alcohol.

Steve A. Burns, 18, Oakland, was charged by Tfc. C.R. Chaney following a single-vehicle accident at 9:10 p.m. Friday at P.J.'s Discount Liquor Store.

According to reports filed by the Maryland State Police at McHenry, Burns was driving a 1978 Ford Econoline 150 when it traveled through the parking lot of the store, jumped a sidewalk, and struck the wall of the liquor store.

Burns was also charged with negligent driving.

Tfc. David W. Broadwater charged Larry P. Tarr, 50, McHenry, following an accident involving a parked vehicle on Rt. 219 North last Thursday.

According to police reports, Tarr was driving a 1983 Jeep Wagoneer at approximately 10:15 p.m. when it left the road and struck a 1980 Chevrolet Monte Carlo parked on the northbound shoulder.

The vehicle then continued on, striking a signpost and running into a ditch.

The parked vehicle was owned by Clarence A. Mayles, Deer Park.

Tarr was also charged with leaving the marked roadway.

Three people were treated and released from Garrett County Memorial Hospital following a two-vehicle accident on Route 135 Tuesday.

Police said Berlin W. Friend, 31, Corinth, W.Va., had stopped his car in the westbound lane and was waiting to turn left. Virginia L. Price, 18, Franklin, W.Va., was also westbound, and failed to control the speed of her vehicle, causing it to strike Friend's vehicle in the rear.

Police said the vehicle was pushed into the eastbound lane where it hit a My-O-Tire Services truck driven by Charles R. Shaffer, 54, Kingwood, W.Va.

Tfc. L.R. Rosage investigated the incident, charging Friend with operating a vehicle with a worn tire, and Price with failure to reduce speed to avoid a collision.

Both drivers and a passenger, Kelly Phipps, 18, South Point, Ohio, were treated and released from the hospital.

Young Local Man Guilty Of Theft, Breaking Entering

A young McHenry man was found to be guilty of charges of breaking and entering and theft during Garrett County District Court proceedings last week.

Jeffrey B. Feick, 23, was sentenced to 18 months with the Department of Corrections for the breaking and entering charge. The judge then suspended 12 months of the sentence and placed him on three years supervised probation.

For the theft charge, Feick was sentenced to 18 months, concurrent with the first sentence. The judge then suspended 12 months of the sentence, placing Feick on three years supervised probation. However, if restitution is made by Feick's parents, the probation period will be reduced to one year.

A charge of burglary with intent to steal was nolle prosequi due to a plea agreement.

The charges against Feick were filed by Deputy Philip K. Buckel after an August 22, 1985 incident at Swanton.

According to court documents, Feick entered the dwelling of Ralph T. Feick and stole some of his property, including a 1985 Ford pickup truck, a snowmobile, a lawn mower, and a canoe.

Feick's attorney was Henry R. Adams.

In other District Court cases, a pre-sentence investigation was ordered for Vickie L. McCrobie, 18, Friendsville, after the judge found her to be guilty of eight counts of misdemeanor theft.

McCrobie pled guilty to the charges, which were originally eight counts of forgery. However, the charges were changed to misdemeanor thefts. Eight counts of forgery against McCrobie were dismissed.

The charges were filed by Michael R. Mattingly, Oakland City Police Department, after a December 17 incident in Friendsville.

According to court records, McCrobie stole a money bag from Kimberly Wilburn, Friendsville. The bag contained $63 in cash, two savings account books, and 26 checks made payable to Wilburn.

McCrobie then went to the First United National Bank in Friendsville and cashed eight of the checks.

McCrobie was represented by John R. Toston, public defender.

The judge found the Deer Park Sportsman's Club to be guilty of selling alcohol without a license.

A second count of selling without a license and a charge of selling alcohol on Sunday were not prosecuted by the court in exchange for a plea of guilty to the first charge.

The complainant was Phillip A. Ottaviani, Maryland State Police, Cumberland. The charge was made following a November 17 incident at the club.

Charges filed by Ottaviani against Ronald G. Harvey, Glenn D. Collins, 30; Clifford Tasker, 44; Wanda D. Hinebaugh, 46; and James A. McCroskey, 32, all of Deer Park, were not prosecuted by the court in exchange for a guilty plea for the corporation.

A bench warrant was recently ordered for Terry L. Ford, 23, Oakland, when he failed to appear in court for a theft charge filed by Detective Richard Kutchman of the Garrett County Sheriff's Department.

Robert R. Rhodes, 49, Deer Park, was found to be not guilty of a charge of battery filed by Randy C. Resh after an August 13 incident involving Rhodes' father.

Two counts of assault against Rhodes were not prosecuted by the court because the complainant, Burton E. Rhodes, failed to appear in court.

Rhodes was represented by Robert E. Watson.

Cases placed on the stet docket included a battery charge against Tracy L. Buckley, 18, Oakland, filed by Mary L. Buckley, and three counts of battery and one assault charge against Mary Buckley, filed by Tracy Buckley.

A charge of battery against Michael J. Miller, 21, Mtn. Lake Park, was nolle prosequi because the complainant, Carla R. Miller also of Mtn. Lake Park, did not wish to press charges.

HSA To Discuss Voucher System For Veterans

Local officials are in Hagerstown today for the quarterly meeting of the Health Systems Agency of Western Maryland and the main topic of discussion was expected to be a free-choice voucher system for veterans. The system was initially proposed by Garrett County Commissioner Ernest Gregg Jr.

Attending the meeting today besides Commissioner Gregg are Commissioner Elwood Groves and Paul Shockey, president of the governing body of the Health Systems Agency.

At the last HSA meeting, it was noted by Gregg that in view of the proposed new Veteran Administration Hospital in Baltimore, estimated to cost $88 million, he proposed that the agency voice an opinion supporting a free-choice voucher system for veterans in Maryland.

HSA discussed the issues facing veterans as they seek acute hospital care which include the waiting period to enter a veteran hospital, the long travel distance for family and friends, and the emotional trauma for the veteran associated with being a great distance away from home.

Commissioner Gregg moved to authorize staff to prepare a letter from the agency supporting a free-choice voucher system which would permit the veteran to select the hospital of his choice. A letter was sent to to Governor Harry Hughes in late November urging him to consider the implementation of the voucher system.

Lease Renewed For Cranesville Swamp By GCC

Garrett Community College has renewed its lease for the Cranesville Swamp with the Nature Conservancy.

The purpose for leasing the Cranesville Swamp is to provide GCC students an outdoor learning laboratory. The swamp will be used for education and research in a variety of curricular areas such as biology, dendrology, ecocology, ecology, anthropology, art and many other areas.

Dr. David Puzzuoli and James Mullan of GCC met with the local Cranesville Swamp Committee on January 30 at the Faith Methodist Church in Cranesville. Committee members attending were Judy Sconyers, Eleanor Teets, Susan Sisler, Front Cumba, Glenn Windell, Marshall Milles, Stephen Perrine, Gail Perrine, Wes Lovelace, Alice Eary, Paul Eary and Rev. Berlin Wilhelm.

Discussions were held on increasing the utilization of the swamp for educational purposes under the direction of GCC. Dr. Puzzuoli said the objectives of such programs would be directed toward adult and continuing education, junior and senior high school students, as well as any group or individuals interested in learning about the swamp and its uniqueness.

Mullan read a letter from Edward Maquire, chairman of the West Virginia chapter of the Nature Conservancy, which outlined the chapter's position on the swamp and suggested activities for increased utilization of the swamp.

Those desiring more information about the Cranesville Swamp may call Mullan at 387-6666.

SHS Students Conducting Stop Smoking Program

For students in 83 Maryland High Schools, including Southern High School, Valentine's Day will mean more than candy and lace hearts this year. These students will be pledging to help stop smoking at their schools through an American Heart Association program called "Save-A-Sweet-Heart."

The pledging is one activity of the 11-week extracurricular smoking intervention program which leads to a day of no smoking on Valentine's Day. Students who smoke pledge not to smoke on Save-A-Sweet-Heart (SASH) Day and non-smokers pledge not to begin smoking within the next year. Each student who pledges receives a button that reads, "I'm Kissable, I Don't Smoke."

When the American Heart Association began working to develop an effective smoking intervention program, it had to research the predominant reasons why young people begin to smoke, why they continue, and how these influences can be counteracted.

Aware of the effects of two obstacles in the fight against teenage smoking—peer pressure and advertising—the American Heart Association developed its SASH program. The program's focus is to associate non-smoking with images attractive to teenagers and to create supportive environment for smokers who choose to quit.

All activities for the SASH program, including SASH Day activities, are managed completely by students. At Southern, the Health Occupation Class is coordinating the activities.

Despite a decline in smoking, smoking is still the major contributing factor in approximately 325,000 deaths each year. Maryland teenagers are a part of the three million teenagers and 54 million adults who smoke in this country. Cigarettes are used daily by more high school seniors than any other drug. In fact, 12% of all students between the ages of 12 and 18 are regular cigarette smokers and 26% of girls 17 to 18 report regular cigarette use, according to the Heart Association.

"Most teenagers have no intention of becoming regular smokers when they start experimenting with cigarettes," said Mark M. Applefeld, M.D., president of the American Heart Association—Maryland Affiliate. "However, by the time they reach their later teens, many find they are addicted."

This is the second year for the SASH program as a nationwide Heart Association campaign. For more information persons may call the American Heart Association at 685-7074.

Schlosnagle Is Candidate For Office Of Mayor

Spencer Schlosnagle, the youngest member of the Friendsville Town Council, has announced that he is a candidate in the election for Mayor of Friendsville.

A graduate of Northern High School, Schlosnagle is presently attending Garrett Community College, majoring in Business Administration. Having been a leader in many activities since high school, he is currently president of the Garrett County Democratic Club, president of the Governor's Youth Advisory Council representing the state of Maryland, a member of the Grace Lutheran Church Council, and a member of the Friendsville Town Council.

Town Councilman Schlosnagle realizes the importance of the issues surrounding the election of mayor of Friendsville. Issues such as the raising of Friendsville's water rates. Schlosnagle feels that although the town carries a deficit, placing the hardship on the residents of Friendsville is not the answer. Schlosnagle contacted various state and national officials for possible financial assistance to help maintain and upgrade the water treatment plant.

Another issue Schlosnagle thinks is important is the development of a town park, as well as expanding and beautifying the town and community of Friendsville.

He would like to bring these issues to the public's awareness by holding a public debate with the other candidate for mayor. In this way Schlosnagle hopes to solve two problems: It would give the public a broader scope of the issues in order to elect the best candidate, and it would put a stop to the rumor that age has anything to do with one's leadership ability.

Hospice Board Of Directors Convenes

The board of directors for Hospice of Garrett County, a non-profit organization which provides care and counseling for the terminally ill and their families, met January 23.

Plans for the annual Winter Frolic dinner and dance at Silver Tree Inn, slated for January 25, were completed. It was noted that 120 reservations had been received at that time.

A committee composed of Wayne Johnson, executive director; Richard Peake, and Alice Vitez was appointed to update the by-laws. Among the changes they will consider will be revising the number of board members, a logo or seal, and making provision for the executive director position.

A meeting with Lawrence Beck, administrator of Garrett County Memorial Hospital, and Charlotte Bock, director of nurses, with Wayne Johnson to discuss coordination of efforts by the two agencies was noted.

It was noted that the second Hospice newsletter will be distributed in March.

Fund-raising projects for 1986 were proposed by Johnson, who noted that he had spoken to a number of area service organizations about the Hospice program. He said he is willing to speak to other groups and may be contacted to discuss this at 334-8111 or 895-3111.

A letter requesting support and new members was presented. Some changes were made and it was noted that the membership drive would begin soon. An extensive mailing list is being compiled, however persons not receiving a copy of the letter and desiring to join the organization or obtain more information may call one of the above numbers.

Just So Much . . .

Although the effects of the Gramm-Rudman legislation, which was signed into law by President Reagan late last year, will be profound, and in some cases, negative, we are compelled to note our support of the measure.

It was in the days of Franklin Roosevelt that a number of expensive social programs began and it was during the Lyndon Johnson administration that dozens of new giveaway efforts were initiated. The philosophy behind these programs was, and still is, noteworthy. Unfortunately, in the application of them, there has been widespread abuse and waste.

The big question has always been just how far can and should government go to provide money and free services to its people? When does it become such a burden upon the government that it can no longer be continued?

There is no question that many persons need and deserve government assistance. Although the concept of "survival of the fittest" may have appeal to some, we cannot accept this philosophy. As human beings we have a responsibility to care for those less fortunate than ourselves. The truly needy, those who are unemployed and cannot find work, those who are elderly or ill and cannot work, those mothers who are suddenly left alone with their children and without an income, are among the many who need and and should receive the help of others.

In our opinion, it is not the philosophy behind these various social programs that is at fault. It is the abuse and waste that exists in these programs that is responsible for most of our huge deficit. Cutting back the funding of many of these programs we see as a necessity, however we hope that even more emphasis is placed on eliminating the abuse and waste. While we have an obligation to come to the aid of those truly in need, we do not believe that we have an obligation to support those who can be productive, working citizens, but simply choose not to be. The crackdown on crimes such as welfare fraud and the like must continue, at an even greater pace. Those truly needy persons who have slipped through the system somehow and are now being denied aid must likewise be identified and assisted.

As Commissioner Ernie Gregg stated in last week's issue of The Republican, we are now being forced to deal with a problem that began over 20 years ago. There is only so much money to go around, and our federal government has stretched its credit far beyond its limits.

Letters to the Editor

To the Editor:

My entire family and I, as well as many of our friends, are appalled at the wanton "murder" of the two pregnant bears in your area by James Spiker and Dennis Chapman. It wasn't sport, it was killing two hibernating pregnant bears and it is against the law.

These two men didn't even have to appear in court and were fined only $250.00—a travesty of justice! It should be a fine of at least $1,000.00, it seems to me. Now we are nine bears short of what we could have had. Please do something about saving the bears in your mountains.

Lets do something about cruel, irresponsible people and save our wildlife before it is too late.

Thank you.

E.L. Allender
Timonium

Editor's note: The following is a letter from the Foxtown Hunting Club, Bittinger, which was sent to Delegate George Edwards and Senator John Bambacus.

The recent, senseless killing of two female bears, carrying a total of seven fetuses, depicts a glaring deficiency in the State game laws in regards to punishment for violators. A maximum fine of $250.00 is not nearly severe enough to punish the perpetrators of such heinous acts.

The Foxtown Hunting Club was formed as a protectorate of hunting privileges on approximately 1,000 acres, belong to the Bloch family, located along the Accident-Bittinger Road. It now contains most of the private land located between the Accident-Bittinger Road, the Foxtown Road and the Dung Hill Road. The club currently has approximately one hundred members and the great majority of members are landowners and residents of Garrett County, residing in or near the area of the Hunting Club. Bear sightings have occurred on the land controlled by the club.

Al Bourgeois, State Wildlife Biologist, attended the annual meeting of the Club just prior to the two incidents of bear killings, gave a slide presentation and spoke about the State's efforts to restore a bear population in Garrett County. Having been recently informed of their efforts, we are much more sympathetic with their cause and have a better understanding of bear habitat requirements and behavior.

The State of Maryland is blessed with an area, particularly Garrett County, where wildlife abounds and we are fortunate to be able to enjoy the sport of hunting. We recognize that State management and game laws are essential for the preservation of game animals which is evidenced by the callous slaughter of two bears. We encourage you to introduce legislation and/or to support revision of the hunting regulations to provide for much stiffer means of punishment that will act as a deterrent to those that have a flagrant disregard for the law. These people certainly cannot call themselves sportsmen and only deprive others of the joy and privilege of observing the animals in the wild and the opportunity for a fruitful, legitimate hunting experience.

Sincerely yours,
Gorman Beitzel
President

To the Editor:

I share the outrage of Garrett County citizens over the slaughter of the two sow bears and their seven unborn cubs. Without question, these were degenerate acts.

I likewise share in the efforts of sportsmen and wildlife officials to stiffen the penalties for all such irresponsible acts of destruction. Legislators are urged to pass the proper laws.

I applaud the unselfish contributions, by organizations and individuals, to the reward fund. Our togetherness will surely see a quick end to all such wildlife destruction.

But, is the priority of our concern correct?

I am outraged at the thoughtless destruction of human fetuses. Should not the abortion of human fetuses generate a more emotional reaction than the destruction of unborn bear cubs? Where are our letters to the legislators to stiffen the all too liberal laws of abortion?

I was outraged when a newborn was abandoned in the parking lot of the Country Club Mall recently. Should not we have responded with unselfish contributions to support and encourage a confused mother?

Our togetherness can bring an end to all such callous destruction of the human fetus.

Juris V. Reneslacis,
Kitzmiller

To the Editor:

It is commendable there is such a public outcry over the shooting of the two bears. What the subjects did was a deplorable act and deserves punishment to the fullest extent of the law. There can never be justification for the senseless killing of animals; especially those who have unborn fetuses.

Most people who cry out against the senseless killing of animals fail to cry out when a more heinous crime is being committed daily in abortion clinics and hospitals all over America—the killing of unborn babies; babies that can offer no defense or exercise their rights as human beings. Over one million babies are aborted in America each year and, for the most part, the senseless killing causes very little protest. There is very little cry for justice for those murdered babies; no cries for rewards to find the guilty, or for the arrest and convictions of those people involved in these killings.

Perhaps I am carrying the parallels too far, and the comparisons are not that similar, but the fact remains, the killing of babies, whether legal or illegal, is a heinous act. Has America fallen so far as to consider animal fetuses above human fetuses? Life, no matter human or animal, is very precious.

The millions of babies that have been murdered by abortion are calling for justice and one day the guilty will be brought to justice; just as those involved in the killing of the bears will be brought to justice.

Sincerely yours,
Jack L. Michaels Jr.
Mtn. Lake Park

To the Editor:

I want to commend Mrs. Snyder for her letter in last week's Republican. She has a good point. Millions of human fetuses have died mercilessly, unrespected and unwanted. This is even encouraged by our Garrett County Health Department. These human fetuses are not considered human beings until they are born, breathing and indicate life will continue. The big issue about the bear fetuses referred to them as being bears. The bears are getting more respect than humans.

Last week's letters pitying the bears were from people either out of the county or ones who do not have livestock to be preyed on by the bears. The DNR is catering to people who want to make Garrett County a playground at the expense of the tax-paying residents.

This is also true of the Youghiogheny River corridor. Now legislation is being considered that would set penalties for killing non-game animals equal to or sometimes greater than is imposed on drinking murders.

You are crying the blues about nine bears and giving good graces to murdering millions of innocent, helpless human beings. Which are we trying to conserve—people or animals? This is conspiracy.

Homer Mellott

To the Editor:

One cannot help but doubt the integrity of the judicial system of the State of Maryland after viewing the recent sentences meted out by judges in Western Maryland. A few examples are: 1. Drug dealers in Garrett County let off with a bare slap on the wrist. 2. Most of those found guilty of DWI have received nothing more than a small fine. 3. A drunken driver who took four lives and still got only a small fine—not even a suspension of driving rights, and; 4. Those caught who had murdered sleeping bears got only a small fine, and were not even identified publicly. Why offer a reward to those who turn in criminals when the reward is far greater than the fine?

The judges that are supposed to be serving all the people of Garrett County should take note that in other places in this country recall has been used by the citizenry to remove judges from office who refuse to make the punishment fit the crime.

Maybe our legislators should be considering laws that would require these judges to stop showing favoritism in their sentencing or be removed from office. Perhaps the people should have a voice in the selection of these judges rather than it being done by the governor where only politics is involved and not the will of the people.

Name withheld by request

Dear Name Withheld:

We did identify those responsible for killing the bears. See our January 23 issue, front page.

Also, even though the reward fund greatly exceeds the fine, we have no intention of making the reward itself larger than the fine. Any pledged monies left over will be used for future such incidents. (Hopefully there will be none).

Editor

To the Editor:

The unconscionable individuals responsible for the grisly slaughter of the two hibernating female bears and their seven unborn cubs in Garrett County on January 6, and 13 need to taste their own medicine; i.e. while they lie awake they ought to be skinned alive. (Forget about shooting them first at point-blank, as then the punishment would never equal the crime). After all, these men most likely are not pregnant.

Note: The legislators are just as responsible. A $250.00 fine with no mandatory court appearance is an absolute farce. How about "an eye for an eye and a tooth for a tooth," in addition to a prohibitive fine increase.

Valerie Bruch
Bethesda

To the Editor:

We never cease to wonder about the inconsistant sentences rendered by our judges. One of the basic principles of our laws, if we should be taken before the court, is that we are presumed to receive equal justice for all. However, this premise does not seem to apply to the courts of Garrett County.

We were all appalled recently by the tragic death of four persons by a drunken driver, who will not serve any time in prison. Is the value we now put on human life so cheap that the person that takes the lives of others can go free? What if he had used a gun to kill his victims, would his sentence be the same?

In another instance two persons have been convicted of throwing a light into the fields, apparently they caused no injury or damage to anyone, but are given a prison sentence. Is this a greater crime than taking the lives of four innocent persons? Where is the equal justice? Are we more interested in protecting animals than we are in protecting life? Is this drunken driver going to be permitted to go out and wipe out another family on the highway? Where are our priorities when human life is involved?

Daniel Ulrich

To the Editor:

I have seen nothing in your newspaper concerning Mandatory Seat Belt Legislation, yet there are bills that have been submitted concerning same. I am afraid that we will wake up several weeks from now with a Mandatory Seat Belt law and our legislators will use the same old excuse "We didn't hear any objections from our constituents, and so voted for it."

Constituents can't object if they don't know what is going on, so I would like to alert those who object to mandatory seat belt legislation to contact their representatives and let them know about it even though there is no publicity concerning it.

Recent surveys have shown that mandatory seat belt legislation does not work. People do not buckle up even though it is the law. Therefore, the emphasis is now on air bags, despite the fact that the automobile industry is lobbying heavily against them.

It is my opinion that if our legislators vote for mandatory seat belt legislation, they are selling all of us short with regards to real safety for drivers and front seat occupants of automobiles. Air bags are safe and do not pen one as seat belt do so that escape from fire or impalement of the steering wheel cannot be avoided. While seat belts may keep one from going through the windshield, they can also malfunction and refuse to open so that one cannot escape after an accident to escape things such as fire.

Our legislators can protect us by doing nothing about mandatory seat belt legislation because if enough states do not pass such laws, air bags will be mandatory on all automobiles. This is real safety and we should not be deprived of it by our lawmakers just to satisfy the automobile industry's lobbiests.

To the Editor:

In last Friday's business section of the Baltimore Sun, page 11B, Sen. John C. Danforth, in writing of the defeat of the Senate Amendment to allow antitrusts suits on the Conrail sale, wrote:

"Thomas Saunders III, a Morgan Stanley managing director, said the one-two punch of Norfolk Southern support from Senate Majority Leader Bob Dole, R-Kan., and his wife, Transportation Secretary Elizabeth H. Dole, plus a speech last week by President Reagan, had been the key to administration victories in the Senate."

Take a second look at that combination—"Senate Majority Leader Bob Dole, R-Kan., and his wife, etc."

As a railroader once on the B&O, I'll say that now the public is being "railroaded" if Norfolk Southern gets Conrail. And we then can forget about a live railroad through this tableland where it has given good service for the past 134 years.

community college and may reduce it. "This action occurred when the board approved the original budget, and the revised budget cannot be reviewed at the present time," Fousek stated.

The letter further read, "Beyond that, I noticed your revised budget reflects appropriations of major functions in excess of the original approved budget. Section 16-402 (Powers of county government) subsection (c) states a community college may not spend more on any major function than the amount appropriated for it. The law further states in (2) (i) that transfer between major functions shall be submitted in writing and approved by the county governing body before they are made. This action was not taken. I believe that the revised budget was not properly adopted or in compliance with the state law."

Fousek concluded by saying that he recommended to the board of commissioners that they not fund the additional cash request of $13,433 and they concurred with that recommendation.

The county clerk also inquired about possible intentions of the college to vacate the Center Street School and to borrow approximately $1,000,000 to develop a new facility which he contended could have an impact on the county's financial goals.

Our Turn

by Pam Ashby

"Will you hold, please?" Ah, yes. How I love that question posed to me at least five times a day by a very pleasant voice who's probably snickering at the other end of the line.

My colleagues agree that there is nothing more maddening than spending several hours a day "on hold"—especially since we all tend to come up short in the patience department.

To alleviate those most uncomfortable moments (or hours) of being "on hold", we've devised a list of things to do while waiting for that human voice at the other end of the line.

1. Stuff several large pieces of bubble gum in your mouth and attempt to break the Guinness Book of World Records' largest circumference bubble. Remember to select different flavors each time to make the competition more interesting.

2. Write a dissertation for your doctorate on "The Evils of Wasting Time in an Upwardly Mobile Society." Then proof read it three times.

3. Pretend you are talking to President Reagan or Queen Elizabeth. This tends to impress your co-workers immensely.

4. Clean out your desk, your co-workers' desks, the file cabinet, the floors, the walls . . .

5. Clip manufacturers' coupons, file them in order, take them to the grocery store, use them to do your shopping and return to the office to find you are still on hold.

6. Finally, if you're fortunate enough to be provided with elevator music while you wait, practice all the classic dance steps. This may be termed unacceptable behavior in the office at first, but persist. Eventually, your boss will be tapping his feet with you. (You should see the editor of this paper do the Fox Trot!)

Well, I have to go now. My callee is ready to speak now. Luckily, I finished writing my column while I was "on hold."

Drug Charges

the court.

In another case, Galen E. Beckman, 26, Mtn. Lake Park, was sentenced to one year in the Garrett County Jail for a charge of possession of marijuana and two years for distribution of marijuana. The first sentence will run concurrently with the second.

The judge then suspended one year of the sentence and placed Beckman on one year supervised probation with the conditions that he pay $60 restitution, continue in a drug rehabilitation program, refrain from use of drugs, and abide by the rules and regulations of the probation officer.

A pre-sentence investigation had been ordered for Beckman December 19, after he pled guilty to the charges, which were made by Sgt. C.H. Hinnant following several incidents last March in the Mtn. Lake Park area.

Beckman was represented by John R. Toston, public defender.

Samuel J. Wilson II, 26, Mtn. Lake Park, was sentenced to two years in the Garrett County Jail for distribution of marijuana. The judge then suspended one year of the sentence, placing him on two years supervised probation.

For possession of marijuana, Wilson was sentenced to one year, to run concurrently with the first sentence. He also received a $250 fine.

The conditions of probation are as follows: pay fine and court costs, pay restitution of $220 to the State of Maryland, possess no controlled dangerous substance or paraphernalia, and have no association with individuals who traffic in drugs.

Wilson pled guilty to the charges December 12, and a pre-sentence investigation was ordered.

The charges were filed by Sgt. Hinnant following several incidents last April and May in the Broadford Road area.

A pre-sentence investigation was ordered for Wilson after he pled guilty to a charge of possession of marijuana. Charges of maintaining a common nuisance and possession of drug paraphernalia were not prosecuted by the court, Wilson's attorney was Robert E. Watson.

A pre-sentence investigation was ordered for Charles T. Marks, 27, McHenry, after he pled guilty to charges of distribution of cocaine and possession of marijuana. His bond was continued.

The charges were made by Hinnant following a February 28, 1985 incident at Marks' residence.

Charges of possession with intent to distribute, maintaining a common nuisance, possession of cocaine, and possession of drug paraphernalia were not prosecuted by the court.

Marks was represented by F. Ford Loker.

In a non-drug related case, a pre-sentence investigation was ordered for Leroy E. Friend Jr., 20, McHenry, after he pled guilty to a charge of possession of a deadly weapon with intent to injure.

Friend is being held in the Garrett County Jail pending sentencing.

A charge of disturbance of the peace was not prosecuted by the court.

The charges were made by Tpr. Robert M. Hershberger following a July 17 incident.

Welcome Home, Vets

by Larry Hensley
Vietnam Veteran

Welcome home, fellow Vietnam veterans.

For so long, the Vietnam veteran sat quietly and passively accepting the guilt from their Vietnam experiences. No longer the long-haired "hippie" of the "Pepsi Generation," he is now a quiet member of society. He has evolved from the jungle fighter to the father, mother, nurse, lawyer, teacher, church member, politician and astronaut.

Are Garrett Countians' aware there are over 800 Vietnam veterans within the local area? There has been no place for the Vietnam veteran to find an outpouring for his emotions and feelings that for so long have been ignored and buried. Now there is a place for this lost veteran. It is called the Vietnam Veterans of America.

Vietnam Veterans of America (VVA) is a national organization started by Vietnam veterans for Vietnam veterans. VVA, which has 230 chapters nationally, offers veterans a chance to learn of legislation directly affecting them, benefits available, help the community as a member of an organized group, become aware of self-help programs designed to deal with problems that exist due to the war experience, to offer a media for re-uniting veterans who shared a common traumatic experience, and to gain positive recognition.

Recently, a group of concerned and interested Vietnam era veterans met informally to discuss the possibility of creating a VVA Chapter in the Garrett County area. An organizational meeting has been scheduled for this Saturday, February 8, at 7:30 p.m. in the meeting room at the American Legion Post #71 in Oakland. The meeting will be chaired by Jim Shipe, a local resident and VVA member. Any interested Vietnam era veteran or their family is welcome to attend the meeting. If you have any questions you may contact Jim at 334-8330.

If you are a Vietnam veteran and have adjusted to life, you may have no interest or feel there is no need for this organization. It is just these men who are needed to help show and set an example for those whose minds and lives are haunted by memories of the war. Your confidence and coping skills need to be shared with those less fortunate.

Again, welcome home, Vietnam Veterans of America. We need you.

Maryland Faces Teacher Shortage

State School Superintendent David Hornbeck said last Thursday that Maryland will face a serious teacher shortage over the next two years. He went on to say that nothing short of major salary increases is likely to solve the problem.

The biggest problem is in the area of the classroom teacher, Hornbeck told members of the House Constitutional and Administrative Law Committee at a briefing concerning problems with pay scales, numbers of school teachers and the quality of teacher education.

Hornbeck mentioned a recent survey which projected that Maryland's school systems will need 9,024 new teachers by 1987. However, colleges in Maryland expect to graduate only 3,150 new teachers.

The superintendent said Maryland has never trained as many teachers as it needed, and hired from other states to fill the gap. However, he mentioned that the gap is much larger now than before.

Hornbeck said several approaches are being considered to solve the problem, but that it cannot be fully solved without substantial salary increases.

He said teacher salaries would have to be increased 26 percent just to make up the money that has been lost to inflation since 1970.

The state superintendent mentioned concerns about the quality of young people entering the teaching profession. He said that on the Scholastic Aptitude Test, prospective teachers in Maryland colleges score 28 points below the average of other students on the verbal section, and 43 points below the average score in math.

Hornbeck said several sources of potential teachers are now being pursued by the state. They include military retirees and people who have put in their 30 years in the public school system and have retired from teaching.

He said the Department of Education has hired someone to visit Maryland bases and attempt to recruit teachers from military personnel who plan to retire.

He mentioned that some retired teachers may be interested in returning to teaching on a part-time basis if the state law is changed to allow them to do so without losing retirement benefits.

TO MY MOTHER AND DAD
On February 6, 1957, a baby was born without a name or home. She was wanted and brought into a home filled with love.
In 29 years there has been laughter and joy, tears and disappointments, concerns and words exchanged. All of these and more go with being a family.
It hasn't been said often enough, so I want to thank you, Mom and Dad, for giving that baby of 29 years ago a name and a home, and most of all, always love. I pray we have 29 and many more years together of being a family. I thank you, Mom and Dad, on my birthday. I love you both dearly.
Your Daughter Always,
Susan

Commissioners To Testify On State Acquisition Of Land Bills

The Garrett County Commissioners plan to travel to Annapolis next Tuesday to attend hearings on a number of bills of importance to Garrett County.

In the forefront are the companion House Bill 753 and Senate Bill 362, introduced by Delegate George C. Edwards and Senator John N. Bambacus, prohibiting the Department of Natural Resources from using any funds after June 30 to acquire land in Garrett County.

Del. Edwards says that he doesn't know how the bill will be received by the House Environmental Matters Committee. "It's hard to read the intent of that committee," he said.

Commissioner Elwood L. Groves II feels the bills are extremely important because of Senate Bill 319 introduced by Sen. Gerald W. Winegrad (D-Anne Arundel Co.) creating the Heritage Conservation Fund in the Department of Natural Resources. The purpose of this fund would be to provide funds to acquire conservation easements, and fee simple or other interests in land anywhere in the state. It would require the Department to make grants to the Maryland Agricultural Preservation Fund, and require the Board of Public Works to approve acquisitions.

Groves says that the great danger in this bill is that it could be "a back door to the use of funds other than Program Open Space Funds for the state to acquire more property in Garrett County as well as other counties across the state."

The commissioner explained that the purpose of the bills sponsored by Edwards and Bambacus is to assure that any state funds, under the Open Space Program or any others, could not be used to purchase any more land in Garrett County. "The intent is simply to expand the protection we have under the current law," said Groves.

These opposing concepts may create more controversy over the problem of state-owned land in Garrett County.

General Assembly Hears Testimony On Seat Belts And The Bay

A joint Senate committee hearing was held on Tuesday to discuss the environmental protection of the Chesapeake Bay and to establish the criteria for the Critical Areas Program as proposed by the Chesapeake Bay Critical Areas Commission.

Lawmakers still have a lot of concern about the vagueness, broadness, and possible interpretation of some of the definitions and sections within the regulations. Also the present requirement of a 20 acre density in the resource conservation area will present an economic hardship on landowners, and might, therefore, be reduced. Regardless of what density is established, lawmakers feel it must be allocated on a basis of ownership. Some feel there is a need for some modification to insure that landowners and their immediate families will be allowed to build on their property.

This issue does not seem to concern Garrett County, however, legislators see the result of this Chesapeake Bay issue setting standards for control of all bodies of water in the state in the future.

Senator John N. Bambacus has sponsored an emergency assistance bill which would require that a person, at the scene of an accident, provide or attempt to provide help to others if there is no risk to the individual or others. Violators would be subject to a $500 fine or imprisonment of up to six months. The measure would also exempt the person from civil damages for acts of omission.

The mandatory use of seat belts has been an issue bringing forth a lot of testimony. Such a law, supporters say, would save millions of dollars and would prevent hundreds of traffic-related injuries and deaths.

But members of the House Judiciary Committee don't see a lot of change from last year when the bill was defeated by a 16-4 vote.

One version of the mandatory seat belt bill has already passed the Senate for the second consecutive year.

The main reason for the House committee's opposition appears to be philosophical: that requiring motorists to wear seat belts is too much of an intrusion by government into the private lives of its citizens.

Upcoming House Bills Have County Concerns At Stake

The Maryland House of Delegates will hear a number of bills in the near future which directly concern Garrett County.

Today the House Ways and Means Committee will review HB 685, sponsored by Del. George C. Edwards which would amend the out-dated fees paid to attorneys for services in connection with tax sales of property in Garrett County. The fee which is currently being paid to those attorneys is $7.50. Edward's bill would increase that fee to $150 for those attorneys.

House Bill 684 will be heard next Thursday by the Constitutional and Administrative Law Committee. This bill simply legalizes the 1985 edition of the Code of Public Local Laws, Ordinances and Resolutions of Garrett County.

House Bill 683 will come before the House Economic Matters Committee next Wednesday. This bill requires nonresident or out-or-county vendors who engage in the purely local business of peddling, selling, auctioning or offering for sale any goods, wares or merchandise in Garrett County to first obtain an itinerant peddler license. Del. Edwards says that complaints generally concern those selling truck-loads of furniture which were brought in from out of the county. This license would cost a fee of $250 per year, and those found to be without this license would be subject to a maximum $250 fine.

This bill would not apply to farmers or growers selling their own vegetables or other perishable farm products. According to Edwards, most other counties in the state have this type of law in force.

The other bill which will be heard by the House Environmental Matters Committee next Tuesday would exclude all tributaries of the Youghiogheny River from the provisions of the Scenic and Wild Rivers Program. It would redefine the boundaries of the scenic corridor of the Yough to exclude tributaries, and designate the main stem of the Yough River between Miller's Run and the southern corporate limits of Friendsville as a wild river.

Committees To Hear Bills To Aid Rescue Squads

The local delegation to Annapolis has introduced two bills to aid and deregulate rescue squads in the county.

House Bill 826, sponsored by Delegate George C. Edwards, would require the Board of County Commissioners of Garrett County to appropriate and pay to voluntary nonprofit rescue squads located in the county an amount equal to two cents per $100 of assessable property in the county. This bill would demand that a rescue squad use the funds for specified purposes and to report annually on the receipt and disbursement of the funds.

Del. Edwards explains that these funds come from the state's share of the cigarette tax and will not cost Garrett County tax payers any additional money.

For the benefit of any county residents who may wish to testify in favor of the rescue squad bill, Del. Edwards stated that HB 826 goes to the Select Committee for a hearing next Tuesday, February 11, at 9 a.m. in room 411 of the House Office Building in Annapolis.

The other bill, SB 373, was introduced by Senator John N. Bambacus to prohibit the Secretary of Public Safety and Correctional Services from requiring specified training or purchases as preconditions to receiving funds from the State Fire, Rescue and Ambulance Fund. It would prohibit the imposition of constraints on the purchase of capital and non-capital equipment; and repeals a prohibition on the use of state funds in the State Fire, Rescue and Ambulance Fund for specified purposes.

Commissioner Elwood L. Groves II had some comments on SB 373. He explained that there has been dissatisfaction with the way the current law is operating. There is intense over-regulation from the Department of Public Safety and Correctional Services, and the county is responsible for seeing that funds are spent according to those regulations.

Groves emphasized that the Garrett County Commissioners have voiced their support of Sen. Bambacus's bill. "We need to get these funds to the volunteer services where the money can do some good," he said.

This bill will go before the Senate Economic and Environmental Affairs Committee at 1 p.m. on Wednesday, February 12. Bambacus serves on the Economic and Environmental Affairs Committee.

Bambacus Calls For Extension Of UI Benefits

District 1 Senator John N. Bambacus announced this week that he had introduced into the Senate "one of the most important pieces of legislation" of this session—extended unemployment insurance benefits.

Senator Bambacus introduced Senate Bill No. 634 which calls for a 13-week extension for those whose unemployment insurance has run out and have been unable to find gainful employment.

"Maryland's Unemployment Trust Fund is looking better than it has in years," said Bambacus.

The fund now stands at over $400,000,000 and the Senator hopes that the legislation will pass to help those who have lost their jobs to various failing industries.

"This was not a good year for industry in Maryland," said the Senator. "We've gone from a smokestack state to a service economy and it is painful for the people who want to work and can't find jobs."

Bambacus noted that Garrett and Allegany counties were hit hardest by industrial layoffs with some of the Eastern Shore counties close behind. He pointed out that 500 jobs were lost in Garrett County last year and 1,200 in Allegany County.

"What are these people going to do?" he asked. "They have the same needs as everyone else. Their unemployment money doesn't go into savings accounts. It goes back into the economy in the form of food, clothing and other basic necessities."

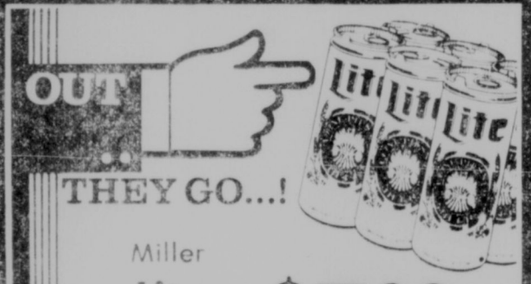
The legislator said the unemployed worker's benefits turn over four or five times and called for compassion for the unemployed who want the dignity and respect of a job.

He also stressed that although 1985 was a period of strong economic growth for the state, it also saw some 5,400 workers lose manufacturing jobs.

"Maryland itself is one of the most economically healthy states in the nation with a 3.5 unemployment rate," said Bambacus. "But that's small comfort to Western Marylanders who are facing increasing unemployment rates."

The Senator went on to say that he found it "alarming and distressing" to see that 24,000 industry-related jobs have been lost in the state since 1980.

"We have to address the unemployment issue and try to create more jobs, but in the meantime, those who are running out of benefits are entitled to a decent way of life," Bambacus concluded.



SINCERE THANKS

A very special thank you to the Deer Park and Deep Creek Volunteer Fire Departments, and all friends, neighbors, and family who helped during and after the barn fire.

Lakers' Attempt To Upset Ninth Ranked ACC Trojans Falls Short

Although an upset was in the making last night between the Garrett Community College Lakers and nationally ranked Allegany Community College, it was not to be, as the Trojans managed to come back in the final eight minutes to erase a GCC lead that had been present throughout most of the game.

The Lakers were on top 37-34 at halftime and went on top by as many as nine, 53-44, in the second half before the ninth-ranked Trojans rallied for their 24th win in 26 starts. The final score was 74-64. The loss dropped GCC to 13-9 and 6-5 in the Maryland JUCO American Division.

After holding that 53-44 lead, the Lakers' shooting, which had been hot through most of the game, suddenly went cold. Coach Dennis Gibson instructed his team to wait for the best shot, which caused most of the 45 seconds on the shot clock to expire before the Lakers took a shot. However, those shots simply would not fall.

Meanwhile, Rudy Archer came alive for the Trojans and fired a pair of long jumpers to cut Garrett's lead to 53-48 at the 9:12 mark. Archer then followed with a three-point play to pull the Trojans within two, 53-51, and a pair of free throws by Shawn Freeman knotted the score at 53 with seven minutes remaining.

The Lakers would have but one more lead in the game at 54-53 after a free throw by Sean Hazel. Freeman tied the score again at 54 with a foul toss and a reverse layup by Archer put ACC on top for good, 56-54, at the 5:23 mark.

The Trojans stretched their advantage to 61-56 with four minutes remaining, but the Lakers came back to within four points, 68-64, with 35 seconds left. However, Roddy Peters sunk a pair of free throws to put the game out of reach for the Lakers.

Garrett's leading scorer, Jim Feagins, recorded a game-high 23 points, while Jerry Monroe added 13 and Darin Blackwell, 11. Hazel pulled down a dozen rebounds.

Peters and Archer led the winners with 21 and 17 points, respectively, while Freeman chipped in 14. Archer was also credited with 11 assists, while Eric Kearney grabbed 12 rebounds and had five blocked shots.

Although both coaches were critical of the officiating, Coach Gibson stated that he was proud of his players. "We have shown that we can play against any body," he said. "We showed it against Hagerstown, by beating Allegheny-Pittsburgh, and tonight against ACC."

Gibson noted that he believed fouls should have been called against ACC players during two steals which occurred at a critical time late in the game. ACC Coach Bob Kirk called the officiating as poor as he had seen this season.

The Lakers will host Essex this Saturday evening, entertain CCAC Boyce on Sunday in a 2 p.m. contest, and travel to Catonsville on Wednesday.

Lakers Split In Weekend Games

Prior to the Garrett Community College Lakers' defeat last night at the hands of powerful Allegany Community College in McHenry (see separate story), Coach Dennis Gibson's squad fell to the Community College of Baltimore on Saturday night, 73-62, in a Maryland JUCO Conference American Division contest. The Lakers rebounded Sunday, however, to whip Dundalk CC, 64-57, in another conference match-up.

Jim Feagins provided the shooting power for the Lakers in both contests, finishing with 28 against Baltimore and 32 at Dundalk.

Sean Hazel was the only other Laker to reach double figures in the Baltimore contest, finishing with ten points.

The Red Devils, who were led by Charlie Massenburg with 22 points, held a 35-25 halftime advantage. Also hitting double figures for Baltimore were Jeff Minerve with 15, and Gary Koterwas and George Neumeister with ten each.

Hazel matched his ten-point performance and pulled down 13 rebounds in the Dundalk contest, while Darin Blackwell grabbed 13 rebounds and Ragler recorded four assists.

Leading Dundalk's scoring effort were Smith and Blackwell with 16 points each, Poplovski with 11, and Lewis with ten.

It was only the seventh loss for Dundalk, against 16 victories, while Baltimore improved its record at the Lakers' expense to 7-13.

CROSS-COUNTRY WINNER — Chris Flavin huffed and puffed his way across the finish line to record the best overall time out of a field of 72 cross-country ski racers this past Saturday at New Germany State Park. Immediately after completing the six-mile course in 36 minutes and one second, Flavin collapsed on the ground, but quickly recovered to receive his trophy. The race was one of a series of 12 in the Allegheny Mountain Series. See story.

Chris Flavin Top Racer At New Germany

Chris Flavin recorded a time of 36 minutes, one second in Saturday's six-mile cross-country ski race at New Germany State Park, to lead the overall field of 72 racers.

Flavin, who competed in the men's age 20-34 class, finished 39 seconds ahead of his nearest competitor, John Hart, who was racing in the same class.

Winning the boys' 12-15 class was James M. Moon with a time of 43:55. Eric Martinusen topped the men's 16-19 field with a 37:18, which was the third best time in the entire field.

Leading the men's 35-49 class was Emmanuel Birstein with a time of 38:06, just three seconds faster than Bill Pope, who was racing in the same class.

John Gracey won the men's 50 and over class with a 40:19, which placed him eighth overall.

In women's competition, Gail Helfer was the fastest racer, finishing with a 42:40. She was the winner of the women's 20-34 division and her time was 11th fastest among all 72 racers.

Cathy Andberg recorded a 45:27 to win the women's 35-49 class, while Julie Cooper captured first in the girls' 12-15 category.

In the children's divisions, Jon Houser won the boys' 10-11, Tina Forney won the girls 10-11, Kristen Hurst placed first in the girls 6-9 class, Cody Hardesty captured the boys' 0-7 title, and Fern Shaffer won the girls' 0-7 race.

The event was another in a series of 12 races in the Allegheny Mountain Series, whereby an overall winner will be determined at the end of the season.

Local Athletes To Participate In Special Olympics

Garrett County will send four local athletes to the Maryland Winter Special Olympics, which are being held February 9-12 at the Wisp Ski Resort, according to Debbie Ambrose, area director.

Garrett County Olympians for this year are: Elizabeth Terrant, Southern High School; Trina Bray, William Abernathy and Virginia Simon, Appalachian/Crossroads.

Ms. Ambrose said each athlete will compete in one or two downhill or cross-country skiing events, held on Wednesday, February 12. They will spend Monday and Tuesday in specialized training for their chosen events. The Maryland Ski Club will supply coaches, who are specially trained in the rules and qualifications for the Special Olympics Winter Sports.

The Proctor Kildow Post #71 American Legion of Oakland has sponsored the Special Olympics program for the past three years, donating over $2,400 locally to the program, which encompasses area spring games as well as the winter event.

Athletes were selected from those who took advantage of the free physicals offered by the Garrett Medical Group of Oakland and Dr. George Stoltzfus of Friendsville last spring. Schools and vocational programs of all eligible athletes were contacted and encouraged to select participants for the event.

All athletes must have current medical examinations in order to be eligible for any Special Olympics event, Ms. Ambrose said. It is hoped that more eligible students and Appalachian Crossroads participants will take advantage of the free medical services, if offered again by local doctors.

Athletes from all Maryland counties will participate in the games this year. Each county will send four to six athletes, along with chaperones.

Athletes will be offered a variety of sports clinics and snow activities aside from their regular training sessions. Evening events, such as a "Sweetheart Dance" and "Punk Out" party will be offered as well. Athletes, chaperones and coaches will be staying in the newly remodeled Village Inn condominiums.

The competition and awards ceremony will be held on Wednesday, February 12, from 9:30 a.m. to 2 p.m.. Ms. Ambrose said the public is invited to attend, "to cheer these special athletes to their personal victories."

Anyone interested in donating to the program should contact Debbie Ambrose, 387-6209; Dale Perando, 387-4767; or Ron Friend, 387-9171.

Huskies Gain Revenge Over Aggies, 63-51

Victory was particularly sweet for the Northern High Huskies last Friday evening on their home court as they defeated Flintstone, 63-51. The Huskies had fallen to the Aggies earlier in the season, 57-43.

Bill Torres and Aaron Zumpano paced the Huskies with 12 points each, followed closely by Mike Robeson, who finished with 11. The only Flintstone player to reach double figures was Jimmy Blubaugh, who netted a game-high 26 points.

The Huskies were down 14-12 by the end of the first quarter, but came back in the second stanza to assume a 31-26 halftime advantage. Coach Harv Speicher's squad stretched their lead to 43-30 in the third period and maintained that spread the rest of the way.

Torres also led the Huskies in rebounds with 12 and Mark Robeson was credited with five assists.

It was the seventh win of the campaign against ten defeats for the Huskies, while the Aggies dropped to 5-10 on the season.

In the preliminary contest the Northern jayvees topped their Flintstone counterparts, 51-42, behind a 21-point effort by John Harmke. John Ketterman paced the junior Aggies with 12 points.

After a week off from competition, the Huskies will return to action at home this Friday evening against Garrett County rival, Southern.

Rams Top East Preston Before Loss To Spartans

The Southern High Rams got back on the winning track last Friday evening at home by whipping East Preston, 59-50, but were then soundly defeated by Bishop Walsh, 73-55, Tuesday evening in Cumberland. The 5-10 Rams will play again this Friday at Northern.

Southern was on top of East Preston by only two, 12-10, at the end of the first quarter, but then moved out to a 28-18 advantage by halftime. The Rams went into the final quarter leading 36-29.

Jeff Sweitzer led three Rams in double figures as he netted 14 points. Danny Jackson finished with 12 and Jon Reneslacis, ten points. Jim Liller pulled down 12 rebounds.

Leading all scorers was East Preston's Tony Haskiell with 19 points, while Rob Haskiell hit 12. It was only the third loss for the West Virginians against nine wins.

The Southern jayvees also won their game against East Preston in the preliminary contest, 52-46, behind 21 and 17-point performances by Bobby Bernard and Mike Ruff, respectively. The BW Spartans proved to be too strong for the less experienced Rams on Tuesday evening, as Barry Page led his team with 26 points, a dozen rebounds, and four blocked shots. Duane McCormick added 13 points and as many rebounds, seven of which were in the final quarter.

The Rams out-gunned the 16-4 Spartans from the floor by a 25-22 margin, but the home team was awarded 34 opportunities at the free throw line and made good on 29 of them. Southern took only eight free throws, completing five of them.

After a 2-2 tie in the early going, the Rams trailed throughout the contest and were down by as many as 19 in the third period. However, they began to rally early in the final stanza and pulled to within ten, 57-47, with just over five minutes remaining.

Reneslacis, who led the Rams with 18 points, fouled out of the contest at the 5:34 mark after hitting nine of 12 attempts from the floor.

A three-point play by Liller is what brought the Rams within ten points, but six free throws by the Spartans in the next three minutes put the game out of reach for Southern.

Max Hill also reached double figures for Southern, finishing with 17 points, while teammate Jackson grabbed 12 rebounds.

Other Spartans reaching the double figure mark were Doug Hiser and Dan Trask with 11 each and Kevin Jessie with ten.

The Rams were out-rebounded, 36-27.

The Southern jayvees won the preliminary contest, 43-40. (see separate story)

Southern Girls Whip Spartans, Huskies, Knights

Despite being in the midst of what most would describe as a rebuilding year for the Southern High girls varsity basketball team, the Lady Rams have not allowed that description to negatively affect their play. Coach Don Stemple's squad added three more wins this past week to up their record to 9-4.

Southern topped Bishop Walsh last Thursday in Oakland, 41-35, traveled to Northern on Friday to whip the Lady Huskies, 44-26, and then went to Lonaconing last night to top Valley, 56-46. They will not play again until Wednesday evening at home against Fort Hill.

Jackie Noe led the Rams against Bishop Walsh, pumping in a dozen points, while Tracy Ridder finished with eight.

Southern led 10-5 by the end of the first quarter, stretched their lead to 22-11 by halftime, and held a 27-21 edge going into the final stanza.

Dee Guthrie paced the 4-10 Spartans with 12 points and Kathleen Collett added ten.

Against the Lady Huskies on Friday, it was Kendra Stemple who finished as the top scorer for the Rams as she netted 13 points.

Once again, Southern started strong and held a 22-14 halftime lead before faltering slightly in the third period, allowing the Huskies to pull within six, 28-22. The Rams' offense took off in the final period, though, to outscore Northern 16-4 for the win.

Melissa Beeman paced Northern with 11 points, while the Huskies' leading scorer Julie Robeson, was held to eight points. It was Northern's eighth loss in 11 games.

Against Valley it was in the third quarter that the Southern girls played their best ball, having trailed at the end of the first two periods, 8-4 and 24-23. The Lady Rams came back after intermission to outscore the Lady Knights, 19-9, in the third period and then stretch their advantage still further in the final stanza.

Jackie Noe led three Southern players in double figures by netting 15 points. Vicki Dilgard finished with 12 points and Kendra Stemple recorded 11.

Leading all scorers was Valley's Stacy Kirk with 17. The Knights fell to 7-10 on the season.

NHS Girls Whip Salisbury Before Losing To Bruce

After falling to cross-county rival Southern last Friday and then bouncing back to defeat Salisbury on Tuesday, the Northern High girls varsity basketball team was mashed last night in Westernport by Bruce, 54-28.

Stacy Nash and Jennifer Hurd led the winners with 18 and 16 points, respectively, while Julie Robeson paced the Lady Huskies with 12 points.

Garrett Women Lose To Devils, Defeat Harford

After an 85-65 defeat at the hands of the Community College of Baltimore Saturday afternoon on the Red Devils court, the Garrett Community College women's basketball team bounced back to whip Harford CC, 68-47, on Sunday at Dundalk. The results left the Lakers' season record at 6-11.

A 25-point performance by Jones and 23 points by Cherry highlighted Baltimore's win over the Lakers in a game that was marred by fights and technical fouls.

Baltimore's Purvey and her coach were ejected from the game following a scuffle, which resulted in two technical foul shots by Garrett's Vicki Plitt and four more later by Nina Layman.

Lilly Jeffries paced Garrett with 13 points, while Natalie Vetter, Layman, and Sharon Taylor each finished with ten points.

Jeffries also led the Lakers over Harford on Sunday with an 18-point performance, while Stephanie Burks pulled down 14 rebounds. Amy Berry recorded eight assists and four steals.

Leading Harford were Shelley Zahner and Debbie Roloff with 16 and 15 points, respectively.

Coach Ann Wellham's squad led 35-18 at halftime.

The Lakers were scheduled to play Frederick CC on Tuesday, however results of that contest were unavailable.

Garrett is slated to host Essex CC this Saturday and entertain Wilson College on Monday. Both games are set for 6 p.m.

Southern Jayvees Rally To Edge Bishop Walsh

The Southern High School jayvee basketball team upped its season record to 9-4 Tuesday evening with a 43-40 come-from behind win over a strong Bishop Walsh team on the Spartans' floor in Cumberland.

A critical three-point play by J.R. Bosley late in the game, plus four consecutive free throws by Jeff King, highlighted the fourth quarter of the game in which the Rams outscored the Spartans, 18-11. BW, which came into the contest with a 10-4 record, held a 22-15 advantage at halftime and a 29-25 lead after three quarters.

"This was a super win for us, considering we were playing one of the top three teams in the area without two of our starters," stated Ram coach, Dave Bender. Southern's leading rebounder, Mike Ruff, and forward Stan Lambert both missed the contest because of illness.

Bobby Bernard paced the Rams in scoring with 12 points, followed by Jeff King with 11 and Richard Evick, ten.

The Spartans were led by Chris Hoffman, who finished wih 15 points. Southern's Sean Hershman held the Spartans' top scorer to just five points, ten below his average.

The Rams have won six of their last seven games, with three of those wins being come-from-behind thrillers—twice over East Preston and Tuesday's win at BW. Their losses have come at the hands of Petersburg twice, Beall, and Fort Hill.

Bosley is leading Southern with an 11 point average, followed by Bernard with ten points, Ruff with nine, and King with just under eight per contest. Ruff is also pulling down over seven rebounds per game. Bosley leads the team in steals with 24. Other members of the team are Chris Helbig, Scott Finch, Jack McCauley, Dave Burdock, James Burns, and Scott Clever.

The Rams will play at Northern this Friday evening and then complete their regular season with four straight home games. Tip-off for all jayvee contests is 6:15 p.m.

Coach Bender, who was a standout athlete at Northern High School and played collegiate basketball at Allegany Community College and Juniata College, is on his way to a third consecutive winning season as coach of the Southern jayvees. He is assisted by Bill Ewing and Barry Louden.

the cooperation of his estranged wife, Carolyn S. Cline, co-worker and friend of Pariseau at the Garrett County Board of Education Media Center, and with the collusion of the defendants, was able to acquire and procure an arrest warrant for him without probable cause for a reason other than bringing him to justice. He also claims the defendants had knowledge of the "fraudulent application of the charges."

He further contends that he demanded charges be dropped against him because of the fraud on the parts of the defendants and his estranged wife. The case ended with the dismissal of one charge and the other declared nolle prosequi.(not prosecuted for lack of evidence or other various reasons).

The plaintiff alleges that as a result of the malicious use of prosecution which caused him to be arrested and incarcerated he was deprived of the use of personal property and liberty before appearing in Garrett County District Court.

Cline said that he suffered significant mental pain and suffering, anguish, fright, nervousness, indignity, humiliation, embarrassment and insult. He also said he suffered harm to his reputation, loss of standing in the community, loss of income and potential loss of income because of his arrest record. On the first count, the plaintiff claimed $10,000 in compensatory damages and $1,500,000 in punitive damages.

The second count names the Garrett County Sheriff's Department, Sherbin, Ferry, Pariseau and Shockey as defendants and stems from an incident that occurred on or about October 27, 1981.

Cline alleges that a warrant for his arrest was issued at that time by Deputy David Crossland on a handgun violation and that the defendants "by their illegal use of powers of officiating capacity, did willfully, intentionally, wantonly, deliberately and most maliciously" charge him with fraudulent content before and after the fact. He said the warrant was held until after Deputy Crossland was found guilty in West Virginia of battery against Cline in Magistrate's Court at which time (March 1982) he was arrested on the warrant.

The second count further states that Cline demanded the charges be dropped against him after he was made aware of the defendants actual intent to cause irreparable damage to him because of their willful and malicious use of their official powers and fraudulent accusations. The case against Cline was declared nolle prosequi in Garrett County District Court.

Cline is seeking $10,000 in compensatory damages and $3,500,000 in punitive damages in the second count because he alleges he suffered harm to his reputation, loss of standing in the community, loss of income and potential loss of income because he now has an arrest record as being habitual.

In the third count the plaintiff contends that on or about April 12, 1982, the defendants brought against him one charge of felony theft and that he was arrested and incarcerated. He alleges that he can show and prove collusion with intent to maliciously prosecute him on the part of the defendants as specified in counts one and two. He further alleges that Sherbin knew that a false arrest was made in the previous case and that the additional false charge was brought against him after Timothy Nine allegedly committed perjury to acquire the issuance of that particular warrant.

He contends that Sherbin condoned it and refused to dismiss the charge against him. The records show that Sherbin declared the case nolle prosequi.

The plaintiff then instituted a civil suit against Timothy Nine, Donald Nine and Classie Car Company in Garrett County Circuit Court after which Cline states he received a considerable sum of money from Nine and an apology in the presence of the court clerk, who filed a Writ of Dismiss on behalf of the plaintiff.

Cline is seeking $10,000 in compensatory damages and $1,500,000 in punitive damages because of the same sufferings stated in counts one and two and because of the malicious. willful and continuous actions on the part of the defendants.

In the fourth count, Cline states that on or about April of 1983, defendants from the Garrett County Sheriff's Department, Deputy Crossland and Deputy Charles Nolan, arrested him at his estranged wife's home. Cline alleges that he and his wife were arguing about child support and in-law problems and that the defendants, in collusion with the ex-in-laws had maliciously intended to get him convicted in crimes he did not commit. He further stated that his estranged wife testified on his behalf and he was found not guilty of driving while intoxicated, resisting arrest and drunk and disorderly conduct in Garrett County District Court. He said he had been arrested and incarcerated on those crimes by the perjurious statements of the defendants' police report and their testimony in court.

The plaintiff is seeking $10,000 in compensatory damages and $2,500,000 in punitive damages as a result of the "defendants malicious prosecutions as stated in the first four counts and because of this deliberate, intentional and malicious actions of the defendants to be able to cause false arrest and incarceraton."

The fifth count alleges that during June, 1983, the defendants continued abuse of the law and instituted malicious actions that led to another arrest warrant that led to his arrest on a charge of felony breaking and entering. He stated that the arrest led to court proceedings where he pleaded not guilty and was found not guilty.

Cline is seeking $10,000 for compensatory damages and $2,500,000 for punitive damages for the reasons listed in prior counts and because he felt the defendants continued to violate his rights with willful, malicious intent to falsely arrest and prosecute him.

In the sixth count, Cline names the defendants mentioned above because of his being arrested and incarcerated in February, 1984, by Tfc. Larry Rosage of the Maryland State Police. At that time he was charged with DWI, eluding a police officer and turning off his lights to avoid identification. He contended that Rosage was reprimanded by his superiors at the Maryland State Police for his derelict of his duty in July, 1981, following the plaintiff's report to Rosage's superiors of this trooper neglecting to adhere to the law and to perform his appointed duty.

Cline further stated that Rosage worked closely with the defendants which caused the malicious charge of DWI and others for which he was found not guilty in District Court on April 12, 1984.

The plaintiff is seeking $10,000 in compensatory damages and $2,500,000 in punitive damages for the reasons mentioned earlier.

Count seven deals with an incident which occurred on April 6, 1984, in which Cline contends, with acquired knowledge, that he went to the Garrett County Sheriff's Department to inquire if anyone had any knowledge of an alleged crime he was accused of committing. He claims he was arrested and incarcerated in the Garrett County Jail by the defendants on a Maryland Fugitive from Justice charge from the State of Pennsylvania.

Cline alleges he asked the defendants to see the warrant for his arrest as well as the grounds and the charge. He contended that the defendants had no such warrant of extradition or any other legal or formal document pertaining to him. He said he was also denied legal counsel by the defendants on the grounds that he was a fugitive from justice. He contends he was also denied the right to file a Writ of Habeas Corpus and deprived of his right to bail bond. He was held under those conditions for 81 days.

Because he felt those denials were a violation of Due Process of Law, the plaintiff demanded a hearing before the governor of Maryland and was granted the hearing. He said the governor never issued a Rendition Warrant upon or against him.

He went on to say that based on evidence and facts made known at the extradition hearing and before Assistant General Attorney Rogers, it was decided that it was a civil and not a criminal case and Cline was released from incarceration.

The plaintiff is seeking $10,000 in compensatory damages and $2,500,000 in punitive damages for the reasons listed in all previous counts and because of an additional malicious prosecution.

The defendants are named again in the eighth count for an incident which occurred on October 29, 1984. Cline alleges that the defendants with malice and willful intent, acquired and had issued a warrant for his arrest and incarceration on a charge of impersonating an FBI agent or police officer causing a false arrest and incarceration. He said legal proceedings were held in the matter and the defendants did not wish to prosecute. Sherbin declared the case nolle prosequi. He said the FBI also investigated the case and filed no charges against him.

Because of what the plaintiff termed continuous malicious prosecution and willful intent to fraud arrest warrants by collusion of the defendants against him and for the defendants sole desire to convict him, the plaintiff is seeking $10,000 in compensatory damages and $2,500,000 in punitive damages.

The ninth count is filed against the Garrett County Sheriff's Department, Sherbin, Ferry, Pariseau and Shockey and charges that the defendants improperly caused numerous issuances of criminal process against the plaintiff for the ulterior purpose of intentionally violating, abusing, harassing, assaulting, battering, punishing, convicting, humiliating, disgracing, incarcerating and arresting him and to deprive him of his civil rights of life and liberty.

He further stated that the defendants, in collusion with each other, continued repeated malicious acts of violating civil rights, and abused with contemptable means and actions the U.S. Constitution amendments (four-ten, 13 and 14).

The ninth count, along with reasons mentioned before, states that the plaintiff suffered permanent harm to his reputation and lost all respect and good standing in the community and had lost income and potential income because of his arrest record. He is seeking $10,000 in compensatory damages and $5,500,000 in punitive damages on the ninth count.

The 10th count also names all the defendants charging that they caused eight counts of malicious prosecution, eight counts of abuse of process of law and 8 counts of Civil Rights abuse and the plaintiff is seeking $10,000 in compensatory damages and $5,500,000 in punitive damages.

The 11th count charges that the defendants named in count eight did, in a malicious manner, falsely accuse the plaintiff of crimes he did not commit, and maliciously prosecuted them with a full knowledge of the falsity of the accusations leading to defamation of his character. For that count he is seeking $10,000 in compensatory damages and $5,500,000 in punitive damages.

Cline has requested that the case be tried before a jury. He is being represented by Lawrence V. Kelly, Cumberland, and Henry McCrobie, Baltimore.

years was then discussed. Abar noted that most of these contracts are with mining companies and said it does help such companies survive during "slack market" conditions.

Whitewater Races

Attending the meeting of the World Whitewater Championships to be held at the Savage River in 1989 were Fred L. Eskew, assistant secretary for capital programs; Donald E. McLauchlan, director of Forest, Park and Wildlife Service; David Hathway, chief of operations for FPWS and the county officials mentioned earlier.

The main topics of discussion at the meeting were the impact of the races on state land and facilities in the Savage River area, and cooperation between Garrett County and DNR in composing a rational ORV-Winter Trails Plan which can be implemented for the benefits of the citizens.

Regarding the races, county officials described the planning activities in which the local organizing committee is currently involved.

Of major importance to the DNR is a comprehensive site planning effort being conducted by the University of Maryland School of Architecture under the supervision of a Baltimore consulting firm for the race course site and its immediate environs.

DNR officials explained the result of such a program would be a set of recommended facility improvements, complete with construction cost estimates and siting recommendations.

Garrett County officials said they felt that since the anticipated facilities would be entirely on DNR-managed property, and since the utility of the facilities would encompass a recreational activity which would be occurring at regular intervals after the 1989 event, it would be fitting to look toward the state for a major portion of the costs in developing those facilities.

It was decided that equitable leasing relationships with sponsoring organizations and/or concessionaires would be evaluated in a proposed Enterprise Opportunities Study, which is slated to be funded soon as a joint venture by DNR, DECD and Garrett County. The possibility of using the unused bond allocation set aside for a Rocky Gap State Park Convention Center was also discussed. DNR officials felt more investigation on how the allocation could be used for the Whitewater Enterprise was needed.

The meeting continued with a major discussion concerning the deficiencies in the Big Run Park camping area. Everyone present acknowledged that the critical location of the park would place it in a focal position for extensive use pressure in the years to come. Chronic deficiencies, such as inadequate restroom facilities and no bath house facilities are major problems.

Considerable discussion ensued concerning operational problems at the facility, especially wastewater disposal and security needs.

The topic's discussion culminated in an agreement that the park Service would study its facility needs at Big Run, then develop cost estimates of those needs to be jointly submitted to the capital programs office by May 1, 1986. The Whitewater Committee would similarly be working with forest and parks in developing its plans and cost estimates which would all be submitted to capital programs as one thematic package.

The discussion with the DNR officials ended with county officials describing their new study initiative entitled "The Winter Trails Study." The commissioners voiced an interest in cooperating with the department on an objective of providing the optimum trail system to meet the recreational needs in the county.

Considerable discussion ensued concerning the current status of the DNR's proposed regulations and plans related to off-road vehicle trails and voiced its appreciation to the county for extending the offer. It was agreed that the DNR would be heavily involved in the planning process of the Winter Trails study. Arrangements were made for the first meeting between the county's consultant and DNR officials.

Brooks Robinson Named Speaker For Scout Dinner

Brooks Robinson, former third baseman for the Baltimore Orioles, will be the featured speaker at the Seventh Annual Friends of Scouting Dinner March 24, according to Westvaco's David L. Young, Potomac Council president, and Kelly-Springfield Tire Company President Clifford H. Johnson, chairman of the Council's 1986 Sustaining Membership (S.M.E.) Campaign.

The Friends of Scouting Dinner is funded annually by separate private sponsors. This year it will be held at the Ali Ghan Shrine Club, beginning at 7 p.m. Invitations will be sent to upper level contributors to the Potomac Council's SME Campaign.

The BSA Potomac Council includes Allegany and Garrett counties and the West Virginia counties of Mineral, Hampshire, Grant and Hardy.

Brooks Robinson played third base for the Baltimore Orioles from September 1955 to season's end in 1977. During those 23 seasons, he rewrote the record books of the Orioles, the American League and the position of third base.

He won 16 straight Golden Glove Awards from 1960 through the mid-Seventies. During the 1970 World Series, he was given the nickname "Hoover" because of his flawless 'vacuum cleaner' performance.

Robinson's list of MVP Awards is one of the most extensive in baseball. He was the American League MVP in 1964; the MVP in the 1966 All-Star Game (he played in 18 consecutive All-Star Games, starting 11); the 1970 World Series MVP and he was the MVO (Most Valuable Oriole) in 1960, 1962, 1964 and 1971.

Robinson was the 1972 Roberto Clemente Award winner which meant that he best exemplified the game of baseball on and off the field. And, he won the 1971 Hickock Belt as the outstanding athlete of the year, nationally.

The Baltimore Advertising Club named Robinson the Man of the Decade in 1972.

He was a steady performer for the Orioles, playing in 2,896 games, From 1960 through 1974, he played 98 percent of all Oriole's games.

Robinson has stepped into a new vocation since leaving baseball but he has continued to be actively involved in the community making the Baltimore area a better place to live.

He and his wife, Connie, are the parents of four children, Brooks David, Chris, Michael and Dianna.

Goldstein Notes Tax Relief To S&L Depositers

Maryland State Comptroller Louis L. Goldstein announced that the income tax division of his office will grant the same administrative relief as the Internal Revenue Service to taxpayers with funds in certain state chartered savings and loan institutions.

"We worked with the IRS and Governor Hughes to provide an acceptable way of treating interest which was earned by many taxpayers in 1985, but which was not available to them because of withdrawal limitations," Goldstein said.

Depositors will benefit from the action because they will have to pay income tax in 1985 only on interest they withdrew from their account after they had withdrawn the amount of their previous deposits. Withdrawals were permitted for certain obligations, including taxes and mortgages.

The specific Internal Revenue Service announcement states that taxpayers who report their income on a cash basis—which includes most taxpayers—will be allowed to report as taxable interest the amount by which interest earned during 1985 from an account at one of the affected institutions exceeds the account balance at the end of the year.

The special treatment applies only for returns filed for 1985 and only if withdrawals remained limited at the institutions on the last day of the tax year.

DECD Announces New Programs To Provide Housing

Maryland Department of Economic and Community Development Secretary Thomas H. Maddux has announced the creation of two new financing programs designed to help local governments and non-profit organizations provide housing for people with low incomes.

The new programs, the Construction Loan Program and the Homeownership Incentive Program, are the first to be created as part of the governor's housing initiatives, which were presented recently to the General Assembly in the governor's State of the State address. These programs require no legislative action or additional funding.

Both programs will be operated by the Community Development Administration (CDA), the state's housing finance agency, a division of the Department of Economic and Community Development.

The Construction Loan Program will provide low-interest loans to local governments and non-profit organizations for the acquisition and rehabilitation or the new construction of single-family or multi-family housing developments, which will be sold or rented to low-income families. Up to $2 million in funds will be made available to local governments and non-profit organizations.

The program will be limited to projects for which there are no other sources of construction financing. In addition, construction loans will be approved only for projects which have identified a commitment for permanent financing. Interest on the loans will be eight percent, and loan terms generally will not exceed two years. Pre-construction costs, such as plan preparation, site development, surveys, permits and architectural fees, can be financed in conjunction with the construction or rehabilitation of a housing development.

Loans to local governments and non-profit organizations will be approved on a first-come, first-served basis. For information about the Construction Loan Program, or to obtain application forms, contact CDA's Home Improvement Programs office at (301) 269-2795 from the Baltimore metropolitan area, or toll-free from outside the Baltimore metropolitan area at 1-800-492-7127.

The $3 million Homeownership Incentive Program provides commitments for low-interest permanent financing to local governments and non-profit organizations, which construct or rehabilitate single-family housing developments for sale to low-and moderate-income families. When the developments are completed, these funds can be used to provide low-interest mortages for households earning $20,000 a year or less, who purchase the completed homes.

Financing will be available at 7.75 percent interest. Loan terms may vary, but will not exceed 25 years.

Eligible properties include newly-constructed or substantially rehabilitated single-family homes, including detached homes, townhouses, condominiums, and cooperatives. In awarding funds, special consideration will be given to developments that encourage innovative construciton techniques, such as manufactured or modular housing.

Proposals from local governments or non-profit organizations will be accepted on a first-come, first-served basis. Priority in allocating funds will be given to those governments and organizations which make financial contributions, such as cash, tax abatement, or land donations, which will lower the cost of the housing being developed or rehabilitated.

A commitment for permanent financing through the Homeownership Incentive Program can help make a local government or non-profit organization eligible for loans through the Construction Loan Program.

For information or to obtain application forms for the Homeownership Incentive Program, persons may contact CDA's Single-Family Programs office toll-free, 1-800-638-7781.

Something To Think About

R. Mark Durst
DIRECTOR

AFRAID TO SAY THE WRONG THING

Many quite close and caring friends avoid a family which has suffered a loss, or keep silent about their feelings, for fear "of saying the wrong thing." To begin with, this is not an unusual reaction. Often it is because individuals have not come to terms with their own sentiments about death. Because they are unsure of their feelings, they are afraid their words will come out all mixed up.

Try not to worry. There is no one "right" attitude toward death and grief. Besides, many people are as confused and ambivalent about it as you may be. In fact, it would not be amiss to share your concerns. It might even open the door for family members to express their own doubts and feelings.

The important thing is to be with them, and to show that you care. It is very rare that an honest display of humanity will be resented and misunderstood. Absence or silence, on the other hand, might be.

Preston County Habitat Chapter Is Established

Habitat for Humanity, a nonprofit Christian housing ministry, has recently been incorporated and begun work in Preston County, W.Va. The organization, the first affiliate of the national Habitat for Humanity movement in West Virginia, is a part of the worldwide ecumenical program in which Christians of all denominations work together to form a partnership with the "working poor" to create decent, safe, adequate housing for them.

Habitat for Humanity, Inc., the national parent organization, was formed by Millard Fuller and the late Dr. Clarence Jordan in Americus, Ga., in 1968, and is based on biblical principles. Habitat has many affiliated projects, such as the Preston County organization, throughout the United States and the world. Habitat is not a temporary program which responds to disasters such as the 1985 flood in West Virginia. Preston County Habitat for Humanity was organized prior to the flood and is intended to be a vital force in the effort to eliminate substandard housing in Preston County. It challenges people to become concerned about their neighbors and involved in efforts to aid those who are in need of better housing. This mission is accomplished through volunteers who donate their time and talents to the cause, and those who provide the initial capital—through gifts—to build or renovate simple, decent homes for those without adequate housing.

The Preston County Habitat for Humanity will establish an impartial family-selection process whereby Prestonians most in need of improved housing will be given top priority. Once a family is chosen, volunteers and family members will begin construction of a new home or renovation of an existing structure. Each home constructed by Preston County Habitat will be sold at no profit, with a no-interest mortgage to be repaid by the family over a 15 to 25-year period. The house payments will be returned to the building fund established by the local affiliate and will be used to build more homes.

This local Habitat for Humanity movement will rely heavily on volunteers (members) for administrative and construction duties. Anyone desiring further information on the organization may contact Rev. Charles Eble, P.O. Box 115, Arthurdale, W.Va. 26520. The organization welcomes donations (which are tax-deductible) and support from the public.

MIEMSS, ACC Set Mock Trial For EMTs, CRTs

A special workshop entitled "Mock Trial" will be co-sponsored by the Region I Maryland Institute for Emergency Medical Services (MIEMSS) and the Allegany Community College Center for Continuing Education on February 22. The program will be held in the Circuit Court for Allegany County in Cumberland from 8:30 a.m. until 4 p.m.

According to David P. Ramsey, Region I administrator for MIEMSS, with malpractice suits against health professionals on the increase, a pre-hospital provider (EMTs, CRTs, etc.) may be called upon to give a deposition or testify in a court room. Using a mock trial format this workshop will present the unfolding of an actual court case. Topics of discussion include: what to do when served a summons; the process of examination and cross-examination by plaintiff and defense lawyers; and, the vulnerability of the practitioner whose documentation lacks some crucial components. In addition, a discussion period with the experts in the fields of medical risk-management and legal defense will follow.

Program presenters will be Joseph Montedonico and Roy Mason, from the law firm of Ehrmantraut, Donehue, Montedonico. Also participating will be Barbara Siebelt, R.N., Risk Management Representative of the Pennsylvania Casualty Company.

Ramsey said that "increasingly the field providers for emergency medical care are concerned with legal implications of their role in the delivery of medicine. It is hoped that this workshop will answer many of their questions and concerns."

Individuals who are interested in obtaining more information about this program and/or wish to register should contact either the Region I MIEMSS Office (895-5934 or 826-8636) or Donna Walbert at Allegany Community College (724-7700, Ext. 285).

Bausch & Lomb Reports Increased Sales, Earnings

Bausch & Lomb Incorporated (BOL) reported last week a 12% improvement in sales, and a 14% gain in earnings from continuing operations for the year ended December 29, 1985.

Sales for the period were $596.2 million, compared to $533.6 million in 1984, while earnings from continuing operations increased to $66.8 million versus $58.8 million in the prior year. Equivalent earnings per share rose 13% to $2.23 compared to $1.98. Net earnings for 1985 rose 33% to $66.8 million or $2.23 per share compared to the 1984 amounts of $50.2 million or $1.69 per share, which reflected income of $0.5 million or $.01 per share from discontinued industrial instruments and a $9.0 million or $.30 per share charge to establish a reserve for discontinued industrial instrument operations. The divestiture of these discontinued businesses was completed during 1985.

For the 1985 fourth quarter sales of $152.8 million were 10% above the comparable 1984 figure of $139.1 million. Fourth quarter net earnings of $19.9 million increased 9% from $18.2 million, while earnings per share rose 8% to $.66 versus $.61.

Conference On Women's Health Set At Frostburg

Information, awareness and forum are the key words to best describe a special one-day conference on women's health, set for Saturday, February 22, at Frostburg State College's Lane Center from 9 a.m. to 3 p.m. The conference, which will involve an Oakland physician, is co-sponsored by Frostburg State College and Allegany Community College.

According to the conferences' co-coordinators, Lee Cohen, a Frostburg psychologist and Donna Walbert, director of ACC's health and professional continuing education, the event has been organized to present information on women's health issues, increase awareness of women's physical and psychological health and provide a forum for all these issues.

In what may be the region's most comprehensive conference on women's health, covering everything from osteoporosis and breast cancer to less defined subjects like the working woman syndrome and the victimization of women, the session will draw upon a strong, but oftentimes untapped reservoir of expertise in the Allegany-Garrett County area, according to Cohen.

"Women aren't always able to just pick up the telephone and get the help or information they need," explained Dr. Cohen. "We have the resources and yet they are not readily accessible or known, which is one reason we decided to organize this conference—to introduce and familiarize women with various health issues, including where they may go for follow-up information."

Leading a discussion on osteoporosis will be Oakland physician Dr. Peg Kaiser, M.D., internal medicine.

In a format delivered by and for women, the conference will provide a climate for education about women's health and well-being. According to Cohen, assertiveness and information are integral aspects of women's health.

Cohen began formulating the session last fall before such subjects as osteoporosis showed up on mass magazine covers and newspaper articles started to critically examine subjects like rape, incest and abuse.

Newsweek's recent cover story on osteoporosis, the debilitating bone disease which affects mostly women, was linked to the current calcium/mineral supplement craze. Plus, a revealing article in Maryland newspaper this week, discussed how women not only have to contend with the social impact of rape and abuse, but also apparently have to lobby organizations like the American Psychiatric Association so it won't include in its list of mental disorders "illnessess" like "paraphihlic rapism" or "self-defeating personality disorder." Such so-called disorders, women argue, are offensive and harmful to the psychiatric well-being of women.

Sixteen guest speakers and panel members will participate in the health conference, which will air ten different health topics in concurrent presentations during the day-long event.

Registration fees, which include a luncheon, are $10 for general admission and $2 for students. Registration deadline is February 14. For registration information, persons may call Allegany Community College at 724-7700, extension 2851.

Ed Bianchi explores TV's commercial side

By Frank Lovece

For the past 10 years, Ed Bianchi's directed TV commercials starring such luminaries as Bill Cosby, Geraldine Ferraro and Joe Montana, and for such major-league clients as Pepsi and American Express. He's won his share of Clios, the advertising-industry Oscar. Yet from his pleasantly wise-guy inflections, you half expect that any minute Bianchi will invite you out for a beer in his hometown of Paterson, N.J.

Ed Bianchi

"Yeah," Bianchi says, "a lotta guys in commercial photography and directing come up from the streets. That's the kind of person (the work) appeals to, I guess. I know a lotta guys like that."

Bianchi, 42, doesn't get back to Paterson much these days. He lives — at least part of the time — in Manhattan, and his profession takes him to places such as Jamaica, where he's just finished shooting the new reggae-tinged "Come Back To Jamaica" commercials. Now that he's back, Bianchi will be doing the same thing virtually every TV-commercial director does between assignments: polishing up movie proposals.

Bianchi has, to date, only directed one film, 1981's "The Fan," which was panned as "an exploitation cheapie in dress clothes." The story of a murderous fan stalking star Lauren Bacall unfortunately coincided with the shootings of John Lennon, Ronald Reagan and the Pope. "The movie was filmed before all that stuff started happening," recalls Bianchi. "And Paramount didn't know what to do with it. If they'd have tried to market it right," he gripes, "the movie would've done OK."

Still, Bianchi has done OK. His career's enabled him to make friends with childhood hero Cosby, and, he beams, "I also get to go to Jamaica in January. What could be better?"

Ironically, quite a bit. Reggae, the native Jamaican music Bianchi is using in his commercials, often portrays the Caribbean Island's extreme poverty and racial tensions. Yet this side won't be seen in the tourism commercials. Does it bother Bianchi to present a skewed picture?

"Poverty in Jamaica isn't like poverty in New York," he believes. "In a way, Jamaica's poor are rich; they can go anywhere and fish or pick fruit." The late Jamaican hero Bob Marley would probably have argued with that blithe assessment.

Stahl's still cooking after all these years

By Gregory Garver

Richard Stahl

"I worked at the Hotel Del Coronado when I first got out of high school," says Stahl. "My job was to come in at 4:30 in the morning, and get all the waffle and pancake batter done. I was the waffle, pancake and toast man in the morning, and the salad and sandwich man in the afternoon."

But Stahl says he was consumed with the desire "to become a hot-shot actor," so he quit his restaurant job to tackle show business.

"If I'd have stayed being a chef," he says, "I would have gotten to travel — chefs always travel — and I would have gotten to eat."

Stahl is still the family cook. "I like it and I'm good at it," he says. "I've been married for 26 years, but our children are only 12 and 8. We finally got around to having kids," he adds with a smile, "after 14 years of marriage. With kids, you know, you go out to a restaurant, spend $11.50 for their entree and they eat only the french fries and the bread.

"So I got to cooking for the kids. And I have found ways of making things that kids like to eat," he explains. "They like to eat potatoes, so I have fancy potato dishes, like my Potato Volcano."

Stahl has been acting for 30 years. When the going got rough, he practiced a magic act, parked cars and, while he was studying in New York, was a stage manager for an off-Broadway theater.

Stahl, his wife and a few friends were also part of the improvisational group, The Committee. Howard Hesseman and Barbara Bosson were among those also involved.

Since Stahl has been cooking up a career storm since 1952 (that's when he claims he started making a decent living), these days, cooking is just a hobby in his life.

And on "It's a Living," it's a prop.

ASK ME ABOUT TV

By Val Carew

I am in love with Bruce Willis, that sexy, sophisticated hunk from "Moonlighting." What can you tell me about him? — A.F., McGaheysville, Va.

Bruce Willis

Willis, who portrays gumshoe David Addison on the ABC series, was born in Penns Grove, N.J. on March 19. His New York stage credits include "Heaven and Earth," "Bayside Boys," "Bull Pen" and "The Ballad of Railroad William." In 1984, he starred in Sam Shepard's critically-acclaimed play "Fool for Love" for four months.

Willis' regional theater credits include "Cat on a Hot Tin Roof," "Sweet Bird of Youth," "The Little Foxes," "Two Gentlemen of Verona," "A Midsummer Night's Dream" and "Of Mice and Men." His feature films include "The Verdict," "Prince of the City" and "The First Deadly Sin."

You may have also seen Willis in several shows, including "Hart to Hart" and "Miami Vice." The thespian likes skiing and plays the harmonica. By the way, A.F., the 6-foot hunk is single.

I recently heard a rumor about a possible movie which would reunite the old Andy Griffith gang. The show was a favorite of mine. Could the rumor be true? — T.C., Greenville, Texas

Andy Griffith

It's more than a rumor, T.C. There is talk of such a project, and while contracts haven't been signed, it appears the former cast members are eager to do the film. I'll try to keep you posted on further details.

COMING ATTRACTIONS

Victoria is concerned with terrorist threats

By Marc Minnelli

Bombs bursting. Blood spilling. People dying. We read about the carnage of terrorists everyday, and this week, the subject is dramatized in "Under Siege," a made-for-TV movie airing Sunday, Feb. 9 on NBC. The three-hour film, a fictional story about our country's ability — and inability — to deal with a reign of terror that begins when hundreds of Americans on an Army base are killed, and continues when the United States Capitol is bombed. It stars Emmy winners Hal Holbrook, Peter Strauss, E.G. Marshall, Mason Adams, Beatrice Straight and Victoria Tennant.

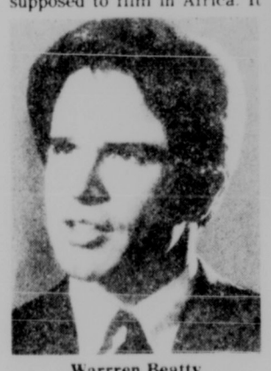
Victoria Tennant

Even before it officially aired, "Under Siege," which was based on a series of Washington Post articles co-written by Pulitzer Prize-winning journalist Bob Woodward, has been criticized for being a far-fetched, gloom-and-doom melodrama. Miss Tennant, who plays Gloria Garry, the wife of F.B.I. Director John Garry (Strauss), disagrees.

"Americans haven't experienced war on their own territory since the Civil War," says the 34-year-old British actress, whose godfather is Lord Laurence Olivier. "So they think they're so damned invulnerable. If Rome and Vienna can have bombs put in their airports, why can't that happen in New York or Washington? America is an island, and Americans like to think no one will ever invade their waters. That," she sniffs, "is rubbish."

Miss Tennant, best known for her role as Pamela Tudsbury in the 1983 ABC miniseries "The Winds of War," says she resents when people call "Under Siege" an exploitation film.

"It was written before the Achille Lauro incident," she explains. "And how can anything that's so prevalant today be dubbed exploitation? Terrorism should be on everyone's mind these days, but Americans want to think they'll always remain untouched. God forbid," she adds, "when it finally hits home."



Miss Tennant admits her "Under Siege" role "is far from perfect and essential," and vows her next role will be in an as-yet untitled black comedy which she also hopes to produce.

"Comedy is so much harder than drama," says the actress, who co-starred in the recent film "All of Me" with Lily Tomlin and Steve Martin, "because it requires extreme discipline. No one likes to acknowledge that, however, because comedy has always been dismissed as being too easy. I hope to finally change all that."

Dusty, Warren won't be walking a mile

By Cindy Adams

The Warren Beatty-Dustin Hoffman flick, "Ishtar," which Elaine May is directing, was supposed to film in Africa. It won't. A giant, expensive camelmobile, some sort of elaborate mock-up of an ambulatory camel which takes days to assemble, was shipped to Morocco. He/she/it won't be shipped back. Instead, the film will be shot at Kaufman Astoria Studios in New York — and Long Island City is going to be made up to look like Morocco.

Warrren Beatty

Liza Minnelli

Why the locale switch? Terrorism and threats on location. This galloping worldwide evil has now effected the entertainment industry. Liza Minnelli's European tour was to last a couple of months. It's now been pared down to avoid some stops in Italy, Germany and other high-risk areas where hijacking and terrorism are facts of life. Our big stars may still find it safe to shuffle off to Buffalo, but they won't go a hell of a lot further.

Joel Grey says "Remo Williams: The Adventure Begins," the film in which he recently starred, will have a sequel. It's name? "Chiun" the name of Grey's big-screen character. ... Margaret Thatcher has a cellular purse. Britain's Prime Minister carries a $2,800 state-of-the-art portable phone in her handbag.

He may be old and retired, but James Cagney's still tough. He's suing some Toronto organization for using — without permission — a still of Jimmy from "Public Enemy" for a mouthwash ad. It left a bad taste in the actor's mouth, so he's suing for $1.4 million. ... Irving Wallace wants Barbara Stanwyck to play Eva Braun in his "The Seventh Secret" miniseries. Her reaction? "No."

Shades of "Back to the Future"! Huckleberry Fox (l.) stars as a boy who gets sent back to the past in "The Blue Yonder," the "The Disney Sunday Movie" airing Sunday, Feb. 9 on ABC. Peter Coyote co-stars.

Clothes make a man: Dack plays 'Dallas'

By Gillian George

Not many actors choose their next role based on the wardrobe their character will wear. But that's basically what happened to Dack Rambo, just before he joined "Dallas" as J.R. Ewing's mysterious cousin Jack.

Dack Rambo

The mischievous-looking, 38-year-old actor laughs when he recalls how it happened. "I had just come off 'Paper Dolls,'" he says, "and, one day, I was shooting the breeze with my agent. I told him that I would love not to have to wear three-piece suits and ties ever again onscreen. Jeans, shirts and cowboy boots, I said, would be my idea of wardrobe heaven. So we both looked at each other and said, 'That sounds like "Dallas." Why don't we give it a shot?'"

Nearly a year later, Rambo was cast on the show, and he admits it wasn't easy walking onto the set that first day of shooting.

"I was terrified," he recalls. "You don't just waltz in and mingle freely with the stars of the most successful show in the world for the past seven years. But luckily," he adds, "my first scene was with Larry Hagman, and we had worked together on the pilot of 'Sword of Justice' about eight years earlier. That eased the awkwardness quite a bit and he tried to make things easier for me."

Actually, Rambo says things have never really come easily for him, ever since he and his twin brother, Dirk (actually, their given names were Norman and Orman, respectively) made their major TV debut in "The New Loretta Young Show." When the series folded after one season, the twins were on their own.

Then, in 1972, Dirk died in a traffic accident (he was hit by a drunk driver), and Dack says he spent the next 10 years "in a daze." It took intensive therapy to snap him out of his grief, and he says he's felt fine since 1983, when he was cast on "All My Children."

Now, of course, Rambo (who jokes that he thanks Sylvester Stallone every day for making his name famous) is finally getting the kind of world-wide celebrity that only a show like "Dallas" can bring.

"The most positive thing about it," he says, "is that you're thrust into the public eye like never before. Even though this is my eighth series, it's the closest I've ever come to stardom."

What happens if the United States is attacked by terrorists? Mason Adams, Hal Holbrook and Fritz Weaver (left to right) star in "Under Siege," a three-hour movie about such a terrifying idea. The film airs Feb. 9 on NBC.

Cross-Lites says

"Jesus the Christ died, was buried and raised by God himself from the dead. Think about it; act on it."

WE DO WINDOWS

The other day I was following a truck that had its company name emblazoned in large letters on the back door. But then I spotted a smaller sentence underneath the company's name.

"We Do Windows"

I wanted to stop the driver, get out, and offer congratulations if not hug his neck.

"We Do Windows." You don't see that phrase on many cleaning-service trucks, and you don't hear it from the lips of many people.

What we usually hear is "We DON'T do windows." It has become a slogan that summarizes too well our society. Because "doing windows" (washing and cleaning them) is hard work.

Yet, it is one of the most important jobs in life, both literally and figuratively. Windows in the house need cleaning from time to time; and, windows of the soul need daily cleaning or we end up seeing life totally out of perspective. Everything becomes blurred, and we get wrong signals about people and life.

Cleaning windows gives focus, enabling us to see what life, love, duty and responsibility are all about. Plus, it simply feels good when you can see through clean windows.

Real people do windows. And doing windows make people real.

THE BIBLE SPEAKS

BY LAWRENCE W. ALTHOUSE

THE UNFAILING TREASURE

February 9, 1986

Background Scripture: Matthew 6:19-21; Luke 12:13-21, 27-34.
Devotional Reading: Luke 16:19-31.

Possessions: things that belong to me--or perhaps things that I want to belong to me and for which I am spending my time, effort and thought to obtain.

Probably nothing causes us so much inner conflict than our possessions. On the one hand we teach each other that only spiritual treasures make life worthwhile and give it everlasting meaning. At the same time, we have structured our society and our individual lives on the pursuit of more and more material possessions. We value everything with a price-tag that reflects material worth. We judge other people, ourselves and even our spiritual institutions on the basis of their material balance sheets.

WHOSE POSSESSIONS?

Yet, we remember that Jesus said, "Take heed, and beware of all covetousness; for a man's life does not consist in the abundance of his possessions" (Luke 12:15). I am not a rich man (in material things), but I do have lots of material possessions--"lots" in contrast to what my forebearers had or what the average person has in on of the Third World countries. Would I be more "spiritual" if I had a lot less? Maybe yes, maybe no, but not necessarily either.

It is not that my possessions are evil, nor do they have the power to corrupt or adulterate me. It is the way I feel about and value those possessions that make the difference. If I let my "things" possess me, that is when the evil and the corruption set in. This is what Jesus was saying in his parable of the rich fool, Luke 12:16-21. The problem was not that the man was enterprising with the fruits of his labor, that he wanted to pull down his barns and build bigger ones, but that he thought that in doing so he had found the treasure of life.

FOOL!

God's response jars us just as it must have shaken up the rich fool: "Fool! This night your soul is required of you; and the things you have prepared, whose will they be?" (12:20). Take a quick mental inventory of your material possessions and then read those words again: "...the things you have prepared, whose will they be?" If tonight were to prove to be your last night, what treasure, if any, could you take with you?

The bright and shiny things of this world are wonderful to own, use and enjoy, but we must constantly remind ourselves that they constitute a treasure that ultimately will fail us. It may be stolen from us, we may lose it in a terrible natural disaster, or keep it until our dying day, but it is the wrong treasure upon which to found our lives. As Jesus says, "...provide yourselves with purses that do not grow old, with a treasure in the heavens that does not fail, where no thief approaches and no moth destroys. For where your treasure is there will your heart be also" (12:33, 34).

Economist Has Little Optimism For Future Of Mid-Sized Farms

University of Maryland economist, Dr. Earl Brown, an expert on agricultural policy with experience in world trade who has been in close touch with Washington, spoke on the 1985 Farm Bill during an afternoon session at Garrett Community College on Monday.

Garrett County Extension Agent Jim Simms introduced Brown and welcomed approximately 125 farmers who came out to learn what they could about the farm bill. Referring to that legislation, Simms said, "As far as I can see, it's a mass of confusion, with people not really knowing what's going on. I've had a lot of folks call me thinking the farm bill said one thing, when in reality it did not say that." Simms said he hoped Monday's session would help clarify some of the questions concerning the farm bill, but said, "The farm bill still has a long way to go as far as interpretation is concerned."

Simms continued, saying that the task of putting together a farm bill was great. "In general," he said, "the agriculture industry has all the different commodity groups looking out for their own benefits—grain farmers look out for themselves—and when they win, dairy farmers lose because of the cost of feed. So when you get all these commodities working together, plus you put your politicians in there and all the agriculture industry and their input, you end up with quite a task in trying to summarize a farm bill to state the needs of all farmers."

"What's the intention of the farm bill?" Simms asked, and answered, "To try to get the agriculture industry back on some kind of stability and yet feed the people of the nation at a reasonable price."

"Will it do the job?" he asked. "Maybe and maybe not. That is a good way for politicians to answer."

Brown picked up the topic from there and said that he is asked three questions most often.

"Is agriculture in a crisis or not, and how serious is it?"

"What's agriculture going to look like five years down the road when we have some adjustments take place?"

"What impact will the 1985 Farm Bill have on these changes, these adjustments?"

He showed how critical the farm situation is nationwide, and gave the amount of surplus produced as one reason for the current crisis. His charts showed that 60 percent of the wheat produced is surplus, 15 percent of all corn produced is surplus, and 17 percent of all dairy products produced is surplus.

Showing that the amount of government costs to farm programs since 1960 stayed right around three billon dollars, he told the audience that a large jump in government spending for farm programs took place in 1981 when it rose to 18 billion dollars.

He summed up the problems as low income, a large amount of surplus, and the high costs of government support. Expecting the farm bill to help much is asking a lot, seeing that many people consider the $52 billion program too conservative. Even if the plan had been to help the farm economy, Brown sees two caveats—the Gramm-Rudman-Hollings act which could cause adjustments in support prices and loan rates, and the fact that after the 1986 elections a new farm bill may be written.

Going back to the current farm bill, Brown said that its intent was to do four things:

To make farming more market oriented by lowering loan rates and promoting exports.

To reduce surpluses, the acreage reduction program being one way to do that.

To reduce production, two ways laid out in the bill include the conservation/reserve program and the dairy herd buyout program.

Using deficiency payments for crops.

What changes does Brown see in the next five years? A continual reduction in the number of farmers, which has been the trend in this country since 1910.

If prices get lower in the next five years, Brown says it's unlikely that small farmers will go out of business. Most of the average small farmer's income comes from off-farm jobs. He says that it's also unlikely that large farms will go out of business unless they are in financial trouble. Saying that he wished he could be more optimistic, it would be the medium sized farms that would go out of business. "Farms that have been the traditional backbone of agriculture will be hit the hardest. I don't think it's a very rosy picture," he said.

After a question and answer period, the program was turned over to G.P. Halterman of the ASCS office. The report of his discussion of the "whole herd buyout" program is found in a separate story in this week's farm section.

Details Of "Whole Herd Buyout" Program Are Announced By USDA

The USDA, whose job is to regulate the provisions of the farm bill, the Food Security Act of 1985, is slowly putting together a dairy termination program known as the "whole herd buyout." While local ASCS officials, who are expected to advise the farmers, and the farmers themselves are thoroughly confused by what the USDA is not telling them, some details have been announced.

G.P. Halterman, local ASCS manager, spoke on the program Monday at Garrett Community College, creating a number of questions in the minds of the many farmers attending. Because Halterman's office has received more information on the program, this article is an update to Halterman's presentation at GCC.

This "whole herd buyout" program is designed to reduce the milk produced by the nation's dairy farmers by 12-billion pounds. The "whole herd buyout" program is exactly what its name implies: dairy producers will be encouraged to get out of the business, selling all of their animals for slaughter or export. Under the terms of the program, the federal government pays the producer to get out of the business of producing milk. The government will finance all or part of the program through a 40 cent per hundredweight assessment on all milk produced beginning April 1. This assessment, of course, will be paid by farmers who remain in the business of producing milk, and is expected to drop to 25 cents per hundredweight on January 1, 1987.

At the same time producers are paying this assessment, the support price for milk will drop steadily from the current $11.60 per hundred to a possible $10.10 in 1990. Even more reductions in the support price of milk could come early this spring when the Gramm-Rudman-Hollings legislation goes into effect.

All this is expected to make the "whole herd buyout" look good to dairy farmers, who must consider the relative merits of staying in business or getting out of business under the terms of the program. When considering the buyout program each dairy producer should look at his total financial position, and his financial alternatives. Fixed and variable costs, short and longterm commitments, alternative and non-farm job opportunities, and the intangibles of lifestyle and family commitments should all be considered.

To enter into the 18-month Dairy Termination Program, dairy producers must submit a dollars-per-hundredweight--milk bid between February 10 and March 7 to enter into a contract to terminate milk production for five years.

Producers will be asked to submit bids for one or more of the following "disposal" periods: April 1 to August 31, 1986; September 1, 1986 to February 28, 1987; and March 1, 1987 to August 31, 1987. These disposal periods represent the times during which producers contract to dispose of their female dairy cattle through either slaughter or export.

A farmer's first step in making a bid is establishing his base. This is done by recording the pounds of milk marketed commercially for two 12-month periods beginning in July 1984 through December 1985. The first 12-month base period will be July 1984 through June 1985, with the second 12-month period being January through December 1985. This includes an overlapping six-month period which uses the same figures for both base periods (see accompanying chart and explanation).

Both these 12-month periods are totaled and the farmer's preliminary base is the lesser of the two milk-marketing periods. The number of cows, heifers and calves on the farm is used to relate to, and verify these marketing figures. Department of Agriculture Secretary John R. Block says there will be no upward adjustments to the base period marketings for any reason. Bids will be evaluated based on production during the base period and not on prospective production.

Block stressed that changes in the size and composition of a producer's dairy herd may result in a reduction in the contract base. For example, the preliminary base will be adjusted by reducing that base for any dairy cattle that were transferred off the farm for purposes other than slaughter or export on or after January 1, 1986. In addition, other adjustments in the base may be made relating to the producer's herd size.

Once the base is established, the pounds of milk marketed must be changed to hundredweight. This is done by dividing the total number of pounds in the base by 100. The bid is based on that figure.

Jim Simms at the Garrett County Extension Office is prepared to provide an economic analysis for famers, providing them with a break-even point so they can place an intelligent bid. To come up with this break-even figure, Simms needs as additional information: all fixed costs, variable costs, and any loan commitments. The present year's records will be used to make a five-year projection so the farmer can see just what price he must bid to take care of his costs over that five-year period.

Bids can be made for all three disposal periods, and the bid need not be the same for any of the three periods, however, all bids must be made by March 7. If his bid is accepted, the farmer will be notified in two weeks to 20 days time. One oddity of the program occurs when a bid is accepted for the third disposal period of March 1, 1987 through August 31, 1987. The farmer will produce milk as usual until that time and pay the 40 cent assessment, which in effect means that he is paying himself to go out of business.

If a producer's bid is accepted, the producer may not engage in the production of milk for commercial use for five years; acquire or retain any interest in dairy cattle or the production of milk; acquire any milk production facility that becomes available because of the Dairy Termination Program; or make available any milk production facility to any person for the purpose of producing milk. Dairy producers will be allowed to sell milk production equipment such as bulk tanks or milking machines with no restrictions. However, restrictions will be made on the use of dairy barns and even silos on that producer's farm.

Successful bidders will be given options for the timing of cash payments. Initial payments will be made shortly after all of the producers under contract have accurately certified that the dairy herd disposal is complete. Dairy cows and bred heifers sold by milk producers for slaughter must be slaughtered within 15 days from the date of sale, but not later than the final day of the contract disposal period.

Other dairy cattle such as unbred heifers and calves sold by milk producers for slaughter must be slaughtered within six months from the date of sale, but not later than the final day of the contract disposal period—except that for the initial disposal period, such slaughter must occur no later than September 30, 1986.

Producers will be required to certify the following information on forms provided by their county ASCS office: head of cattle by type (cows, heifers and calves); date of sale, weight and price received; and date the cattle must be slaughtered. This certification must be signed by both the seller and buyer.

After the bid is accepted, the producer must select the payment option he wants. He may take the payments in five equal installments, one each year for the five years of the contract. Or, he may forego payments the first year, receive 85 percent of the payment in the second year, and five percent each year for the remaining three years of the contract. Or, he may elect to receive 80 percent of the payment the first year and five percent of the remainder each year of the last four years of the program.

Payments will be made based upon the individual producer's certification of compliance with the terms and conditions of the program. All of a contracting producer's dairy cattle will have to be branded in a manner to be announced later by USDA.

All interested producers should contact Halterman at the county ASCS office in the Garrett County Courthouse by calling 334-9646; or Simms at the Garrett County Extension Office by calling 334-2145, for help or additional information.

This farmer's base will be 807,699 pounds (the lesser of the two periods).

ESTABLISHING THE BASE — The chart above shows an example of the two 12-month base periods between July 1984 and December 1985. Notice that the figures in the darker print are used in both base periods. They represent the six-month overlap which is necessary to get two 12-month periods out of one 18-month time period. The pounds of milk marketed are totaled for both 12-month periods and the lesser of the two totals will be this farmer's base, in this case 807,699 pounds. The number of cows, heifers, and calves on the farm on January 1 of 1985 and January 1 of 1986 must be reported to relate to the milk-marketing figures. This 807,699 pound base must now be changed into hundredweights by dividing by 100 which gives a 8077 cwt. Using all other necessary information (fixed costs, variable costs, loan commitments) this farmer has decided to make a bid at $30 per hundredweight ($6 per hundredweight for one year). His bid is accepted which makes his total payment for the five-year contract $242,310. The farmer now must decide which payment option to choose: five equal installments, one each year for the five years of the contract; forego payment the first year, receive 85% of the payment in the second year, and 5% each year for the remaining three years of the contract; or 80% of the payment the first year and 5% of the remainder each year of the last four years of the program.

Colt To Be Won By County Youth In 4-H Contest

The Diamond D Quarter Horse farm has donated to the Garrett County 4-H program a registered Quarter Horse colt, "Dexters Story," born on March 7, 1985. The colt will be awarded to a Garrett County youth, age 8-19, as the result of a county-wide contest. The selection will be based on an application, workshop attendance, an essay and a final interview.

Initial applications, available at the Garrett County Extension Office, will be due March 15. The application asks for such information as facilities for keeping or boarding the horse; number of other horses sharing the facility; kind of pasture available; and the facilities available for riding, such as a ring, trails or open fields. These facilities may not be a deciding factor, but will show the youth's ability to care for the colt.

The application explains that as the winner of the contest, the recipient of the colt must agree to be an active 4-H member in a club; to submit a 4-H project record book; to carry the animal as a project for two years; to be responsible for all care and costs of the horse; to have the animal gelded by two-years of age; and if unable to care for the animal, the recipient agrees to return the colt to the Garrett County 4-H program within the two-year period.

The application will be followed by a series of four workshops during April. The workshops are tentatively scheduled for Tuesday evenings, and the topics will include: general knowledge of horses; basic care including safety and nutrition; basic training; record keeping; and a review offering hands-on experience. All applicants will receive a schedule of workshops and other details after the March 15 deadline.

After the workshops are completed, applicants will be required to complete an essay. This essay will be reviewed by a selection committee, and along with an interview, will be used to make the final selection.

Parental or guardian involvement is seen as an important factor in owning a horse, and the selection process will include parents. They will be asked to sign the application, attend the workshops along with the applicant, and be present at the interview.

The final decision will be made by mid-May, and the winner will be announced. Anyone wanting applications, more information, or answers to any questions should contact Ted Sprangel at the Garrett County Extension Office by calling 334-2145.

The yearling colt is halter broken and likes a lot of attention, says his owner Danny Otto. "Dexters Story" has been taught to lead, and is well-mannered. He is registered with the American Quarter Horse Association and the papers will be transfered to the winner of the contest.

The colt's sire is Dexters Graduate, who in a limited show career was Grand Champion Stallion at the 1983 Garrett County Fair as a yearling, and placed 10 out of 67 horses at a Virginia Quarter Horse Association show.

His dam, Scooters Story, was the 1982 Hi-Point Yearling Filly in Maryland at the Maryland Quarter Horse Association shows. She was Hi-Point Yearling Filly of the 1982 Suntan Circuit, and Hi-Point Jr. Mare of the same circuit, and went on to be chosen Reserve Hi-Point Over-All Mare of the 1982 Suntan Curcuit.

Extension Agent Sprangel feels that the colt has a lot of potential as a project animal, and hopes that a large number of Garrett County youths will take part in the contest to win "Dexters Story."

1985 Farm Bill Conservation Reserve Program

The following information should provide you with a basic idea of the Conservation Reserve Program (CRP). The purpose of the program is for a long term set aside of 40 million acres of highly erodible argicultural land over a 5-year period. In Maryland, 362,900 acres are eligible for the CRP, 18,000 acres eligible in Garrett County. This land would be planted to permanent vegetative cover in one or more of the following five categories: 1) trees; 2) native grasses and legumes; 3)introduced grasses and legumes; 4) wildlife habitat; and 5) field windbreaks. The secondary goals of the CRP are to help adjust the production of some surplus agricultural commodities, to improve water quality, create fish and wildlife habitat and to provide some needed income support for farmers. What land is eligible? The CRP aims to remove from farming land in the capability classes II, III, IV and V which is currently eroding at a rate in excess of two times the tolerable rate, or land likely to erode excessively in the future because it is in land capability classes VI, VII and VIII.

To be eligible for the CRP, the land must have been used to produce an annual crop any two of the years between 1981 and 1985. How does the program work? A farmer may sign a ten-year contract with USDA under which he or she agrees to take eligible land out of annual crop production and put it into grass, wildlife plantings, windbreaks or trees. The USDA would provide annual rental payments, based on a bid, in cash or commodities, cost-sharing to help defray expense of establishing permanent cover on the land; payments to the individual producer could not exceed $50,000 per year, exclusive of other USDA payments. To minimize the impact upon agro-related businesses, not more than 25% of the cropland of any one county can be placed in the program. During the contract period the farmer may not reap commercial gain from the reserve land through such activities as haying, grazing or seed or tree production. For more information, contact my office or ASCS.

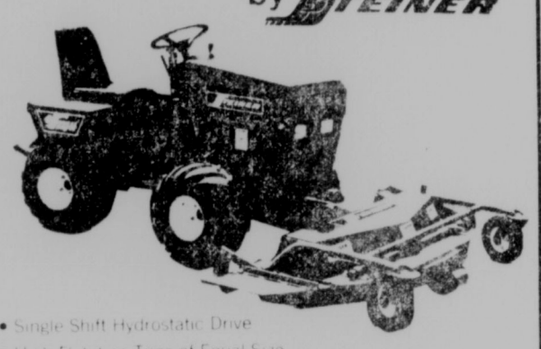
Md. Sheep Numbers Up

The total number of sheep and lambs in Maryland on January 1, 1986 totaled 19,000 head according to the Maryland Crop Reporting Service. This is 3,000 head, or 19 percent above the total for a year ago. Nationally, totals fell from 10.4 million head for January 1, 1985 to 9.9 million head this year. The average value per head for the state's sheep is $94.00 as of January 1, up from the $79.00 estimated for the previous year. The average across the United States was $67.40 per head, $6.30 above that for last year. The total inventory value for Maryland was $1.8 million (up 41 percent) while nationally the value was set at $669.9 million (up five percent).

Ewes one year old and older in the state increased from 11,000 to 13,000 with the number of rams and wethers at least one year old increased from 2,000 to 3,000. Nationally, both totals dropped with 6.8 million ewes and 308.5 thousand rams recorded. This compares with 7.2 million ewes and 313.6 thousand rams the previous year.

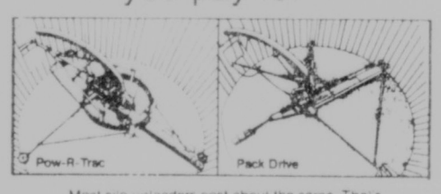
Maryland's lamb crop for the year at 16,000 was up 2,000 or 14 percent from last year. Across the United States, the lamb crop fell five percent to 7.4 million. The lambing rate was 102 lambs per 100 ewes nationally and 145 per 100 ewes in Maryland.

Garrett County farmers plant oats more than any other grain.



Volunteers Needed To Rebuild Flood Damaged Fences

Volunteers are being sought to help rebuild the 12,000 to 14,000 miles of fence which was destroyed by the November flood in West Virginia.



Much of this fence collected a lot of debris and was damaged beyond repair, while many farmers' fences just disappeared during the flood. Those farmers will need to pasture their cattle in the spring but will have no fences to hold them.

Anyone willing to work a half-day or whatever, should sign up with Ted Sprangel at the Garrett County Extension Office. Volunteers may call Sprangel at 334-2145.

Program By Dr. John Speicher For Dairy Farmers Is Well Attended

Dr. John Speicher, professor of Animal Science at Michigan State University, spoke to 76 Garrett County dairy farmers on Monday at Garrett Community College. The program, sponsored by the University of Maryland and the Garrett County Extension Service, featured the topics "Steps to Profitable Dairying" and "Personnel Management on the Farm."

"Labor has always been a critical factor on farms," Speicher reminded the farmers attending. He said that it continues to become more so as farms get larger and more people are hired. Speicher said that farmers ask, "Where do we look for farm help?" and "How do we keep good workers once they're hired?"

He related that personnel management can help with manpower planning, labor records, hiring, communications, training, motivation, and wages.

He stressed organizational structure in personnel management, and said it refers to the line of authority and the delegation of responsibility. "Employees must understand who to look to for instructions. There cannot be two bosses, and there certainly cannot be conflicting orders if harmony is to prevail. If one employee has been given authority over another always go through that individual in giving instructions. Don't bypass individuals in the line of authority."

Another important management tool stressed by Speicher is communications. "Many farm labor problems could be minimized or avoided completely if better communications existed between employers and employees. An employer cannot get the desired results from employees without communicating with them. Let the employee know what is expected."

Speicher listed eight "Steps to Profitable Dairying." These steps are: high milk production, a sound breeding program, feeding for high production, managed reproduction, a strong herd health program, a separate dry cow program, good young stock management, and utilizing dairy records.

In the question and answer session that followed, Speicher prompted several questions and comments with his statement that he is a "firm believer, and can show statistically, that it is better for a son to leave the farm for two years before becoming involved in the farm's management." This was an interesting thought to many of the father-son teams in the audience.

USDA To Conduct 1985 Farm Costs Nationwide Survey

A nationwide survey will be conducted in February and early March by the USDA's Statistical Reporting Service to determine 1985 farm costs and returns. In Maryland approximately 160 of the estimated 18,000 farms will be included in this survey.

The information collected during the farm costs and returns survey provides a current estimate of debts, assets, cash flow, net farm income and the present level of financial stress on farms. Estimates of farm costs, income, and financial conditions are used to help the public to better understand agriculture and is also used by farm managers, agricultural lenders, extension personnel, farm organizations, agribusinesses and the U.S. Congress.

All responses to this survey are to be kept confidential.

Legislature Sees Bills On Weeds, Grain Dealers

More bills will be heard in Annapolis that directly affect farmers. House Bill 73, sponsored by Delegate Michael R. Gordon (D-Montgomery) would require that a vehicle loaded with loose material must either ride in the right-hand lane and stay under 50 mph, or the load be covered. Agricultural products in their natural state would not be required to be covered.

A pesticide applicator's law requiring employees of commercial pest control firms who apply pesticides to be annually tested by the Department of Agriculture and participate in an annual training program will be heard today by the House Environmental Matters Committee. HB 302 was introduced by Delegate Virginia M. Thomas (D-Howard Co.).

Jack Miller, legislative lobbiest for Maryland Farm Bureau, reports on SB366, a water pollution control, citizen action bill. Basically, this bill, which will be heard today by the Senate Judicial Proceedings Committee, would give an individual the authority to bring civil action against other persons, including the state, for action relating to water pollution under certain conditions. Farm Bureau thinks this bill could be a problem, in that much time could be spent fighting civil suits whether there is guilt or not.

Bill HB495, introduced by Nancy L. Murphy (D-Baltimore Co.) adds the species of weeds, Polygonum Sagittatum and Polygonum Arifolium, both commonly known as tearthumb weed, to the list of weeds which are presently considered to be a public and common nuisance. Presently only Johnsongrass and thistle are so designated.

The House Environmental Matters Committee will be hearing a bill today which amends the grain buyers licensing law. First of all, the bill changes the term "grain buyer" to "grain dealer." It defines a grain dealer as a person who is in the business of buying, receiving, exchanging, or storing grain from a person who grows grain. However, a farmer who buys, receives, exchanges, or stores grain for his own operation is not considred a grain dealer.

The bill (HB536) mandates that a grain dealer shall keep grain records showing the amount of grain bought, received, exchanged, or stored, in the dealer's grain business. He shall keep grain records at each place of business, keep grain records for three years, and make grain records available to the Secretary of Agriculture upon request.

In order to improve the enforcement ability of the Secretary it gives him the authority to ask for a person's records so that he can detemine whether or not they need to be licensed. It also gives him the authority to subpoena the records of a person if they refuse to make their records available upon request.

Local Student Wins Essay Award

Cynthia Yeager, a fifth grade student at Accident Elementary School, was recently notified that she won third place in an essay contest co-sponsored by the Automobile Club of Maryland and the Maryland Committee for Seat Belt Use, Inc.

Miss Yeager's essay was one of over 700 entered into the contest which used the theme "Why Make Safety a Snap." Judges from the Maryland State Police, Maryland Department of Transportation, Safety Council of Maryland, Baltimore City Mayor's Office of Pedestrian Safety, and the media selected the best essays in several age categories based on writing skills, safety concepts, and relationship to theme.

The following is Cynthia's winning essay:

People can die for not wearing their seat belts. I think they should have a law that you have to wear a seat belt and if people don't wear them, I think they're dumb.

"I don't need a safety belt when I'm traveling at low speeds or going on a short trip." More than eight of every ten crashes happen at speeds less than 40 miles per hour. People not wearing safety belts have been fatally injured in crashes at speeds as low as 12 miles per hour. That's about the speed you would be driving in a parking lot.

My very best friend was in a car wreck and she was killed because of not wearing a seat belt. I also have another friend, who was also in a car wreck, but she was not killed because of the seat belt she wore.

If you care about the people you love, tell them to wear their seat belts for your sake. Some people I know don't believe that seat belts can save your life, but they're wrong. Some people even go through the windshield.

If you watch television, you probably think cars explode and drop into rivers all the time. That's what happens on T.V., not in real life.

"I might be saved if I'm thrown clear of the car in a crash." The fact is, that your chances of being fatally injured are almost 25 times greater if you are thrown from the car.

Buckle up!

Need For Live-In Care Workers Noted By Agency

The Garrett County Area Agency on Aging is currently working with the Employment Services Office in an attempt to find live-in care workers to assist elderly residents, according to Margo Van Diver, director of the Agency.

Ms. Van Diver stated this week that the Agency sponsored a respite care skill development course last fall for senior citizens. Seven students successfully completed the course, which was presented by Garrett County Health Department staff at Garrett Community College. However, Ms. Van Diver said that the demand in the community appears to be more pressing for live-in care workers, rather than for respite care. She explained that respite care involves providing personal care and doing light house chores on a regular basis, but not residing in the client's home.

Van Diver said that the Agency has been attempting to find positions for the trained respite care workers, however most families seeking care desire live-in assistance.

She said that the Employment Office has also been receiving numerous requests for live-in care workers, but there are not enough persons available.

Other health care agencies, such as the Health Department, Department of Social Services, and Garrett County Memorial Hospital are also concerned with this problem, Ms. Van Diver said.

The Agency director stated that families and clients who need assistance should first consider the following information before deciding on what type of care (respite or live-in) is necessary:

"Is 24-hour care absolutely necessary? If it is then perhaps it is a job for professionals, and oftentimes a nursing home can be more cost effective than trying to keep a home going with an outside caregiver. Consider respite care. Respite care is designed to relieve the full-time caregiver. The respite caregiver can provide personal care and assist with light homemaking chores.

"With high unemployment, why isn't board and care a good deal? It is rare that a competent caregiver is without a home and responsibilities of his or her own. Providers continue to have expenses which need to be offset with a small salary in addition to the lodging and food offered.

"Are you willing to offer a reasonable salary? While the salary for a live-in does not generally equate to the wages paid an hourly employee, it still must cover these needs of a caregiver: clothing, car expenses, insurance and incidentals.

"The caregiver will be directly involved with the emotional as well as physical needs of the client. Many clients needing significant care are demanding. While the 'home and personal chores' may not be too taxing, the position can still be overwhelming if the caregiver never gets a full night's rest, or is not permitted to take a breather for any length of time.

"The caregiver is expected to 'take charge' yet remain a 'guest' in the client's home. Before the caregiving arrangement is settled, make sure each role is carefully discussed and understood. This should include the role of the employer and employee as well as patient and client. Many times several family members are involved and the caregiver is not sure whose guidance should be followed."

Caregivers who are currently looking for a live-in position are asked to contact Employment Services at 334-3972 or the Area Agency on Aging at 334-3990.

Also, persons who are in need of help in the home or know someone who is are asked to call the Health Department, Geriatric Evaluation Services Office, 334-8111, or the Area Agency on Aging.

Free Firewood Means Freedom From Liability

Forest landowners in Garrett County are being advised by Project Foresters Ernie Metz and Paul Mateer that a landowner who allows cutting of firewood on his property, free of charge, is relieved of normal liability if dangerous conditions do not exist on the property. A law enacted in 1982 relieved landowners of this liability. Landowners interested in improving their woodlot by thinning can realize increased growth and quality of the stand, and at the same time help someone else willing to do timber stand improvement or thinning work to obtain free firewood.

The woodland owner benefits from the improved condition of his forest at little or no cost and the availability of firewood increases, Metz said. "Normal liability is relieved only if the wood if freely given," he said. "A cutter must have, on his person at all times, written permission to cut from the owner."

Forest, Park and Wildlife Service utilization foresters, in a fuelwood survey in 1981, discovered that nearly 30% of the homes in Maryland burned wood. They also found that people cut about 70% of that amount of wood themselves. Approximately half of the people burning wood called their use supplemental; 20% said wood was a major source of home heat. Supplemental users averaged nearly two cords per winter; major users burned an average of four cords per winter.

The removal of landowner liability when giving away wood should assist firewood users in their quest for a wood supply and assist the woodland owner in his management practices, Metz noted. Additional information about this law or other forest management practices can be obtained by contacting the Maryland Forest, Park and Wildlife Service office in the Mt. Nebo Work Center, telephone 334-3296.

NOTICE

TO WATER CUSTOMERS IN OAKLAND

The Town of Oakland has approximately 850 water customers. Some have experienced frozen water lines and others have let water run to prevent freezing. Some have shared with their waterless neighbors. Neither the Town nor the customers have been at fault in the situation. In fairness to both, where there is evidence that any of the above has occurred, the March quarter water bills will be adjusted as follows:

1. The least amount a customer will pay will be the minimum quarterly charge.
2. The maximum a customer will pay will be the highest amount paid in any quarter during the past year.
3. If the amount of water consumed is less than the last quarter the customer will be billed for that amount.

Potomac Edison To Inspect Lines Via Helicopter

The Potomac Edison Company will begin its yearly helicopter inspections of power lines in the area as part of its routine preventive maintenance program.

The helicopter flights were tentatively scheduled to begin February 4 in Allegany and Garrett counties, according to R.A. Roschli, PE's division manager.

Patrolling the electric utility's distribution lines should take two to three full days, Roschli noted. The helicopter crews will be checking conditions of the poles, crossarms, braces, insulators and for woodpecker damage.

He said helicopters are used to scout the system because they can hover as close as 20 feet above the poles to conduct the checks in outlying areas.

Income Survey Slated In Bayard

An income survey will be conducted during the week of February 10 to determine the City of Bayard's eligibility to apply for federal funds.

According to the Region VIII Planning and Development Council, this survey is necessary if the town is to make needed improvements to either its streets or sewer system. Information collected during the survey will be tabulated by the Council and, according to a Council spokesman, all responses will be held in strict confidence.

Persons with questions may contact the Council at (304) 257-1221.

IRS Provides Tax Guidelines To S&L Depositors

In response to the unique practical problems posed by the current Maryland Savings and Loan Situation, Teddy R. Kern, IRS District Director for Maryland and the District of Columbia, has provided guidelines to depositors and Maryland Savings and Loan officials about reporting of interest earned during 1985 on accounts at certain savings and loan institutions.

Kern emphasized that the guidelines represent discretionary relief provided as a matter of administrative convenience.

The institutions to which the guidelines apply are those that were subject to the Governor's Executive Order, judicial conservatorship, or judicial receivership during 1985 and who agree to follow these guidelines. Accounts at these institutions to which the guidelines relate are those which earned interest in 1985, but from which withdrawals were limited for part of the period during which interest was earned and from which withdrawals remained limited at the end of the depositor's tax year.

The guidelines provide that taxpayers who report income on the cash basis, most individual taxpayers, may limit the interest they report as 1985 income from an account from which withdrawals were restricted at the end of the taxpayer's tax year. Instead of reporting and paying 1985 tax on a larger amount, these taxpayers need only report the amount by which interest earned during 1985 exceeds the depositor's account balance at year-end. "The effect of following these guidelines," said Kern, "can best be illustrated by the following example: If an account earned interest of $1,000.00 and has a year-end balance of $1,200.00, the taxpayer would not be required to report or pay tax on any interest earned on that account on his/her 1985 Federal tax return. If the year-end balance in that same account, however, is $800.00, then the taxpayer would need only report and pay tax on $200.00 as taxable interest income on his/her 1985 Federal tax return." ($1,000.00 interest - $800.00 balance = $200.00 interest income).

This treatment applies only for returns filed for the tax year 1985 and only applies if, on the last day of the tax year, full freedom to withdraw monies from the account was limited by state action.

Taxpayers who report in this manner must treat any interest earned but not reported in the 1985 tax year as if it had been earned on the first day of the 1986 tax year. The IRS will issue further guidance at an appropriate time about the treatment of that interest.

The relief provided by these guidelines is only available to depositors in those institutions that agree to issue Forms 1099 for 1985 and subsequent years, during which the restrictions remain in effect, on the basis of the reporting method outlined today. The participating institutions will be granted an extension of time until February 28, 1986, to provide Forms 1099 or amended Forms 1099 for 1985 to taxpayers.

Kern went on to say, "Taxpayers eligible for the relief outlined today who filed federal income tax returns may file an amended return (Form 1040X) showing as interest from an affected institution the amount indicated on the 1099 received from the institution."

Heart Association Dinner, Program Held In McHenry

The 14th Annual American Heart Association's Educational dinner was held Thursday evening at the Deep Creek Fire Hall in McHenry. The Oakland Rotary Club hosted the event.

The speaker for the evening was Robert O. Bonow, M.D., from the National Institutes of Health in Bethesda. Dr. Bonow spoke on Current and Future Developments in Cardiovascular Disease.

Dr. Bonow stated that the future holds many new developments in cardiac research—"more than we can currently imagine." Research that the Heart Association supports has led to many life-saving techniques over the past several years, he stated.

Kenneth Ridder, president of the Oakland Rotary Club, opened the meeting. Heart Association volunteers were recognized, as were members attending from the Oakland-Mountain Lake Park Lions Club, the Oakland, Grantsville, Friendsville, and Terra Alta Rotary clubs.

Francis Grimm, vice-president of the Garrett Branch of the American Heart Association, introduced Dr. Bonow and later extended appreciation to Kenneth Ridder for all he had done to coordinate the program. Ninety-seven people attended the dinner program.

This dinner is the Kick-Off program for the annual Residential Campaign in Garrett County. For more information on the campaign, persons may contact Francis Grimm or the Heart Office at 724-4011.

Bloomington School Honor Roll Noted

The staff of Bloomington School has named nine students to the honor roll for the second grading period. Those students achieved an 80 percent or better average in each subject, according to Gary Galloway, principal.

Sixth graders on the honor roll were Jennifer Gaster, Tonya Murphy, James Paugh and Cindy Tichnell. Seventh graders named were Joyce Murphy (all A's), Tina Tichnell and Marcie Wildman. Eighth graders honored were Kathy Carder and Carol Metz.

On Dean's List

Vivian Richter, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Vernon Richter, Accident, was recently named to the Dean's List at Towson State University, where she is currently a sophomore, majoring in business administration, with a concentration in finance.

Ms. Richter, the valedictorian of the Northern High School class of 1984, earned a 3.90 grade point average for the fall 1985 semester.

Bender, Younkin To Chair Drive

Phyllis Bender and Alice Younkin, pictured left to right, have been named by the American Heart Association-Western Maryland division as residential and business co-chairmen for Grantsville.

Mrs. Younkin and Mrs. Bender have been Heart Association volunteers for many years and have organized the 1986 campaign drive for either Sunday, February 16, or Sunday, February 23 (which is Heart Sunday), depending on the weather. All donations will be returned to the Walter Younkin home, in care of Mrs. Younkin and Mrs. Bender.

Numerous other volunteers will be collecting donations in the Grantsville area.

In addition to the Heart Sunday business and residential collection campaigns, three 500 card parties have been organized by card party chairman, Mrs. Judy Sebold. They will all be held at the American Legion Post No. 214 in Grantsville, all beginning at 8 p.m.

The first card party was Saturday and refreshments were served by the Business and Professional Women's Club. The Bittinger Homemakers Club will serve the refreshments at the second card party, to be held Saturday, February 15. The final card party will be held Saturday, March 1, and the Cove Homemakers have tentatively agreed to serve the refreshments for that evening.

The American Legion Post No. 214 will present a $50.00 savings bond to the individual who turns in the highest score for all three games. Other prizes will also be awarded.

All proceeds will benefit the American Heart Association–Western Maryland Division's programs, education and research. The public is encouraged to participate, according to an Association spokesman, who noted that heart disease is the nation's and Western Maryland's number one killer.

Bloomington School Slates Soup Sale

The Bloomington Elementary School will have a Homemade vegetable soup sale on Wednesday, February 19, starting at 4 p.m. and continuing until the soup is sold out.

The soup can be purchased by the quart for $2.00, or by the gallon for $8.00. Persons should bring their own containers.

Also, a dinner will be served for $2.25, consisting of soup, roll, slice of pie and beverage.

EXPENSIVE PITFALLS

The $125,000 Federal income tax exclusion for the sale of the principal residence of persons over 55 years old can mean many thousands of dollars in tax savings. However, there are some important points to keep in mind:

This exclusion can be used only once, regardless of the amount of profit realized on the sale. If a $75,000 profit is excluded from taxable income on the sale of a home this year, you DO NOT still have $50,000 remaining which could be excluded on the sale of your next home. Once this tax savings device is used, it is lost forever, even if the entire $125,000 exclusion cannot be used.

Another thing to keep in mind is that the exclusion is not $125,000 per person for married couples for a total of $250,000. The most a married couple can exclude is $125,000.

A person over 55 who has never used the exclusion can lose it if he or she marries someone who has used the exclusion previously. If either the husband or the wife has ever used the exclusion, neither can ever use it again.

Fire which was apparently caused by a faulty LP gas line resulted in the destruction of a trailer along Sang Run Road early Wednesday morning, leaving a family of five homeless.

Richard and Earlene Moats and their 17-month-old triplet sons escaped from the structure after Mrs. Moats was awakened and smelled smoke. Firefighters from Deep Creek and Accident fire departments were summoned to the residence at about 2:15 a.m. and found the structure fully involved in flame upon their arrival.

According to Guy Carola, fire investigator for Garrett and Allegany counties, the couple had gone to bed around 10:30 p.m. After Mrs. Moats was awakened, Mr. Moats ran to the kitchen and found fire behind an LP gas furnace.

Moats told Carola that his wife carried two of the youngsters from the trailer and he took the third with him. Carola noted that the family was "extremely lucky" that Mrs. Moats had awakened, for the trailer was not equipped with smoke alarms.

Half of the 1968 model trailer, which measured 14 feet by 75 feet, was totally destroyed by the fire and the remainder, which included the bedroom area, was gutted. Carola said the family lost all of their possessions and had no insurance. Moats is presently unemployed.

The family is presently staying with neighbors, Carola said. Persons who wish to make contributions of money, clothing, furniture, and/or household goods are asked to contact Mrs. JoAnn Moats at 387-4536.

Also, this Satuday from noon to 6 p.m., members of the Deep Creek VFD will be at their station to accept donations for the family. Persons may call the station at 387-5252 if they have items that need picked up.

Also responding to the scene of the fire was the Northern Rescue Squad. Firemen remained on the scene until about 4:30 a.m. There were no injuries reported.

"SO LONG, GARRETT COUNTY. HELLO, ENGLAND," wave the members and parents of the Southern Garrett Winterguard as they embark on their once in a lifetime trip to New Brighton, England, to compete in the International Winterguard Competition. After months of intense, olympic-like training and bouts with influenza and other assorted illnesses, the guard finally left Oakland yesterday to "bring back the gold," as one guard member put it. There is no lack of confidence as every member and parent polled said, "We're going to win and do Garrett County proud."

Quick Action By Firefighters Saves Mtn. Lake House

Quick action by members of the Oakland Volunteer Fire Department, who happened to be in the neighborhood at the time on another alarm, resulted in the saving of a two-story frame dwelling in Mountain Lake Park Sunday afternoon.

Oakland and Deer Park firefighters were summoned at about 1:45 p.m. when the automatic alarm sounded at the Meadows East housing complex along N Street in Mtn. Lake Park. Investigation revealed that the alarm had been set off by some food burning on the stove, which was quickly extinguished with no damage resulting.

Oakland was about to return to their station and Deer Park units had just been turned around when Garrett Emergency Management called them to the residence of Richard and Viola Wolfe at 704 N Street.

Upon their arrival, firefighters discovered smoke coming from the eaves of the house. They entered the residence immediately and discovered dense smoke throughout the first floor and a couch and chair smoldering in the living room. According to one Oakland firefighter who made the interior attack on the fire, the only actual fire resulted when the house was ventilated and the couch and chair burst into flames.

The blaze was quickly extinguished and fire damage was minimal. However, according to Guy Carola, fire investigator for Garrett and Allegany counties, heat and smoke damage

State Health Official Issues Tylenol Alert

Adele Wilzack, R.N., M.S., Maryland Secretary of Health and Mental Hygiene, has asked Marylanders to take several precautions regarding Tylenol Extra Strength Capsules, Lot No. ADF916, Expiration Date, May, 1987.

Wilzack advised that no one should take Tylenol capsules from the Lot No. ADF916, and that anyone with capsules of that lot number should immediately notify the Maryland Department of Health and Mental Hygiene by calling 659-3000.

People with elderly relatives, friends or neighbors who might be taking Tylenol capsules should alert them immediately to see if their medication is from the affected lot number.

Tylenol Capsules Extra Strength Lot No. ADF916 has been implicated in the cyanide poisoning death of a 23-year-old woman in Yonkers, N.Y. The product was purchased from an A&P Store in Bronxville, N.Y.

The Federal Food and Drug Administration along with local law enforcement officers in New York are investigating this matter. It is believed that this is an isolated event.

Charles Tregoe, Chief of the Division of Drug Control, advises that all pharmacies in Maryland and other retail outlets which sell Tylenol products are to remove Tylenol Capsules, Lot No. ADF916, Expiration Date May 1987 from their shelves and to notify the Department of Health and Mental Hygiene immediately if they have this lot number.

Coal Industry Boost Proposed By Del. Edwards

A bill of importance to the coal industry of Garrett County, introduced by Delegate George C. Edwards, will be heard by the House Appropriations Committee next Tuesday at 11 a.m.

HB-1354 would require buildings and facilities constructed after July 1, 1986, which have at least 50 percent of state funding, to use coal or coal products in its heating system. The bill would provide exceptions, and would define coal products to include coal in its synthetic and conventional forms. Only coal or coal products mined in the state could be used in those buildings.

Area officials believe that passage of this bill could be a real boost to Garrett County's coal industry and plans are being made by some to travel to Annapolis to testify for the bill.

Bills Introduced Hike Penalties For Bear Kills

After the January killing of two Garrett County black bears which were carrying a total of seven unborn cubs, residents in the county, as well as across the state, relayed their anger to the local legislators in Annapolis.

Delegate George C. Edwards was quick to draft and introduce House Bill 1614 and said, "A lot of people are upset at what happened, and how it happened."

Edwards explained that laws already exist with a penalty of up to three months in jail and/or a $500 fine. His bill, if passed, would stiffen the penalty for killing a black bear in Garrett County. "The bill would change the maximum penalty to six months in jail, a $5,000 fine and a loss of hunting privileges for two years, for the first offense. The second offense," added Edwards, "would bring up to a 12-month jail sentence, $5,000 in fines and the loss of hunting privileges for four years."

The District 1-A Delegate said that this would allow a judge to have needed flexibility, and would cover all kinds of cases that may be dealt with in the courtroom, because "there are going to be different circumstances for different cases."

Edwards said that he doesn't expect any problems with the bill. "I think it'll go right through without any trouble," he said.

Senator John N. Bambacus introduced a companion bill, SB 776, which provides the same penalties as Edward's bill for those who violate the prohibitions regarding the hunting, possessing, selling, purchasing, shipping, carrying, transporting or exporting black bears.

The bill is being supported by the Garrett County Commissioners and also the Maryland Department of Natural Resources.

Police Arrest W.Va. Man For Area Ski Theft

A young Westover, W.Va. man was arrested last week for a theft of skis from the Wisp ski area.

James C. Rose, 18, was charged with theft and taken to the Garrett County Jail for a bond hearing.

According to Maryland State Police at McHenry, the skis, belonging to Larry J. Nesline, Bittinger, were found beside Rose's vehicle. Rose said he removed them from the slope and took them to the car, then became scared and did not know what to do with them.

Volunteer Rescue Services Bills Draw Attention In Annapolis

Fire, rescue squad, and ambulance funds have been the topic of discussion in the General Assembly this week. A bill introduced by Senator John N. Bambacus to end restrictions on the use of allocations from the state's fund to local emergency service companies was reviewed by the Senate Economic and Environmental Affairs Committee yesterday, and a bill sponsored by Delegate George C. Edwards to pay to voluntary nonprofit rescue squads an amount equal to two cents per $100 of assessable property in the county got a vote of approval by the House Select Committee on Tuesday.

The bill sponsored by Edwards would require the Board of County Commissioners of Garrett County to appropriate and pay to rescue squads located in the county the two-cent per $100 amount. The rescue squads would be required to use the funds for specified purposes and to report annually on the receipt and disbursement of the funds.

The Select Committee, of which Edwards was a member, voted to approve this bill which will now be scheduled to go before the House for its second reading.

Bambacus' bill, SB-373, would prohibit the Public Safety and Correctional Services secretary from imposing restrictions on the local use of the state's $4.2 million fire, rescue and ambulance fund. Currently Maryland emergency services companies can't use their share of the fund for fuel, energy, utility or administrative and certain other expenses, but the senator feels that those uses are consistent with the intent of the fund.

The senator said that 14 to 15 counties, including Allegany and Garrett, each annually receive between $80,000 and $90,000 of the $4.2 million but after a portion of that money is given to fulltime companies,

First Case Of Rabies For '86 Is Reported

County Environmental Health Official Rodney Glotfelty has reported the first case of rabies in Garrett County for the year 1986.

Positive results were received by the health department February 6 on a young raccoon which had been submitted to them two days earlier.

The raccoon was killed by Phil Jarusek of Sang Run while he was checking his traps along the Youghiogheny River near Sang Run on February 1. Jarusek saw the young raccoon walking along the river, and as he approached it the raccoon prepared to attack him. He killed and skinned the raccoon and submitted it to the health department.

Jarusek had pre-exposure shots and is not presumed to be in any danger.

More Drug Cases Heard By Judge In Circuit Court

Several drug cases were heard by Chief Judge Fred A. Thayer during Garrett County Circuit Court proceedings last Thursday.

George W. Bever, 36, Swanton, was sentenced to three years with the Department of Corrections for distribution of cocaine.

Bever was then committed to the Garrett County Sheriff's Department. The conditions of any parole would be that he pay restitution of $250 and court costs.

Bever pled guilty to the charge in a trial held January 2, when the judge ordered a presentence investigation.

The charge was made by Sgt. Charles Hinnant following various incidents from December 16 to December 31, 1984, in Swanton.

Charges of possession of cocaine, keeping a common nuisance, and conspiracy were not prosecuted by the court.

A second case against Bever involving charges of keeping a common nuisance, possession of drug paraphernalia, and possession of marijuana was nolle prosequi (not prosecuted) in open court by order of the State's Attorney.

The charges for this case were also filed by Hinnant.

Bever was represented by Lawrence V. Kelly, Cumberland.

Two cases involving drug charges against Cheryl R. Bever, 35, Swanton, were also nolle prosequi in open court by order of the State's Attorney.

The cases involved charges of distribution of cocaine, possession of cocaine, conspiracy, possession of drug paraphernalia, possession of marijuana, and two counts of keeping a common nuisance. All charges were made by Sgt. Hinnant following various incidents in Swanton.

Bever was represented by Kelly.

Judge Thayer ordered a presentence investigation for Dallas W. House Jr., 40, Oakland, after he pled guilty to a charge of possession with intent to distribute marijuana.

Charges of possession of marijuana and possession of drug paraphernalia were not prosecuted by the court.

The charges were filed by Hinnant following a February

Schlosnagle Is Elected Mayor Of Friendsville

Spencer Schlosnagle was elected mayor of Friendsville in the town election on Tuesday. Elected to serve on the town council were Carroll M. Forsythe, Joseph E. Sisler and Lucile Sines.

Out of a total 262 registered voters in the town, 180 voted. Poll officials feel that was an excellent turnout considering the bad weather that day.

Schlosnagle unseated incumbent mayor James R. Spear by a 128 to 50 vote. Eugene Sines received one vote for mayor as a write-in candidate. New council member Forsythe received 135 votes, Sisler received 126 votes and Sines received 109 votes. Write-in candidates for council, James Lininger, R. Gene Sines, Thomas L. Fike, Roger Sines, and Ross Selby, received a total of 56 votes.

Annapolis Hearings On Land Acquisition Issues "Went Well"

Issues concerning state-owned land in Garrett County came before the General Assembly this week. Companion bills introduced by Senator John N. Bambacus and Delegate George Edwards to prohibit the Department of Natural Resources from using any funds after June 30 to acquire land in Garrett County were heard by committees in both the House and Senate on Tuesday.

The current law instigated by Edwards in 1983 prevents the state from using any Program Open Space money to purchase additional land in the county, however the need was felt by many to close all doors that may provide the state an entrance to more county land.

Senate Bill 252, requiring the Comptroller of the Treasury to pay each county an amount equal to the annual real estate property taxes lost to the tax base for any land that has been conveyed to the state by the county or a private individual for hunting preserves, wildlife preserves, woodland or forestland, marshland or other open space land, was heard by the Senate Budget and Taxation Committee.

Senator Bambacus, who introduced the above bill along with Senator Frederick C. Malkus Jr. (D-Dorchester Co.), said it was a really good hearing and drew statewide attention. "This affects non-metropolitan taxpayers who are being asked to pick up the tab for the metropolitan areas' recreation," Bambacus said. He concluded by saying "it was time the state began paying its fair share."

Also on Friday, a bill which Bambacus says may be the "sleeper bill of the '86 session" was heard. This is the Heritage Conservation Fund bill (SB-319), introduced by Senator Gerald W. Winegrad (D-Anne Arundel Co.). It would provide funds for the state to acquire conservation easements, and buy land anywhere in the state.

The bill passed out of the Economic and Environmental Committee with a vote of 10 senators in favor and one (Bambacus) against. Seeing that there was no way for him to override the vote, Bambacus introduced an amendment to the bill which passed unanimously. The amendment reads: "Not withstanding any other provisions of this code, after June 30, 1986, the state may not use funds, whether under Program Open Space or otherwise, to acquire land in Garrett County."

With this amendment Bambacus was able to protect Garrett County from any ill effects of the bill if it is passed by the General Assembly.

Bambacus and Edwards both reported that Tuesday hearings on the companion bills preventing state acquisition of any additional land in Garrett County went well. "The DNR opposes it," Edwards said, "but there were a lot of positive questions asked that should be helpful. I think it stands a good chance of passing out of committee and that's the first step."

Likewise, Bambacus said that the Senate hearing went very well also. "The story is continuing to be heard. I'm confident the bill will come out of committee."

A related bill introduced in the House by Del. Edwards would alter the formula that the local governing body must use when spending their share of the Open Space funds. HB-610 states that if a local governing body acquires enough land to meet the acquisition goals of the Open Space Program they can

Oldaker Handed Ten-Year Term For Bank Theft

Donald R. Oldaker, 31, Oakland, was sentenced to 10 years in the Department of Corrections by Judge Jack Turney during Garrett County District Court proceedings last week.

Oldaker had been found guilty of the October 22 theft at the Mtn. Lake Park Branch of the Garrett National Bank. A presentence investigation had been ordered by Judge Turney during a trial in December.

Credit of 102 days will be awarded to Oldaker for time served awaiting the trial. The sentence was to begin February 3.

Approximately $3,800 of the stolen money was recovered by the Garrett County Sheriff's Department.

GCC Officals, Local And State Heads To Meet

A meeting with Garrett Community College trustees and administration, state and county officials and the executive assistant to the governor for education is in the works, according to a state source.

Sheila Tolleiver, executive assistant to the governor for education, was contacted just before press time and would not confirm the meeting although state and local officials said they have March 5 marked on their calendars for such a meeting.

A call to State Senator John N. Bambacus this morning revealed that such a meeting will take place. He said the meeting came in the wake of "a highly unusual request of GCC interim president, Dr. David Puzzuoli, to meet with Governor Harry Hughes this week without the knowledge of the local delegation, the county commissioners or the GCC trustees."

Senator Bambacus said it was his understanding that GCC trustees chairman, Katharine Smith, upon hearing of the meeting with the governor, Puzzuoli and GCC comptroller, John Culp, called an emergency executive meeting of the board on Saturday morning. At that meeting it was voted unanimously not to permit the meeting under those circumstances.

"This just puts another unfortunate spotlight on Garrett Community College," said the senator. "What we should be concerned with now is stability and programs for the students. This type of activity doesn't build bridges, it builds walls."

Bambacus continued, "GCC is a public supported institution and we have certainly done everything we could to evoke a spirit of cooperation and instill public confidence in the college. We're tired of these surprises. Secrecy has no place in a democracy.

"A certain appropriateness to follow procedure was totally ignored by the interim president," concluded Bambacus. "It's time to have a meeting with all parties involved."

"WHAT IS LIFE? IS IT THE BREATH OF BUFFALO IN THE WINTERTIME?", so go the last words of the famous Indian, Crowfoot. It may be life, but the over one foot of snow that fell on Garrett County this past week certainly slowed down some of the lives here as schools were cancelled Tuesday and many other activities were rescheduled as well. The bulk of the snow fell on Monday evening and found many residents the following morning tramping in knee-high mounds of the frozen precipitation. The buffalo, which belong to the DelSignore Coal Corporation, were found roaming at their home on the Herrington Manor Road Tuesday and the skies were pretty cloudy all day.

Oakland To Hold Election March 10

A mayor, three council members and a treasurer are to be elected in the Oakland Municipal Election on Monday, March 10.

The current terms expire for Mayor H.D. Swartzentruber and Council Members James T. Evans, Terry R. Helbig, Francis D. Seifert Jr., and Treasurer Rosalee Evans.

The three councilmen who will serve another year are: Robert E. Boal, John A. Doppel, and Von W. Johnson.

The last day to file for office will be Thursday, February 27, at 4 p.m.

Any resident of Oakland, age 18 or over, may register to vote at Oakland City Hall during regular office hours. The town of Oakland maintains a separate register of voters, and registration at the Garrett County Board of Election Supervisors does not qualify a person to vote in the municipal election.

Open registration will continue until 4:30 p.m. Friday, February 28. The deadline for obtaining absentee ballots is Monday, March 3, at 4:30 p.m. On election day the polls will remain open from 9 a.m. until 6 p.m.

District Court Results Noted

In Garrett County District Court proceedings last week, Larry M. Bittinger, 18, Grantsville, was sentenced to 18 months in the Department of Corrections for a charge of battery.

The judge then suspended the sentence, placing Bittinger on 18 months supervised probation, with the conditions that he not confront or threaten the complainant, Jay M. Bittinger, Grantsville; make an effort to become and remain reliably employed, and pay a fine of $25.

A pre-sentence investigation had been ordered for Bittinger after he pled guilty to the charge in an earlier trial.

The charge was filed following an October 26 incident in the parking lot of the Grantsville Post Office.

Jerry R. Parrish, 41, Swanton, was found to be guilty of giving a false statement to a law enforcement officer.

Parrish pled guilty to the charge, which was filed by Deputy P.J. Pratt following an October 25 incident on the Weber Road.

According to court documents, Pratt stopped Parrish for driving while under the influence of alcohol. When Parrish could not produce his driver's license, he gave false information to Pratt, claiming his name was James Parrish, whom the car was registered to.

Parrish will be sentenced at a later date.

Michael Inglese, Oakland, was found to be guilty of a fire code violation.

The charge was made by Guy L. Carola, Deputy Fire Marshal, following a January 7 incident.

According to court records, Inglese violated an order from Carola directing that certain fire code violations be corrected.

Turney deferred the sentencing until March 4.

Probation before judgment was ordered for Wayne W. Platter, 30, Grantsville, for a charge of theft. He was then fined $50 and placed on six months unsupervised probation.

A charge of breaking and entering was not prosecuted by the court in exchange for a plea of guilty to the theft charge.

The charges were filed by Tpr. David W. Broadwater following a January 6 incident at the old Accident Elementary School.

A pre-sentence investigation was ordered for Teresa L. DeWitt, 26, Oakland, after the judge found her to be guilty of a charge of battery.

The charge was filed by Ralph J. Hardesty, Oakland, following a January 12 incident in Crellin when she struck him in the jaw with her fist.

DeWitt was represented by John R. Toston, public defender.

Placed on the stet docket was a bad check charge against Weldon K. Nicholas, 26, Oakland.

The charge was filed by Becky Glotfelty, credit manager of Glotfelty Enterprises, Inc., following a November 18 incident involving a check for $350.54 to the company.

Also placed on the stet docket was a charge of possession of a deadly weapon with intent to injure and an assault charge against Robert B. Detrick, 40, Friendsville.

The charge was filed by Kathy Sines, also of Friendsville, following a September 20 incident there.

Detrick was represented by Henry Adams.

A petition for a new trial was granted to Donald L. Nine, 46, Oakland, on the basis of testimony which was developed at a hearing February 4. Nine will be tried before a different judge.

Judge Turney had placed him on six months unsupervised probation last month for the unlawful sale of a switchblade. However, Nine said he did not realize the knife was illegal.

Russell K. Hamilton, 39, Keyser, was found to be not guilty of a charge of battery filed by Ruth E. Speicher, Oakland, following a September 9 incident.

Hamilton's attorney was Robert E. Watson.

The judge found Ralph J. Hardesty, 29, Oakland, to be not guilty of a charge of malicious destruction of the property of another.

The charge was filed by Teresa L. DeWitt, Oakland, following a January 12 incident at a tavern in Hutton.

Police Arrest Six Drivers For DWI

Tfc. Gary J. Resh charged Ernest Ray Fearer, 46, Bruceton Mills, on Route 48 February 5.

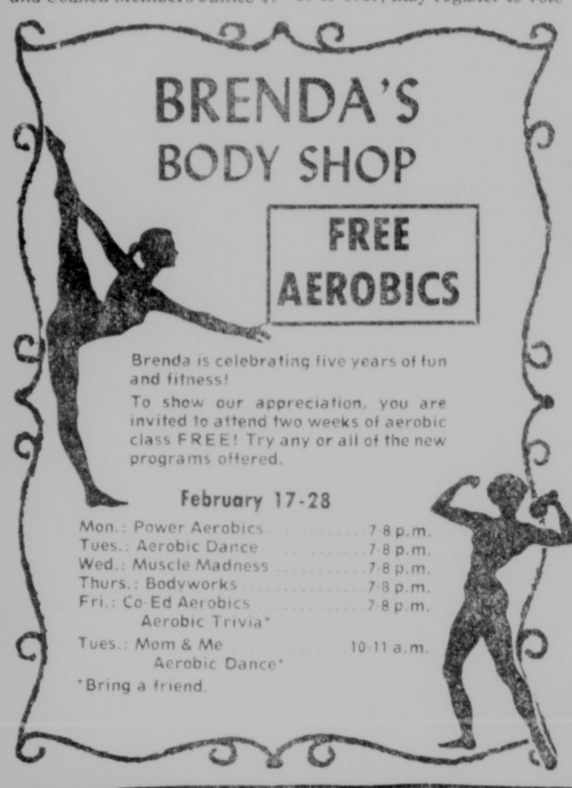
In keeping with the theme of healing, the offerings from these services will be used to assist the Chaplaincy program at Garrett County Memorial Hospital and the Hospice program.

The next service in this series will be on Wednesday, February 26, at Bethel United Methodist Church, Mtn. Lake Park, with the Rev. Martin Feild, of St. Peter's Catholic Church, as guest preacher.

Registration For Preschoolers Is Now Underway

The Garrett County Board of Education has announced that the comprehensive preschool registration program which began nine years ago as a joint venture with the Garrett County Health Department will be held again this year. This program is for all children entering kindergarten or first grade for the first time in September, 1986.



This registration program, which will be held in all elementary schools during April and May, has been developed to help identify strengths and needs of children and to identify early any problems that may interfere with a successful start in school.

Parents must register any child who will be six years old before January 1, 1987, and may register any child who will be five years old before January 1, 1987.

Parents of children who meet the above qualifications are asked to fill out the registration blank elsewhere in today's issue of this newspaper and mail it to the designated address. All parents registering children for school will receive a letter notifying them of the date, time and place of their appointment for the preschool registration program.

Parents are requested to bring their child's birth certificate and immunization record and to provide important information for the school's records during the registration. In addition, each child registering for school will be screened in the areas of vision, hearing and motor development. Additional services will include the height, weight and health appraisal and dental screening.

An event called Ski for Heart has been organized by the American Heart Association–Western Maryland Division volunteers with the cooperation of officials at the Wisp Ski Area. The event is slated for Thursday evening, February 20, and will involve skiers getting pledges toward a goal of skiing one million vertical feet combined.

Registration for the Ski for Heart will be held in the main lobby of the McHenry House at the Wisp from 5 to 7 p.m. that evening. Proceeds from the effort will go toward financing the Heart Association's community programs and heart research, according to Elizabeth J. Hudson, development specialist for the Association.

Prizes will be awarded to the top three money-raisers who have pledges amounting to over $300. The grand prize will be a 1986-87 season skiing pass to the Wisp, the second prize will be two ski tune-ups or four ski rentals from Tips-Up Ski Shop, McHenry, and the third prize will be one ski tune-up or two ski rentals from B&N Ski Shop in LaVale.

The Wisp Resort is also providing a discount for all Ski for Heart participants. Lift passes will be $8 for adults and $5 for children and rentals will be $9 for the Look system and $6 for Spademan bindings.

Persons interested in participating or volunteering to help tally the vertical feet skied may contact the local Heart Association office at 724-4011.

Participants will gather monetary pledges and then fulfill their obligation by skiing at the Wisp that evening for up to four hours. The overall goal of the project is to ski a combined total of one million vertical feet (Marsh Mountain at the Wisp has just over 600 vertical feet). In the photo, left to right, are Heart volunteers Carl Rebele, representing the Wisp Ski Patrol; Sherry Fike, of Wisp ticket sales; and Dick Rowles II, representing the Wisp Ski School. See story.

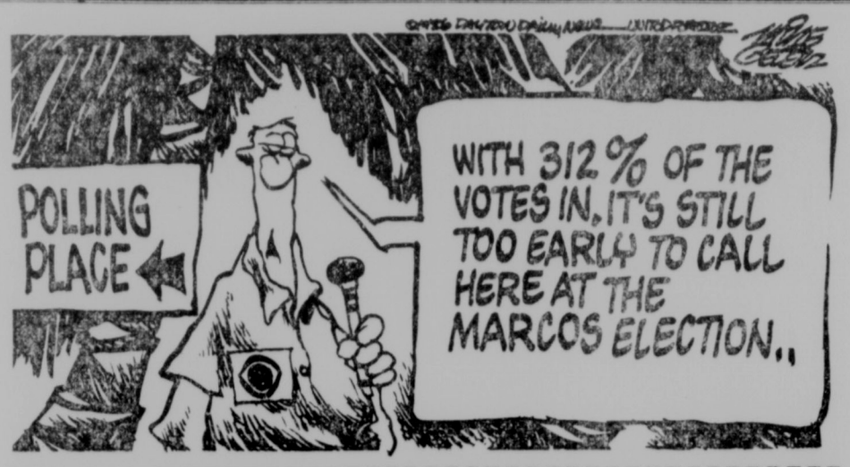
Workfare And Self-Esteem

Last week in this column we voiced our general support of the Gramm-Rudman bill (which, by the way, was ruled unconstitutional late last week) and we also noted that a greater effort should be made to reduce waste and abuse of federal giveaway programs.

One approach that has been initiated in 33 states to lessen the abuse of the welfare program is the creation of what are known as workfare programs. The program requires all those persons who are on welfare to work in some capacity, if they are able to do so. Cleaning up litter along roadways and refurbishing of state parks and other state-owned areas are among the tasks being performed in states such as West Virginia under workfare systems. It has been estimated that $10,000,000 worth of public works have been accomplished under the program in West Virginia.

Many of the welfare recipients are in favor of the workfare system. They state that they feel better about accepting their checks because they have contributed in some way. It doesn't seem so much like charity or handouts to them.



Others, however, feel that the system is degrading. They are called upon to do tasks that they feel are beneath them or things they do not enjoy or are not trained to do. A person who mined coal for 20 years before becoming unemployed, for example, feels degraded if he is asked to clean up litter.

The state of Massachusetts has come up with a rather unique approach with its workfare system, whereby welfare recipients are given a choice to work or not to work. On the surface, it seems ridiculous, because most of us believe that, given such a choice, the great majority of welfare recipients would much rather stay at home and simply receive their checks. However, in Massachusetts they have discovered that a large portion of the welfare recipients would rather work for their money. The system includes on the job training in a specific skill or trade, and is complete with a positive marketing strategy. Massachusetts officials have found that their system is more effective than the typical workfare system.

Why is the Massachusetts system working so well? We believe that it is because most people have an inherent desire to be somebody, to contribute something, and thereby feel good about themselves. As we have mentioned in so many other editorials, self-esteem is all important, and anything that will enhance self-esteem in a person will always yield positive results.

Building self-esteem is a long, tough process, and the persons most responsible for doing this are none other than the parents of this world. Unfortunately, there are too many parents who do not know how to do this, because they had no example or training from their parents. It is a dark, one-way street for so many and it is difficult for anyone else, such as teachers or counselors, to intervene when there is no support at home.

It's interesting that so many of the world's problems— crime, suicides, addiction, unemployment . . . —can be linked to one central crisis: how people feel about themselves.

Letters to the Editor

To the Editor:

I am also appalled at the killing of the two pregnant bears. Being skinned alive would be too good for the killers. They need a fine and jail sentence they would never forget.

As for the people crying the blues about abortion, I think they better ask themselves a few questions. Did the bears have a choice? The people have a choice not to get pregnant in the first place. Why blame everyone else when someone gets pregnant? That person should be responsible for her actions. Why blame everyone else when that person chooses to have an abortion?

These people that say there is no public outcry against abortion must have had their heads buried in the sand. Abortion is murder, pure and simple. So is the killing of defenseless animals. The bears aren't getting more respect than humans. Maybe if humans acted respectably they would be treated with respect. When people start talking against animal rights they are walking on the fighting side of me. I love animals and I support animal rights all the way. An animal would have better sense than to go to an abortionist. With all the birth control methods we have today there is no excuse for so many unwanted pregnancies.

I also agree that judges should be elected. No one should be appointed to any office. If they don't do their job, get rid of them. We had a good example of that when four people were killed by a drunk and he is out running around free. They should be charged with first degree murder. All you read is probation before judgment. A slap on the wrist. Disgusting.

Wanema G. Gnegy

To the Editor:

Regarding the issue of the abortion of a human fetus as opposed to the senseless slaughter of two female bears and their seven fetuses, I offer this point to ponder: the mother of a human fetus had a choice; the bears weren't given that choice.

We need more people on the side of the bears.

Sincerely,
William J. Martin
Grantsville

To the Editor:

I feel I must respond to those who wrote about the matter of abortion in regard to the bear killings. First of all, the distorted accusation of "murdering babies" is simply a justification for imposing particular religious beliefs onto everyone; and secondly, what about the quality of life that everyone should have a right to? To be wanted and loved? Please don't use the worn argument of adoption. I haven't heard of any foster homes closing for lack of children. In fact, right here in Garrett County is a home for delinquents that is constantly seeking houseparents. For the most part these kids are not "bad," but have simply never had anyone really care about them.

These self-proclaimed "right-to-life'ers" could be much more realistic and productive if they'd direct their moral indignation towards better sex education and birth control so that the admittedly horrible alternative of abortion might become unnecessary instead of trying to force people into having children they don't want, thereby adding to the already horrendous problem.

As this is such an emotional issue, please withheld my name from publication.

Thank you.

To the Editor:

I have read so many letters concerning the bears that were shot in Garrett County and the people wanting the law changed to make the fine greater for killing the bears.

I own a farm in this county and do not want the bears around here. If the law is changed I would like to have it apply only to bears killed on State owned land, not on private property.

I believe that persons should be allowed to kill bears doing damage to farm crops or livestock or doing any kind of damage on private property.

We already have had several cases of rabies in this county, mostly in raccoons and should be of concern as bears become more numerous.

Perhaps The Republican could collect money to pay farmers for the damage to their crops and livestock done by the bears instead of paying rewards to informers.

Sincerely,
Melvin Custer

To the Editor:

I would like to address this letter to your court reporter. My question is why the majority of your court stories are slanted against the defendant.

In your February 6 paper you state exactly what I was convicted of, but take no look whatso-ever at the reason why. It would seem that if my story was important enough to rate second page center with a bold face caption, it would be worthy of a little insight and research.

In my view the purpose of the press is to inform its readers, not bias them. Could it be your reporter forgot the basics of his craft, ie, who, what, where and why. Granted, you treated the who, what and where very well, but the why was totally dismissed.

I am of the opinion that you could improve your paper greatly by answering all four questions or not reporting on crimes of this nature at all.

Sincerely,
Jeffrey B. Feick

Dear Jeffrey,

Unfortunately, we do not have the time nor the resources to have a reporter present in the court room for every trial in District Court. We, like all other newspapers, must rely on court reports for our information for stories. The court reports rarely go into the why of a case.

The who, what, where, and when of a case are totally objective facts. The why of a case is more of a subjective nature or, to a certain extent, a matter of opinion. Apparently your reasons for committing this crime were not good enough in the mind of the judge to have you acquitted.

Editor

To the Editor:

The recent loss of the seven astronauts have left all of us with a huge empty feeling and we share in their families loss and in their grief. I would like to share a poem I wrote in memory of:

Gregory Jarvis, Christa McAuliffe, Ronald McNair, Ellison Onizuka, Judy Resnik, Francis Scobie and Michael Smith.

Free To Explore The Galaxy
Free to touch the stars
Free to roam the heavens
Free to even be where we are Free, the seven spirits know no boundaries
Free, they feel no pain
Free to touch the ones they love
To wipe their tears that fall like rain
Free, the spirits soar higher than minds convey Free, they give us memories to cherish every day.
God bless the families.

Sincerely,
Mrs. Kathy Savage

To the Editor:

With the re-districting of school attendance areas completed, many parents of Yoder School students fear that the next step taken by the Garrett County Board of Education will be the closing of the school.

As a former Yoder School student, I feel this decision would be a mistake not only for the students and families involved, but also for the entire county.

It is true that Yoder has fewer students than most county schools, but I consider that to be an advantage. As I remember, the teacher to student relationships were always excellent, and a close unity existed throughout the entire student body.

Teachers were always willing to help students in specific areas of difficulty, and they were never afraid to show that they were also human.

In the past six years, two valedictorians and five salutatorians at Northern High School were former Yoder School students.

Many people mistakenly assume Yoder is a private school, or strictly a Mennonite school. Therefore, they do not attempt to send their children there. In fact, it is a public school open to all denominations.

Although other county schools are also of good quality, Yoder should not be closed due to dwindling numbers. Size should not be a factor with learning.

Sincerely,
Brenda K. Beiler.

Sheriff's Office Reports Arrests

The Garrett County Sheriff's Department this week reported several arrests which were made in the past week.

David A. Kinzey, 22, Grantsville, and Richard A. Kinzey, 18, Friendsville, were charged with the February 1 theft at the Custom Blend Feed Store, Route 495, Grantsville.

They were charged for the theft of gasoline from a GMC Feed truck parked along the side of the building. Total loss value reached $12.

Chris E. Ratliff, 25, Mtn. Lake Park, was arrested Saturday on an assault charge.

The incident allegedly occurred when Ratliff came home and assaulted his mother in their home.

Randolph L. Harvey, 28, Oakland, was arrested on charges of assault, destruction of property, and breaking and entering. Cora S. Robinette, 53, Oakland, was arrested on a breaking and entering charge. Both were incarcerated in the Garrett County Jail.

According to reports, the arrests were made Sunday following an incident at the home of Mark Plevyak, Accident.

The incident allegedly occurred when Mr. Harvey went to Plevyak's home and damaged his home and car, then assaulted Debora Harvey, Mtn. Lake Park. Robinette allegedly entered the home of Plevyak at the same time, and was charged.

A breaking and entering theft occurred at the residence of James W. Droppleman, Swanton, last Friday.

According to reports, someone removed over $2,725 worth of tools and guns from a tool shed and trailer.

The investigation is continuing.

A breaking and entering theft occurred at Southern High School over the weekend of February 1 and 2.

According to the sheriff's department, several items were stolen, including a video-cassette recorder and senior class keys.

Anyone with information concerning this incident is asked to contact either Crime Solvers or the Garrett County Sheriff's Department.

A destruction of property incident occurred in the parking lot of the Short Stop Convenience Store, Mtn. Lake Park.

According to reports, someone punctured two tires of a 1985 Ford truck belonging to Guy W. Fazenbaker Jr., Oakland.

Damages were estimated at $300.

The School Child's Valentine's Day Card Lament
by Susan Alvarez

Look at all those cards!
Hey, they all punch out.
Let's do every one . . .
Aw, mom, please don't pout.

How d'ya spell "from"?
Is it Ms. or Mrs.?
He's licked all my envelopes!
Well, she ate the kisses.

Where's my list?
I forgot one name, I know.
Let's count back through . . .
Only forty to go!

Pat's my friend - he's a boy,
So he gets a "boy" card.
Gee, mom, I didn't think
It would be this hard.

I've messed this one up.
This one is the best.
I'm too tired to finish, mom.
Will you do the rest?

Deer Park Woman Listed As "Fair" After Collision

A Deer Park woman was listed in "fair" condition at West Virginia University Medical Center, Morgantown, this morning, where she was transported following a two-vehicle accident early Friday near the Deep Creek Lake Bridge.

Karen L. Marucci, 33, a passenger in one of the vehicles, was originally treated at Garrett County Memorial Hospital, then transferred to WVU.

Dennis Deem, 25, Morgantown, driver of the vehicle, was listed as "satisfactory" at Garrett Memorial this morning.

According to reports filed by the Maryland State Police at McHenry, the two vehicles struck head-on in the northbound lane at approximately 12:35 a.m.

Deem was northbound on U.S. Route 219, just south of the Gravelly Run Road, in a 1985 Chevrolet Spectrum, while Shirley A. Jarusek, 21, Oakland, was southbound in a 1979 Chevrolet Chevette.

Police said Jarusek was apparently in the northbound lane.

The injured were transported to Garrett Memorial by the Southern Rescue Squad.

Kennth House, 23, Friendsville, a passenger in the Jarusek vehicle, was treated and released from the hospital.

Tfc. Cindy Smith investigated the incident, charging Jarusek with crossing the center line.

A single-vehicle accident Monday sent Granville P. Halterman, Jr., 58, Mtn. Lake Park, to Garrett Memorial, where he was treated and released.

According to police reports, Halterman was westbound on A Street operating a plow truck from the Garrett County Roads Department. The vehicle slid across the intersection of Mitchell Street and overturned.

Tfc. Larry Rosage investigated the 8 p.m. mishap.

Diana L. Cole, 29, Bridgeport, W.Va., and passenger Ronald E. Messenger, 20, Morgantown, were treated and released from Memorial Hospital, Cumberland, following a two-vehicle accident late Thursday afternoon on Route 48.

Police said Cole was traveling west in a 1980 Dodge Colt when it slid out of control on the icy roadway, coming to a stop facing east.

Bonnie J. Meagher, 37, Cresaptown, was driving a 1976 Plymouth Valiant westbound when she observed Cole's vehicle in the roadway. Meagher attempted to stop, but was unable to do so because of ice on the roadway. The two vehicles struck head-on.

Cpl. G.A. Berkebile investigated the incident, and reported that no charges were made.

Erlene P. Moats, 21, McHenry, a passenger, was treated and released from Garrett Memorial Hospital following a two-vehicle accident Friday on U.S. Route 219 near the Deep Creek Lake Information Booth.

According to police, Ricky S. Moats, 22, McHenry, was traveling south in a 1978 Mercury Zephyr. Juanita J. Hockman, 28, Grantsville, was following Moats in a 1975 Chrysler LeBaron. The Hockman vehicle collided with the Moats vehicle, which then traveled off the roadway into an embankment.

Tfc. R. C. Resh investigated the incident, charging Hockman with failing to control speed.

Conrail Issues Statement

Consolidated Rail Corporation (Conrail) says that it expected the U.S. Senate to give its approval to the sale of Conrail to the Norfolk Southern Corp. However, the rail company now says it is urging the House of Representatives to look at the proposal on its merits.

In a prepared statement, Conrail's management said that the approval given by the U.S. Senate of the Department of Transportation's plan to sell Conrail to the Norfolk Southern Corp. was no surprise; but that the vocal opposition mounted toward the plan showed that many in the Senate have serious doubts about the proposal.

The statement said: "The fact that the Morgan Stanley plan received 39 votes (or more than 42 percent of those who voted) in the Senate last week to return Conrail to the private sector as an independent company is vitally important to understand because it reflects the sentiments of many in the Senate—that the Norfolk Southern acquisition of Conrail is not in the country's best intersts.

"When the House of Representatives looks closely at the serious problems that will arise from a sale to the Norfolk Southern, such as a loss of competition in freight transportation, substantial job losses, and at least $400 million of reduced cash and tax revenue to the federal government (vs. the Morgan Stanley proposal), we believe that the House will see the wisdom of moving Conrail to the private sector as an independent company.

"The hard evidence, Conrails financial performance, supports the case that Conrail can thrive as an independent company. There is no reason why Conrail cannot thrive as an independent function as any other successful railroad in this country. We urged the members of the House of Representatives to view the matter on its merits. If they do, an independent Conrail is assured."

Oakland Chapter Of Eastern Star Elects Officers

"A Recipe for Happiness" was the opening thought of Worthy Matron Eleanor Teats, as Oakland Chapter #67 Order of the Eastern Star, held its regular meeting February 4 at the Masonic Lodge.

Among the business conducted was celebration of February birthdays and election of officers. Officers elected for 1986 were: Worthy Matron, Sharon Perando; Worthy Patron, Richard Perando; Associate Matron, Geraldine Teats; Associate Patron, Robert Paugh; secretary, Betty Foy; treasurer, Roberta Baker; conductress, Linda Bray; and associate conductress, Mary Clark.

"Prayer For Bad Times" was the closing message of Ms. Teats. She announced that Grand Session will be held April 28 through 30.

Fellowship was continued following the meeting with refreshments being served by Debra and her committee.

The next meeting will be held February 18.

ONE BUS FOR PROPS — The Southern Garrett Winterguard departed for Dulles International Airport yesterday where they were scheduled to fly to New Brighton, England, to compete in the International Winterguard Championships. They are one of the two United States guards to be competing, the other being from California. Elaborate sets were designed by the Winterguard's trainer, Bob Thomas, from Greensburg, Pa., which must also be transported with the guard and their chaperones. Thomas also wrote and choreographed the program, entitled "Chess", based on the Broadway play. Background music for the performace will be "One Night In Bangkok", a popular tune dealing with the game of the masterminds. The program itself deals with the Americans and the Russians playing Chess, and includes a bigger than life Chessboard with the performers dressed as Chess pieces. There are also role players actually playing the game during the program. It's an exotic and precise performance that the Winerguard is sure will bring them international victory.

Office Closed

The Personnel Office of Garrett County Memorial Hospital is temporarily closed because of renovation, according to Annette M. Livengood, personnel director. She stated that the office is slated to re-open on March 3.

Dailey To Speak To Local DAR

The Youghiogheny Glades Chapter, Daughters of the American Revolution, will meet Monday, February 17, at the home of Mrs. Delores Hayden, Mtn. Lake Park, at 7:30 p.m. The guest speaker will be Dr. George Dailey, history professor at Garrett Community College.

Hostesses for the meeting will be Mrs. Luther Parrack, Mrs. Deets Parrack, Mrs. Robert Ruckert, and Mrs. Arthur Wolf.

A nominations committee will be appointed to present a slate of officer candidates at the March meeting. A report will be given on the completion of the Cemetery Book and the projected date for publication.

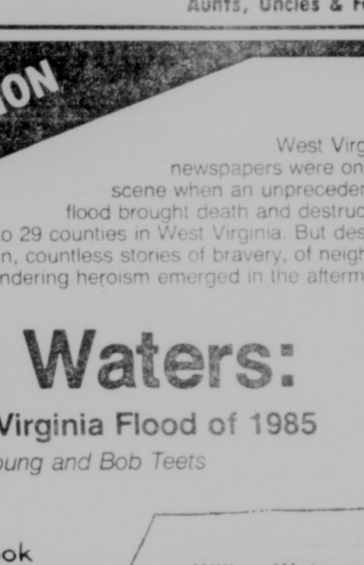
The 81st Conference of the Maryland State Society, DAR, will be held March 20-22 in Reisterstown. Chapter members interested in attending on Saturday, March 22, are asked to contact Mrs. Richard Sherwood prior to February 15.

February has been designated American History Month by the NSDAR. In September 1786, at a conference in Annapolis, Alexander Hamilton and James Madison were sympathetic with those calling for a conference of the 13 states for the purpose of drafting a national constitution. The Daughters of the American Revolution are recognizing these men for their efforts toward establishing an effective, organized government in the United States.

Optometrists To Be Guests Of Diabetes Group

The Garrett County Chapter of the American Diabetes Association will meet this Monday, February 17, at 7:30 p.m. in the lower level of St. Paul's United Methodist Church, Oakland.

Speaker for the evening will be Dr. John B. oaddus, Oakland Optometrist, who will discuss the Diabetic Eye. Dr. Broaddus' presentation will cover the various ways in which diabetes can affect vision and the health of the eyes. He will also provide an update on the latest advances in medical treatment of diabetic eye problems.



Dr. Broaddus and his associate, Dr. Jim Jones, will perform retinal photography free of charge for all those in attendance. Using the Canon retinal camera, Broaddus and Jones will provide a film record of the internal health of the eyes. Diabetic persons will then be able to see for themselves what changes, if any, are occurring to the inside (the retina) of their eyes.

Chapter President Terry Knotts encourages all area diabetics to come and learn more about diabetes. Free blood sugar testing will also be available during the meeting.

In Memoriam

Birthday Remembrance

For our beloved son, grandson, and nephew, Danny E. Nicklow, who was killed in Vietnam March 16, 1967, and would have celebrated his 39th birthday February 13th.

Danny E. Nicklow

Tho' we haven't seen your radiant face since you left for Vietnam,
Our image of you remains the same.
This isn't wrong because in your angelic form we are content you remain the same,
You were never selfish, always kind;
These are the memories you left behind.
Deep in our hearts you will stay,
Loved and remembered every day.
Just a memory fond and true,
In our hearts you live forever,
Because we thought the world of you.
A smile for all, a heart of gold,
You were one of the best the world could hold.

Self-Awareness Program Being Introduced Here

A new self-awareness program based on personal goals and communication skills is being introduced to Allegany and Garrett Counties by Canadian lecturer, Philip Ponchet.

A consultant with the Inner Peace Movement, Ponchet will be conducting a series of lectures and workshops designed to show people how they can discover their own potential for success in business, personal and social areas of their lives.

"Most people are looking for a better quality of life and standard of living, but often they don't know how to use what they already have to achieve that," Ponchet says. "IPM offers people basic practical tools such as communication skills, where they can start seeing results straight away."

Ponchet says successful people are ones "who have learned to understand themselves and find their own answers for how to deal with their environment, even if this just meant communicating better to their loved ones or families."

He said the Inner Peace Movement is a non-religious, non-political education organization which helped people take a look at themselves and what they wanted out of life, and learn to be more in control of their own energy.

"Even the colours of clothes we wear can influence our self-image and what we project," he said.

A one-hour public introductory lecture will be held at Holiday Inn, Grantsville, on Tuesday, February 18, at 7:30 p.m., followed by a three-hour practical techniques session at the same location from 8:30 to 10:30 p.m.

WHAT IS A BIBLE FUNDAMENTALIST?

In an August 5th article in NEWSWEEK, titled "Is Fundamentalism Addictive?" it was stated, "Hard-core fundamentalists tend to belong to close-knit, independent congregations run by authoritarian preachers who keep their flocks busy at nights and forever anxious about their personal salvation."

The report tells of Fundamentalists Anonymous, a movement created to help former fundamentalists to "shake fundamentalism's cultlike grip" and to "show ex-fundamentalists how to cope with anxiety and fear," so says the co-founder of the movement, Richard Yao.

Let me say something about these statements. First, they call us "hard core," because we take a strong stand against sin in a permissive age, sin that God, who is holy, clearly denounces in the Bible, that being the case, so be it, we will stand with God. They also call us "hard core" because we stand dogmatically in defense of the great truths of the Word of God, we believe they are to be preached, believed and practiced, that being the case we plead guilty to be branded as "hard core".

Second they called us, "close-knit," we plead guilty to that statement, after all we are members of God's family, and the Bible says our hearts are "knit together in love". Jesus said, "By this shall all men know that ye are my disciples, in that ye have love one for another". Of course the media that seeks to defame and discredit Bible fundamentalism knows nothing about the love of God that binds the hearts of God's people together.

The article said thirdly, "fundamentalists tend to belong to independent congregations", we plead guilty to that also. We believe the Word teaches we are to worship and serve God free from the control of secular government and ecclesiastical hierachies.

Fourth, it is stated that the congregations are run by "authoritarian preachers". It's strange that when we think of the armed forces we want a general in command who speaks and leads with authority, when a man's wife is facing major life and death surgery, he wants a surgeon leading that surgical team who is a medical authority concerning his wife's operation, when a huge ocean liner puts out from port for the high seas with hundreds of precious lives on board, we demand a captain who is an authority on navigation, nautical travel and the ship's operation. But when we put a man in the pulpit as the spokesman for God, who is proclaiming eternal truth and dealing with the eternal destiny of souls, the media and the liberals think he is supposed to be a mealy-mouthed, pussy-footed, compromising coward with his collar on backwards and a long robe, dressed like a woman with a purple sash around his neck. I say, God give us preachers who do not fear the face of man and who preach with authority, even as the scriptures said of Jesus in Matt. 7:29, "For he taught them as one having authority, and not as the (compromising) scribes." Yes, we fundamentalists will never apologize for authoritative preaching or leadership.

Fifth, that fundamentalists "keep their flocks busy at night", I will answer that by saying, family life is ten thousand times stronger than it is among liberals, that the divorce rate is far, far lower among the fundamentalists than among the liberals. Fundamentalists go to mid-week night prayer service as a family because they love to go, not because they are coerced or intimidated into going. By the way, while fundamentalists are in mid-week prayer service or perhaps sometimes out on soul-winning visitation, liberals are often out in bars drinking up the family income.

Sixth, we are told that fundamentalist preachers keep their flocks "forever anxious about their personal salvation". Why the least anxious people in the world about salvation are Bible fundamentalists. Thank God we KNOW that we are saved, when we received Christ as Saviour and was born again all the anxiety and guesswork was removed. We have perfect peace in the place of what once may have been anxiety.

As for the statement by Richard Yao, in which he talks of "showing ex-fundamentalists how to cope with anxiety and fear", he is making reference to folks who were around fundamentalists, but who never were born-again. He talks about the "cult-like grip" of fundamentalists, why, fundamentalists are the most emancipated and freedom-loving people in the world.

In the Faith,
Pastor John Schrimshire

Lakers Improve Record To 17-9 With Three Straight Victories

After a ten-point loss to nationally-ranked arch rival Allegany CC last Wednesday evening, the Garrett Community College Lakers came flying back to record three straight wins this past week, including an 85-57 thrashing of Essex CC on Saturday in McHenry, a 58-48 drubbing of visiting CCAC-Boyce Sunday afternoon, and a 79-70 defeat of host Catonsville last night.

Coach Dennis Gibson's squad, which is now 17-9 on the season, will conclude the regular season at Hagerstown Junior College this Saturday.

It was a 47-point combined effort by two Lakers, Jim Feagins and Terry Carter, that paved the way for the sound defeat of Essex on Saturday. Feagins netted 11 buckets and three of four free throws for 25 points, while Carter sunk a career-high 22 points on nine goals and four of four free tosses.

The Lakers jumped out to an 8-1 advantage in the early going, but then the visitors came back to assume an 18-17 lead at the 9:25 mark of the first half.

Feagins, who came into the contest with a 20-point-plus average, then found the mark on three long jumpers to give the momentum, and the lead, back to the Lakers, who took a 34-25 advantage into the locker room at halftime.

Essex never again threatened in the contest as the Lakers went on top 47-29 with 14 minutes remaining and then 75-53 with about one and one-half minutes left.

Feagins also paced Garrett in rebounds with 11, while center Torin Savoy grabbed ten.

Leading Essex in scoring were Ben Morgan with 16, Scott Thornton with 13, Tim Fitzgerald, 11, and Rob Kahl, 10.

The Lakers held onto the momentum right into Sunday's contest with Boyce and fired a sizzling 63 percent from the floor, as they made good on 25 of 40 shots.

Feagins again paced Garrett with a 17-point effort, while Sean Hazel finished with 14 points.

The Lakers were up by only four, 46-42, with about eight minutes remaining in the game. Carter then sunk a baseline jumper at the 6:52 mark to put Garrett up 48-42. A tip-in by Savoy and a a pair of dunks by Hazel gave the Lakers a 12-point advantage with about three minutes remaining.

Boyce then began to stage a rally as Mark Kunf scored on a tip, Dave Bingham sunk a pair of free throws, and Jay Osedueda made good on a jumper to cut the Laker lead to six, 54-48.

However, that was the end of the Pennsylvanians' scoring for the evening. Jerry Monroe gave the Lakers a lay-up and Hazel followed with a pair of free throws to arrive at the final score.

Jim Mayfield was credited with five assists and four steals for the Lakers, while Hazel also contributed five steals and a team-high nine rebounds.

It was the 12th loss of the season for Boyce, against 11 wins.

Once again Jimmy Feagins was the star for the Lakers last night as he pumped in 33 points on 13 buckets and seven of eight free throws, and also grabbed ten rebounds against Catonsville.

The Lakers were on top by only four at halftime, 35-31, but held the Cardinals at arm's length throughout most of the second half.

Sean Hazel added a dozen points and nine rebounds for Garrett, while Jim Ragler provided four steals, four assists, and five of six foul shots late in the game. Jerry Monroe contributed six steals.

The Lakers were out-gunned by Catonsville from the floor by a 31-29 margin, but connected on 21 of 31 free throws, compared to an eight-for-14 effort by the Cardinals. It was Catonsville's 19th loss of the season against only two wins.

Terry Jackson led the Cardinals with 28 points, while teammates Otis Ragland and Dan McKee contributed 11 points each and John Preston finished with 10.

Ram Grapplers Whip Northern And Allegany

Although the Southern High wrestling team got off to a slow start this season, the Rams have come on strong in recent weeks to improve their record to 9-4. The two most recent victories were over arch-rival Northern last Thursday evening, 46-24, in Oakland and a 54-18 mashing of winless Allegany Monday night in Cumberland.

Todd Beahm, Brad King, Chad King, Doug Evans, and Alan Sisler all recorded pins against the Huskies, while Brant Yoder, Paul McClintock, and Dennis Hetrick registered pins for Northern.

Bruce Brown won for the Rams via a technical fall over Buddy Duckworth, while Chuck Fitzwater added to Southern's total points with a decision win over Terry Beal. Art Fedde was awarded a forfeit win for the Rams.

Allegany's biggest problem against the Rams was a lack of wrestlers, as the Campers gave up seven matches by forfeit. Also winning for Southern were Brad King on a pin and Chuck Fitzwater on a technical fall.

Chris Reiger and Greg Morris earned the only victories for the Campers, both by pins.

Coach Rob Browning's Rams will wrap up their regular season this evening at home with a make-up match against Central Preston. They are then slated to compete in the Bi-County Tournament February 21-22, followed by the Regional and State tournaments.

Rams Secure County Title By Mashing Huskies

The Southern Rams made it a clean sweep in Garrett County high school varsity basketball competition by mashing the Northern Huskies Friday night, 60-33, in Accident.

Southern won the first contest between the two schools, 63-42, earlier this season in Oakland.

The Rams got off to a slow start against the fired-up Huskies and found themselves trailing, 11-8, at the end of the first period. However, they grabbed the momentum in the second stanza and outscored Coach Harv Speicher's squad, 18-5, to assume a 26-16 halftime advantage.

Again in the third quarter, Northern could manage only five points, while the Rams stretched their lead to 39-21.

It was the sixth win of the campaign for Southern against ten losses, while the Huskies fell to 7-11.

Danny Jackson paced the Rams' balanced scoring attack with a game-high 18 points, followed by Jon Reneslacis with 12, Jeff Sweitzer, 11, and Max Hill, 10.

None of the Huskies reached double figures, as Mark Robeson led with eight points.

The Rams out-shot the Huskies from the floor by a 22-12 margin and converted 16 of 27 free throws, compared to a nine-for-16 effort by Northern.

In the preliminary contest, Jeff King and J.R. Bosley netted 13 and 10 points, respectively, to lead the Southern jayvees to a 33-29 win over their Northern counterparts. John Harmke led the Huskies with 12 points.

The Rams were slated to face Keyser on Tuesday night, but the weather forced postponement of the game until this Saturday night on the Golden Tornado's floor.

Northern is scheduled to travel to Meyersdale this Friday evening.

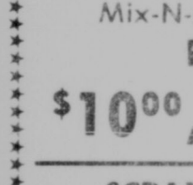
was excessive throughout the house. He estimated damages at approximately $10,000.



Mr. and Mrs. Wolfe were visiting in their son's house nearby when the fire began. They had left their house at about 12:30 p.m. and it was Mrs. Wolfe who noticed smoke coming from her house, according to Carola.

Carola said the couple had insurance on the house and did have smoke detectors. He noted that the smoldering embers consumed most of the oxygen in the house which caused the fire to practically extinguish itself. He said if the house had been opened up sooner, it would have been a far more severe fire, possibly resulting in the destruction of the house.

Firemen remained on the scene until 3:18 p.m. There were no injuries reported.

Something To Think About
R. Mark Durst DIRECTOR

THE CONDOLENCE CALL

The condolence call is distinct from attendance at the viewing or funeral. It is a personal home visit made to a bereaved individual or family by relatives, friends, neighbors, associates, acquaintances soon after they have learned of the death. However, the individual who fails to go early to the bereaved home need not assume that he may not go later. Condolence calls may be made at any time, before the funeral or after, during the first weeks of grief.

The condolence call has several purposes. It expresses sympathy and offers help in a difficult time. The bereaved should know that they are not alone in their grief, that there are people who care about and understand their sorrow. It also helps maintain ties between that person and the society. This not only demonstrates community support, it can help the mourner from slipping too deeply into grief.

Be Prepared!

Winter Storms Can Disrupt Your Electric Service.

Providing you with continuous, dependable electric service is our first priority at Potomac Edison. Despite our best efforts, there are times when Winter storms and blizzards get the upper hand and disrupt your service. When this happens, there are several things you can do to help minimize your inconvenience and also help us restore your power as quickly as possible.

1. Be Prepared

Establish an easy-to-reach place in your home where you can always have the following emergency items available:

- Flashlight with extra batteries
- Several candles and holders
- Matches
- Small battery-powered radio
- List of emergency phone numbers including Potomac Edison and an electrician
- Hand-operated clock
- Hand-operated can opener

2. Do Your Neighbors Have Power?

Check with your neighbors to see if they have electric service. If they do, the problem may be in your own home. Check for tripped circuit breakers or blown fuses. You may require the services of an electrician.

3. Call Potomac Edison

If your neighbors are also without electric service, call Potomac Edison. You'll find your local office number on the reverse side of your electric bill or in your phone book. Give your name, address, phone number and any other necessary information. During major storms, you may receive a busy signal, but please keep dialing until you reach us. Stay clear of any fallen or downed electric lines.

4. When Your Power Is Off

When your power is off, leave one light switch in the "on" position so you'll know when your electric service is restored. Turn off or unplug any major appliances you may have been using when the power went off. Food will keep for up to two days in your refrigerator or freezer if the doors are not opened, so avoid opening more often than absolutely necessary.

You can be assured that Potomac Edison will restore your electric service as quickly as possible.

ONE SUITCASE FOR ENGLAND! — Members of the Southern Garrett Winterguard were given that directive and it is evident in the photos that it was no small task for these excited teenagers to accomplish. The night before packing took place Tuesday and the Winterguard departed from Southern High School yesterday by bus to travel to Dulles International Airport for the trip to England for international competition. Pictured directly above are Jodi Wilt and Shannon Sell in a classic situation of sitting on a suitcase to make it all fit. Jodi's last comments were, "I can't wait. I never thought it would really happen . . . ya' know . . . I thought something would happen." Shannon added, "I can't believe the time is finally here." Jodi's mom, Judy, said she was relieved that everything was falling into place because the kids had worked so hard. Pictured above, far right, is Brian Custer, feverishly pitching clothes from his closet in preparation for the trip. Brian's final remarks were, "I like this opportunity of representing Southern High School . . . it's a good way of putting Garrett County on the map because we will be back with the title." Brian's dad, Clarence, said this was something these young people would never forget. Tracy Umstot, pictured below, sneaks an additional duffle bag into her suitcase. It seems she is more concerned with what she will bring back, rather than what she is taking. Tracy commented, "I'm kinda scared to fly, but it's gonna' be great . . . it's gonna' be fun . . . and we're gonna' win!"

Volunteer Bills

do the following:

1) For three years they would continue to use their share of its funds under the program in an equal distribution between acquisition and development of the land, for recreation and open space purposes (this condition is present under the current law); and 2) In the fourth year it gives them the authority to use whatever percentage of their share of the funds that they consider appropriate for either the acquisition, or development of the land, for recreation or open space purposes.

This bill will be heard by the House Appropriations Committee tomorrow.

The Youghiogheny River bill which both legislators had introduced was withdrawn by them after an official opinion from the State's Attorney General that tributaries of the Yough River are already excluded from the law governing the Scenic and Wild River.

Ski Theft

Two other ski thefts, both of which occurred on Sunday, are still under investigation by members of the state police.

The first pair of skis and bindings, worth $250, where stolen from Kimberly Witt, Frostburg. They were described as blue and silver, size 175, with silver Solomon ski bindings.

The second pair, belonging to Ludwick Grimm, a ski instructor, were described as gray with blue and red stripes, with black and red Marker bindings. The skis and bindings were worth a total of $400.

A destruction of property incident was reported by Bernice Crawford, Oakland, February 5.

According to police reports, someone shot a BB at Crawford's vehicle, breaking a passenger window on her 1976 Ford Pinto.

Crawford was traveling east on Route 50, east of the Table Rock Road, when the window broke. She then continued to her destination, and when she cleaned up the broken glass, she found a BB on the floor of the car.

Tfc. G.R. Chaney investigated the incident, estimating damages at $125.

Drug Cases

House's bond was continued. He was represented by Thomas R. Janes.

A case against Linda B. Booth, 25, Oakland, was nolle prosequi in open court by order of the State's Attorney.

The case involved charges of possession with intent to distribute marijuana and possession of marijuana, filed by Hinnant following a February 23, 1985 incident in the Oakland area.

In non-drug related cases, Judge Thayer ordered a presentence investigation for Clayton L. Donham, 28, Loch Lynn, after he pled guilty to a charge of child abuse. The judge also continued Donham's bail, with the condition that he have no contact with the victim.

Charges of sex contact, second degree sex contact, third degree sex contact and assault and battery were not prosecuted by the court.

Donham's attorney was Robert E. Watson.

The judge also ordered a presentence investigation and continued bail for Carroll T. Ross, 33, Cumberland, after he pled guilty to a charge of theft.

The charge was filed by Chief John K. Sines, Oakland City Police Department, following a theft at Helbig's Jewelry Store.

According to court documents, an anonymous tip led Sines to Ross, who had pawned several rings at the E.S. Smith Gun Shop, Cumberland.

Ross was represented by John F. Somerville, Jr. and G. Gary Hanna.

Land Issues

individual volunteer companies can normally expect to receive $2,000 to $3,000.

Bambacus said the fund "should be given as a block grant." Adequate reporting procedures to protect the fund from abuse are already part of state law, he added.

Traveling to Annapolis to testify at the hearing, Garrett County Commissioner Elwood L. Groves II, speaking for the entire Board of Garrett County Commissioners, told the Senate committee that the "burden on enforcement" for the fund "falls totally on county governments" and he said Public Safety and Correctional Services officials were slow to develop regulations to use the money and even slower to answer county questions about its legal use.

He said that in recent months the feeling of county government as well as fire and rescue squads has been one of "frustration in determining from the Department of Public Safety and Correctional Services specifically which expenditures were allowable and those areas where regulations were either not adequate or were vague or ambiguous."

As a result, he said that the commissioners heartily support the efforts of Senator Bambacus to simplify and clarify the regulatory process as outlined in SB-373.

Groves, as well as Leonard King, president of the Maryland State Firemen's Association, said volunteer companies also oppose a requirement that equipment, purchased with fund proceeds, must have a useful life of 15 years.

The current law also "prohibits the purchase of fire axes and (emergency) radios," the senator told the committee. He said part of the funding law talks about flexibility in administering the fund. However, other sections of the law restrict use of the money. The senator testified that many volunteer companies in the state are "down to the nitty gritty . . . there's no need for frills. They simply want to keep operational!"

Also speaking in favor of the bill was William Clark, director of field operations for Maryland Emergency Medical Services, who said the 15-year requirement is "not realistic."

Trying to explain the 15-year rule was Joseph D. Urbin, finance director for the Department of Public Safety and Corrections, who said the rule is in place because funds under the current law appear within the $220 million debt affordability limit of the state even though the law draws general fund dollars and not bond proceeds.

Bambacus and several other senators said that inconsistency should be corrected and Urbin agreed to investigate the matter.

Bambacus felt the hearing went well over all and showed a real need in rural areas, "a needed flexibility" that must be addressed.

Commissioner Groves said there "seemed to be a consensus between those who testified and the senators. That there are definitely some problems with the way the law has been implemented this past year, and there is a need to find a solution to the problem." Groves said that even the Department of Public Safety and Correctional Services agreed that something needed to be done.

MSTA Supports Efforts To Curb Abuse, Neglect

Beverly Corelle Stonestreet president of the Maryland State Teachers Association, said last week that the state's teachers support attempts to curb child abuse, including many of the suggestions contained in the recent report of the Governor's Task Force on Child Abuse and Neglect.

"MSTA has been pushing for legislation to help prevent child abuse for years," she said. The 35,000-member organization embarked on a program to educate teachers about child abuse several years ago, Stonestreet said, and the MSTA legislative program has long included planks calling for programs that protect children from abuse and neglect.

Among the concepts that MSTA historically supported are ways to minimize the trauma of child witnesses, the formation of a Child Abuse and Neglect Council, penalties against those who fail to report abuse and the prosecution of abusers and those who create and distribute child pornography.

Stonestreet applauded the diligence of the Task Force and their efforts to prevent child abuse, noting that she was pleased that a classroom teacher served on the Task Force.

Susie C. Jablinske, a past president of the Teachers Association of Anne Arundel County and a current member of the boards of MSTA and the National Education Association, represented teachers on the Task Force.

Stonestreet said that she hoped additional teaching professionals would be added to the Child Abuse and Neglect Council. Currently, the proposed legislation calls for just one teacher on a council of 17 members.

Stonestreet also said that MSTA supports the concepts of HB489, SB287, HB471 and SB271, which were written to minimize the trauma of child witnesses. She is concerned, however, about unfounded legal actions and the resulting damage to the accused's reputation.

"Surely we—MSTA and lawmakers—can work together to ensure that the constitutional rights of both children and the accused are protected," she said, pledging MSTA'S cooperation in pursuing effective legislation to prevent child abuse and neglect.

Sarbanes Urges Support For ARC

Saying it is "unwise and unwarranted" for the Reagan Administration to propose to eliminate all funding for the Appalachian Regional Commission, Senator Paul Sarbanes has urged the Senate to again reject the President's request to eliminate the ARC and its "important contributions to the economic well-being of the region."

"The President's Budget would delete all funding for the ARC," Sarbanes said in letters to the Senate Appropriations and Environment and Public Works Committees. "Not only is this action unwise and unwarranted, it is also based on faulty premises." The Administration budget submitted late last week claims "The Administration maintains that ARC's regionally-targeted funding has outlived its purpose and cannot be justified," he noted.

"Unemployment in the three Maryland counties eligible for ARC programs is almost twice as high as the State's average," Sarbanes told the Senate Committee members. "A further assault on ARC programs has been mounted by calling for the withdrawal of $81 million in funding already appropriated by the Congress for this current fiscal year, money which the participating jurisdictions had included in their own budget calculations," he added.

Urging the Senate to once again reject the Administration's efforts to eliminate the ARC, Sarbanes told the Senators, "Each year the Congress has recognized the important contributions of the ARC and its programs, and I urge you to do so once again this year."

Time Management Among Extension Service Workshops

The Cooperative Extension Service and Community Action are offering a workshop on Time Management as one portion of the one-half day program on "Management for Community Groups." The program is February 26 at the Oakland Branch of Garrett Community College from 8:30 a.m. to 12:30 p.m. Other workshops offered will be Stress Management and Volunteer Management.

The workshop on Time Management will be taught by Irmgard Koscielniak, Extension Agent in Allegany County. The workshop will include the 15 leading time wasters and human traits and tendencies influencing the use of time. A brief review of management by objectives (MBO) will lead to outlining a pert chart (program evaluation review technique). Each attendant will identify his or her leading time waster and make a plan of work according to a specific timetable.

To obtain more information on "Management for Community Groups," persons may contact the Garrett County Cooperative Extension office, 202 S. Third Street, Oakland; 334-2145.

NOTICE

TO WATER CUSTOMERS IN OAKLAND

The Town of Oakland has approximately 850 water customers. Some have experienced frozen water lines and others have let water run to prevent freezing. Some have shared with their waterless neighbors. Neither the Town nor the customers have been at fault in the situation. In fairness to both, where there is evidence that any of the above has occurred, the March quarter water bills will be adjusted as follows:

1. The least amount a customer will pay will be the minimum quarterly charge.
2. The maximum a customer will pay will be the highest amount paid in any quarter during the past year.
3. If the amount of water consumed is less than the last quarter the customer will be billed for that amount.

ASK ME ABOUT TV

By Val Carew

I think Chuck Woolery is the sexiest man on TV. What can you tell me about the "Scrabble" host? — P.G., Oshkosk, Wis.

Chuck Woolery

Woolery, who was born in Ashland, Ky. on March 16, was the original host of NBC's "Wheel of Fortune." He left the show in 1981.

Woolery served in the Navy for two years before he enrolled in the University of Kentucky, hoping to become a doctor. But, says Woolery, "My initial biology classes disabused me of that idea." He then transferred to Moorhead State University, where he majored in sociology and economics. Soon afterward, Woolery became a wine consultant. He later worked for Pillsbury.

In the mid-'60s, Woolery moved to Nashville, where he wrote two hit songs: "Forgive Me, Heart" for Ray Price and Tammy Wynette's "For the Love of My Child."

He made his TV debut on "The Jimmy Dean Show," and was a featured vocalist on the 1974 summer series "Your Hit Parade." Woolery, who has appeared in the film "Treasure of Jamaica Reef," also hosts the syndicated series "The Love Connection."

Is Kate Smith still alive? — E.K., Middleburg, N.Y.

Yes. The singer is 78 years old, and is quite ill. She is being taken care of by her sister.

Garlic tea keeps soap star free from flu bug

By Renee Ross

When it comes to exercise, Colby Chester believes that seeing is believing.

Colby Chester

"I go to the gym a lot, and when I look at the other people developing their muscles, it makes me think that someday I'll be that way too," explains Chester, who plays attorney Michael Crawford on the CBS soap "The Young and the Restless."

"Four years ago, I quit smoking. As a result, I take out all my anxieties in the gym. In fact," the 6-foot-2-inch, 167-pound actor adds, "I was still smoking when I first joined the gym, but I found I couldn't do both. Finding that out was probably the best thing that ever happened to me."

Chester and his wife, Lynn Benesch, who played Meredith Lord on "One Life to Live," stick to sensible eating habits. "We're pretty much nutritionally oriented," the 44-year-old actor says. "When we came to live on the West Coast, we went through periods of exploring different foods and vitamins with nutritionists. So we became vegetarians for nearly three years, but then I noticed," Chester laughs, "that many vegetarians are so calm you can't talk to them because they're like bookends!"

Before opting for a career in front of the cameras, Chester worked for three years on Wall Street. "Show business has its ups and downs, but no stress in the world can compare with the stock market," he says.

These days, Chester relaxes by turning to inspirational reading. "I'm very involved with Science of Mind, which combines what I consider the best of Christian Science and Religious Science and a number of other things," he explains. "I'm not actually a practitioner, but I do read a lot of their philosophy."

The actor also shares a wintertime health tip. "I discovered a flu remedy," he says, "and I swear by it. Take a clove of garlic, mince it fine and put it in the bottom of a ceramic teacup. Pour boiling water over it as if you were making tea. Let it steep 5 to 10 minutes. Before you go to bed, drink it.

"The next morning," Chester adds, "you may wake up with garlic breath, but chances are you'll be cured of your cold. It's fabulous."

Robert Mitchum stars as John Thompson, a man who flees prison after his niece (Kathleen York) plans an escape route in "Thompson's Last Run," a made-for-TV movie airing Sunday, Feb. 16 on CBS.

What a feeling! Jennifer Beals stars as an aspiring dancer in "Flashdance," making its small-screen premiere on Monday, Feb. 17 on NBC. The 1983 hit film — some critics have dubbed it a 96-minute rock video — won an Oscar for its title song.

Gerard is eager to get back in a series

By Marc Minnelli

Though Gil Gerard hasn't starred in a series since NBC's "Buck Rogers in the 25th Century" went off the air in 1981, life in the Gerard household is hardly a real-life version of the she works-he doesn't "Star is Born" syndrome.

Gil Gerard

Mrs. Gerard — better known as Connie Sellecca — is known as a beauteous, brainy actress who earns big bucks portraying assistant "Hotel" manager Christine Francis on the long-running ABC series, but her husband is just as visible. This week, the actor stars in "The Last Electric Knight," an episode of "The Disney Sunday Movie" airing Sunday, Feb. 16 on ABC.

Soon after "Buck Rogers" bucked its way into oblivion, Gerard took off into made-for-TV movie land. Some of his recent small-screen ventures include "Not Just Another Affair," co-starring Victoria Principal, "Hear No Evil," in which Gerard portrayed real-life deaf policeman Bill Zerbe, and last year's "Stormin' Home," in which Gerard played an alcoholic motorcycle racer.

In "Last Electric Knight," Gerard plays a hard-nosed New York City sergeant who is kidnapped by drug dealers and rescued by a 14-year-old karate champion. Sounds, well, interesting.

"It also sounds like a 'Karate Kid' rip-off," Gerard, 43, explains, "but my film has more substance because it focuses on the relationship between the two main characters. This isn't a story about martial arts; it's a story about relationships."

Like most of the mini-movies that make up the Disney dynasty, "The Last Electric Knight" may become a regular series. The idea intrigues Gerard.

"I'd like to do another series," he confesses, "but only if it allows me to get into directing as well. I want a series that would enhance my marketability, not stifle it."

A series like "Hotel," perhaps? The actor laughs. "I've been offered roles on the show," he says, "and I've turned them all down. It's not my idea of a great series — and I only watch it because of Connie."

Soap stars tie the knot off-screen

By Kimberly Redmond

I'm a big "Another World" fan, and I especially enjoy the characters of twins Marley and Victoria Love and Jake McKinnon. I'd like to know if Tom Eplin and Ellen Wheeler, the actor and actress who portray these characters, are married in real life. — F.M., Placentia, Calif.

Tom Eplin

Eplin and Miss Wheeler surprised everyone by eloping to Las Vegas on Dec. 28, where they were quietly married in a ceremony attended by their immediate families. The couple had been dating for quite some time (Eplin had previously dated Tracey E. Bregman, who portrays Lauren Williams on "The Young and the Restless"), but managed to keep their relationship a secret.

Ellen Wheeler

Whatever happened to William Gray Espy, the actor who was the original Snapper Foster on "The Young and the Restless," and was last seen as Mitch Blake on "Another World"? — F.S., Edmonton, Canada.

Espy has a habit of dropping out of sight from time to time, as he did between his role on the two soaps. The soap-opera grapevine says that he's currently working on another television project, but nothing has been said about when — or if — Espy will soon appear on the small screen again.

BEHIND THE SCENES

It's smooth sailing for director Ted Lange

By Frank Lovece

It's all his mom's fault. Ted Lange would have been happy just being an actor. But no. "My mother told me, 'Teddy, if you want to be in show business, be a director. An actor gets to play a part. A director gets to play all the parts.'"

Ted Lange

The "Love Boat" actor listened. He's gone on to direct about 12 episodes of the ABC series, including the three stories airing Saturday, Feb. 22. Two more Lange-directed episodes are upcoming this season. Thanks, Ma.

"Most directors," Lange observes, "can't act, and the meanest ones are failed actors. There are so many like that in this business, it's no wonder actors want a chance to call the shots themselves.

"I don't have to worry about proving myself to the regular cast and crew," Lange adds happily. "We've worked together for years; we're family. But guest stars are usually shocked I'm any good."

That's not surprising in a medium with its share of actor-director vanity projects. Yet Lange had started learning the director's craft while still at the Oakland (Ca.) Technical High School, and, years later, at the American Film Institute. He continued to direct stage plays and mixed-media projects throughout his collegiate tour-of-duty, and worked with every theater troupe he could find during San Francisco's Summer of Love. Yet when he finally hit Broadway, it was as an actor in the musicals "Hair" and "Ain't Supposed to Die a Natural Death." Lange went on to appear in B-movies and in several TV shows, including "That's My Mama" and "Mr. T and Tina" before sailing onto "The Love Boat."

"Because I'm an actor," says Lange, 38, "I know how to tap into what works for another actor when I'm directing. On the first day, I just let the actors go — I let them make all their suggestions. They like that, because so many directors hamstring them. And then, because I've done my homework on both the actor and the script, I'll say, 'Try this or that,' and they'll say, 'Wow! I should've thought of that!' By the end of the first day, I'm not ('Love Boat' bartender) Isaac Washington anymore. I'm the director," he says, sounding like one, "and I've got them."

SHOW AND TELL

Barrie loses weight as she gains success

By Gregory Garver

While waiting to see if "It's a Living" will be picked up for another season, Barrie Youngfellow is doing what a lot of us would like to do. "I'm tired," says Miss Youngfellow, who plays waitress Jan on the syndicated sitcom, "so I'm just going to sit down, put my feet up and gain some weight."

Barrie Youngfellow

On her, it will look good, especially since she has the annoying habit of losing weight when she works. What's worse, the waitress costumes she wears are a bit skimpy, so the actress has to be careful to stay slim and trim during the working season.

Now that "It's a Living" is on hiatus, Miss Youngfellow can gain weight — knowing, of course, it may soon have to come off.

The actress does her weight-gaining in New York, which is where she and her husband, actor Sam Freed, are based. But even the Big Apple can get boring. "I never know how long it'll take before I become bored with doing nothing," she confesses. "Sometimes I last a little longer, but I usually get bored in five, sometimes, eight weeks. Something inside me says, 'OK, it's time to go back to work now.' So then I go back into training, go back to working out and then go back to Hollywood."

When Miss Youngfellow talks about training and working out, she means it. She was born in Cleveland, and began dancing when she was three. She made her stage debut at 12, and has been acting and dancing ever since.

And though she never waitressed in real life, Miss Youngfellow says she has developed a great respect for the profession. "I now understand what they go through," she says, "and, boy, do I tip these days!"

Gil Gerard (l.) stars as a kidnapped police sergeant who is rescued by his 14-year-old martial-arts expert "son" (Ernie Reyes, Jr.) in "The Last Electric Knight," the episode of "The Disney Sunday Movie" airing Sunday, Feb. 16 on ABC.

Gerald and co-star are off-screen pair

By Gillian George

On-screen, Gerald McRaney and Jameson Parker are known as, respectively, Rick and A.J., of "Simon & Simon." But for the past five years, they've simply been Mackie and J.P. — two actors who are the closest of friends.

Gerald McRaney

"I don't know if our friendship makes a direct transition to the screen," says McRaney, "but I do know that it makes our working together a whole lot easier. In fact, I think it's pretty much like the relationship between a good quarterback and a good receiver. Each knows the other's moves so well," he adds, "that they don't even have to look at each other during a play. They instinctively know when a cut will be made and when the pass will be thrown."

The 38-year-old actor says he believes that the Simon Brothers buddy system is largely responsible for the show's phenomenal popularity. "We're a family-oriented show without excessive violence or sexual innuendo that tries to give the audience a few yuks and a few thrills," he says.

So does all that mean that McRaney is totally satisfied with his demanding job? "Yes and no," he says. "I would certainly rather do a terrific TV show than a crappy film. And as long as I'm still having fun with the show, I'll certainly be sticking around. And when things get a little monotonous, I make it a little tougher for myself by directing an occasional episode. I also co-wrote one episode last year and I'll be doing another this season."

McRaney says he hasn't had a vacation in five years; maybe that's because his idea of getting away from it all is to use his vacation time producing (along with Parker) a feature film called "Jackals."

Why? "It's totally different from 'Simon & Simon' and that's what attracted us," says McRaney. "It's a murder mystery and I play a killer deputy sheriff while J.P. plays a nice guy who just happened to witness a murder."

When McRaney is forced to take time off, he's either deer hunting with Parker or shuttling between his Malibu and Colorado houses. He loves sitting with friends, telling stories about his spotty early career. His favorite one is how his first claim to fame was being the last actor to ever be gunned down by Marshal Dillon on "Gunsmoke."

If Only I Were In Charge...

It's MY life.

Yet my parents are making all the decisions.

Sure, I realize that's the way it has to be. Children my age aren't yet ready to take responsibility for their future.

But think of the risks! Suppose they make some wrong decisions? What if they neglect important choices that have much to do with the kind of person I'll grow up to be? That would be awful, wouldn't it?

Well, there's a brighter side to my dilemma: My parents really love me! And so does God!

With His help they're on the way to doing a magnificent job. Meantime, I hope I'll be playing with your kids in the Church nursery next Sunday.

THE IMPOSSIBLE DREAM?

February 16, 1986

Background Scripture: Matthew 5:9, 38-48; Luke 6:27-36.
Devotional Reading: Matthew 26:3-6.

As I write this piece, a recorded choir is singing, "Peace on earth; good will to men." According to the headlines in this morning's newspaper and the stories on the evening television news, peace on earth seems little more than an impossible dream that is no closer today than it has been for the centuries wherein people have dreamed that dream and declared it to one another.

beaten into plowshares and people would "learn war" no more. Jesus declared "Blessed are the peacemakers, for they shall be called the sons of God." But the history of the world, both before and after Isaiah and Christ, has been little more than a chronological account of warfare and wars seemingly unending.

SAID OF OLD

So, are the peacemakers always to be a small minority and is peace ever to remain an impossible dream?

There are many people today who believe that peace is an unobtainable ideal, that the best we can hope for and occasionally achieve is an armed truce. The reason that we cannot have peace, they say, is that our enemies will not let us have it. If we were to unilaterally disarm our country, for example, would not the Soviets and their allies take advantage of our peacemaking efforts to gobble up more countries, to subject more people? Wouldn't our military weakness encourage the very conflicts we are trying to avoid?

Often I ponder those very questions and it is hard not to repeatedly answer all of them with an unequivocal "yes." But, at the same time, I cannot believe that the words of Jesus are just so much "pie in the sky." I cannot believe that Jesus would have dangled the vision of peace before our eyes only to add in fine print: "not applicable in the real world."

LOVE YOUR ENEMIES

Perhaps the key to this dilemma may lie in our failure to put into operation Jesus' teaching where we live. Maybe world peace will remain an impossible dream until we have demonstrated that it is neither a "dream" nor "impossible" in our personal lives, our neighborhoods, and our communities. It is not just that we have failed to love our national "Enemies"--the Soviets, the Libyans, the Iranians, etc.--but that we haven't even made much progress in loving Democrats or Republicans, liberals or conservatives, Anti-Abortionists or Pro-Lifers and so on. In just about every area of our lives--perhaps even in our churches--we operate on a confrontational win-or-lose, good guys vs. bad guys, eye-for-an-eye and tooth-for-a-tooth basis. After thousands and thousands of years, it still doesn't work. This is the real "impossible dream"!

Isn't it about time we give Jesus' way a real chance?

HOW IMPORTANT IS FLOSSING?

Most dental authorities today consider flossing to be at least almost important as brushing your teeth. This is because proper use of dental floss will effectively remove disease-causing bacterial plaque from areas between the teeth, where a toothbrush cannot reach.

But, many people with average normal dexterity find flossing to be difficult and awkward. Some of the reasons are gagging, the floss gets slippery, fingers get in the way, it takes too much time. Now, as the importance of flossing is realized new aids to make it easier are being developed. See our complete dental aids section.

Perrine, Clark Win Hospital Employee Awards

Denise Perrine and Frank Clark have been selected as January Employees of the Month at Garrett County Memorial Hospital.

Mrs. Perrine was graduated from Southern High School in 1972 and then worked for Dr. W.G. Savage as a dental assistant for three and one-half years. She was employed by the hospital in 1976 and has worked in the Insurance Department since that time.

Mrs. Perrine is married to Paul Perrine. Her hobby is raising and showing registered quarter horses, which occupies most of her leisure time.

"It is an honor to be chosen for this award," Mrs. Perrine said. "I enjoy my work and the people I work with."

Rita Durst, assistant patient accounts manager, stated that Mrs. Perrine is "a valuable part" of the insurance office. "Denise is always helpful to patients and other employees," she said. "She has the experience necessary to be able to accept added responsibilities in the office. She is an excellent employee."

Frank Clark, mechanics assistant in the Plant Operations Department, has been employed by the hospital since 1981. He and his wife, Mary, reside in Deer Park and spend much of their spare time renovating their farm house. They have two children and three grandchildren. His hobbies include hunting and fishing.

Clark stated that the hospital "is a good place to work" and that he works with "a good group of people." He said that he appreciated being nominated and chosen for the award.

"Frank's a very dedicated employee and is always willing to help in any way he can," stated Attrenis Kanagy, maintenance supervisor. "Also, his friendliness helps create a good working relationship with his co-workers and with the public."

She is a member of the National Honor Society for Biology Students and was recently placed on the Dean's List for the 1985 fall term. Students must earn at least a 3.5 grade point average to be named to the Dean's List at Clarion.

Miss Tower is the granddaughter of Mr. and Mrs. Vernon G. Ruppenthal, Terra Alta, and the late Mr. and Mrs. Roger H. Tower, who were residents of Oakland.

Cub Scout Pack Now Selling Candy

Cub Scout Pack 31, Oakland, of the Potomac Council of Boy Scouts of America, announced this week that its annual Easter Candy Sale is now underway.

The Cubs are selling hand-dipped chocolates, ranging from solid chocolate bunnies to coconut eggs to assorted chocolate covered nuts. Also available is a variety of party nuts.

The sale will run from February 12-26. Persons who are not contacted by the Cub Scouts, but wish to order candy or nuts may call 334-2722.

All proceeds from the sale are used for scouting activities and programs, according to a spokesman for Pack 31.

Home Eye Test Screens Vision, Eye Problems

Are you seeing as well as you should? Some eye problems develop so gradually that people are not aware their vision is affected.

The National Society to Prevent Blindness (NSPB) estimates that more than 11 million Americans have lost some vision. Many others, with conditions such as glaucoma, may not know they are at risk. To help people check their vision, NSPB has just released a revised edition of its Home Eye Test for Adults (HETA).

The do-it-yourself test provides four individual tests that point to signs of macular degeneration, glaucoma, or the more common near-or far-sighted refractive errors one encounters with age.

According to the Society, the majority of those who fail any part of the test may only require eyeglasses or a change of their current prescription, if they already wear glasses. However, the test can warn of more serious eye problems that require prompt medical attention.

The HETA, developed with the advice of some of the nation's leading ophthalmologists, is not diagnostic. NSPB recommends a periodic professional eye exam even for those who have passed the test. Copies are available for $1 to cover postage and handling costs through: National Society to Prevent Blindness, 79 Madison Avenue, New York, N.Y. 10016.

This is the third home eye test now available from the Society. The Home Eye Test for Preschoolers, introduced in 1972, alerts parents to vision problems of children. The Society's 10-minute TV Eye Test for adults has been offered to television viewers by local stations in many parts of the country. The TV Eye Test, permitting viewers to test for visual acuity and peripheral or side vision on their home screens, was developed by eye specialists at Stanford University Medical Center.

The National Society to Prevent Blindness, founded in 1908, conducts a comprehensive sight conservation program of community service, public and professional education and research.

MARYLAND DEPARTMENT NEWSPAPER

COMMUNITY COLLEGE WEEK in Garrett County was proclaimed this week by the Garrett County commissioners for February 17-23. The observance is being held as part of National Community College Month, which was proclaimed recently by President Ronald Reagan. According to Dr. George Dailey, a member of the Garrett Community College faculty and chairman of the local observance, the themes chosen for this program are "Opportunities for Excellence" and "The Associate in Arts Degree - Your Key to the Future." On hand for the proclamation signing by Commissioners Ernie Gregg, Elwood Groves, and John Braskey, pictured left to right, were, standing, Kim Martin, president of the GCC Student Government Association; Lowell Bender, director of the GCC Continuing Education program; and Dr. Dailey.

Spotlight On Students
Of Garrett Community College

Editor's note: As part of the observance of National Community College Month, students of Garrett Community College will be highlighted in this and next week's issue of The Republican.

Natalie Vetter

Sophomore student and woman athlete at Garrett Community College, Natalie Vetter, hopes to return to Garrett County to teach and coach when she completes her education. Vetter is the daughter of Patricia Vetter of Oakland and sister of Tanya, a senior at Southern High School.

A 1984 graduate of Southern High School, Vetter played both basketball and softball in high school and was also a member of the ski club and an honor student.

Now a physical education major, Vetter says she came to Garrett because "it is smaller, and the teachers are available to help students who need it." She has found the quality of education to be good, and says, "The Associate in Arts degree is a good beginning for a future career."

As a member of GCC's women's basketball team, Vetter says, "It was a big jump from high school basketball to college basketball, but it has been a very rewarding experience. It's a good experience to be a part of a team."

Vetter is also secretary of the Student Government Association at Garrett and finds that her main concerns there are to determine the needs of the students, organize more activities, and inform the students about opportunities available to them.

Recreational activities Natalie enjoys are skiing, hiking and jogging.

Following her graduation in May, she plans to transfer to Frostburg State College to continue her education. "I am glad I came to Garrett to start my education," she says, "and now I'm looking forward to the next two years."

Phil Carr, sophomore student and athlete at Garrett Community College, has set his sights on returning to Garrett County to teach and coach following the completion of his education. Carr, a 1984 graduate of Northern High School, is the son of Ed and Donna Carr of McHenry.

As a physical education major and member of the GCC baseball team, he is continuing his interest in sports that began in high school. While at Northern, Carr lettered in football, baseball and basketball. He also served as vice president of the Lettermen's Club and was a member of the Senior Student Activities Committee.

About his education at Garrett, Carr says, "I think the quality of education here is very good. I came here because I was not ready to jump into a big institution, and this has been a very successful experience for me. A community college offers a great opportunity that more people should take advantage of. It helps the transition to a larger institution."

He thinks the physical education program has been very helpful to him. "There are good instructors," he says. "Dr. Fearnow's classes were especially helpful."

Carr plans to continue his study of physical education at Fairmont or Frostburg after receiving his associate in arts degree from Garrett.

As a native Garrett Countian, Carr enjoys hunting and fishing when time allows. He is presently looking forward to a bear hunting trip to Canada following his graduation in May.

GCC Makes Good First Impression

by Darlene Tressler
GCC Admissions Office

Friday, February 7 was certainly not one of our worst days, but also in no way one of our best. Despite the weather, GCC packed up some of its treasures and headed for Allegany County to participate in Country Club Mall's first, hopefully annual, two-day activity, entitled "New Horizon", career planning weekend. This was an opportunity for area colleges and trade schools to demonstrate the fine quality of further education that is readily available.

To achieve this, GCC ran three different displays simultaneously; one contained general information on GCC and Garrett County accompanied by an audio visual slide presentation and was maintained throughout both days; the other two were changed at three to four hour intervals between 10 a.m. and 9:30 p.m. Each day a total of 13 different displays were presented.

Friday the 7th began with promotional displays in Secretarial Science and Biology. They were followed by an athletic display highlighting our baseball program and manned by Lynny Shook and Bryon Gray, student athletes at GCC. Besides baseball, the area was represented by a display of maps, fossils, rock, and minerals used in our geology class. This display attracted a lot of attention and instructor Dave Slagle and GCC student Deloris Edgar were on hand to answer questions. A video containing information about the various music classes offered at GCC, ran simultaneously with a display depicting Computer Science and concluded our efforts for the first day.

Saturday morning the athletics department was featured again with a display centered around men's and women's basketball. GCC student athletes present to help represent these programs included: Cheri Duncan, Lillie Jeffries, Jimmy Mayfield, Vickie Plitt, Jimmy Ragler, and Sharon Taylor. At the same time, Financial Aid information was provided by Beverly Miller, Financial Aid assistant at Garrett Community College. College handbooks containing various information about post-secondary institutions were made available as reference material through this display.

Wildlife, the height of the afternoon, was manned by Merrie Batts, Tina Shrout, and Al Lease, students at GCC. Among the true stars of the display was a live boa constrictor. Photography was presented at the same time with an attractive collage of black and white photographs and an alluring combination of music, narration and color slides.

The two-day activity concluded with emphasis placed on Art and Developmental Studies. Ron Skidmore, art instructor, represented Garrett Community College's Art program with an assortment of student art work. Assistant Professor, Sandra Bellanca, used a combination of equipment and written material coupled with a video on learning and memory to effectively illustrate the area of developmental studies.

Garrett County and Garrett Community College were well represented and GCC will continue to improve their efforts at demonstrating the fine educational opportunities our area has to offer.

Financial Aid Plays Vital Role At Garrett Community College

Note: The following article was prepared by Cissy VanSickle and the Financial Aid Office at Garrett Community College in observance of and for the promotion of National Community College Month.

The most important role of the Financial Aid Office at Garrett Community College is to assure access to education. Getting the word out and making sure students have the means to pay for college is the number one priority.

Over 250 students, many of whom may not have otherwise been able to attend, are funded at GCC either through federal programs or state and local scholarships in the amount of approximately $300,000.

The local community has always been most supportive of GCC students, contributing over $15,000 a year through various scholarships established by service clubs, organizations, local businesses, private individuals, as well as the staff and faculty of GCC itself.

One of the most valuable programs is the college's work-study program. This year approximately 51 students will earn $54,000 to help pay for their college expenses. Work-study provides the opportunity to learn new skills by placing students in on-campus positions related to their field of study while paying for their education. It is also a helpful addition to a resume. Many former students have obtained jobs due to their work-study experiences.

Contact with the Financial Aid staff does not end with a student's stay at Garrett. The office plays an important role in helping students find funding for transfer to their bachelor's programs. All available transfer scholarships are posted. Applications are made available and reference materials are kept on hand for students to research the many scholarships offered.

Garrett's size affords students the opportunity for more personal attention as they plan for their educational future. Most take advantage of the "one on one" advisement of Financial Aid before becoming one of the "numbers" in a large university. Since most Financial Aid forms are standarized nationally, many former students come back to Garrett's office for help in applying for the upcoming year.

Reference materials are kept containing financial information on most public and private educational institutions. An open-door policy is maintained, with office hours sufficient to accommodate both day and evening students and parents from 8 a.m. to 6 p.m.

Garrett Community College Highlight: Full-Time Faculty

One measure of quality at a college is the academic credentials of its full-time faculty. In both undergraduate and graduate education, a well-balanced and dynamically interactive faculty should hold degrees and training from a broad spectrum of collegiate institutions. GCC currently employs 17 full-time faculty. The academic preparation of these educators at the many different colleges and universities listed below highlights the strong and diverse academic background of the full-time faculty at GCC.

AURORA-EGLON NEWS

Mrs. Mae Heckert Artis will observe her 100th birthday on February 13. Cards may be addressed to her at the Goodwill Mennonite Nursing Home, Grantsville, Md. 21536.

Mrs. Artis says she is "eagerly looking forward" to this event as her roommate, Mrs. Dessa Harvey, celebrated her 100th in August. Both are former residents of Eglon, and Mrs. Artis is a former teacher and homemaker and was active in her church, St. John's Lutheran, at Red House. Although hard of hearing, her mind is keen, according to a spokesman at the home.

She is the mother of two sons, both deceased. Her grandchildren, one daughter-in-law, and other relatives and friends will gather this Sunday, February 16, to celebrate her birthday.

A group of people from the area met on Saturday evening, February 1, at the Mt. Grove Community Building to share a variety of homemade ice cream and cakes. Those who attended were: "Putt" and Kathryn Corbin, Larry, Nancy and Sharon Shaffer, Bobby and Wilma Shaffer, Clyde and Shirley Harsh, Eddie Mayhew and Connie Harsh, Naomi Harsh, Jerry and Bonnie Paugh and Joseph, Bob and Carolyn Harsh, Viola Harsh, Gladys Snyder, Willard and Dorothy Roth, Lois and Bob Strawser, Vicki Campbell, Ashley and Scottie, Wanda, Bob and Carolyn Evans, Buck, Pat and Rachel Knotts, Mr. and Mrs. Denver Rosier Jr. and Jonathon, Mr. and Mrs. Denver Rosier Sr., Mr. and Mrs. Paul Cassidy, Amanda and Christopher, Rick, Sue and Brian Corbin, Arvin and Rita Harsh, John and Jean Calcamp, Louella and Denver "Brown" Fike, Hattie and Raymond Arbogast, Brenda, Timmy and Brittany Watring, Mr. and Mrs. Donald Calcamp, Lela Slaubaugh, Juanita Stemple, Leon, Delores and Melissa Kelley.

Persons who would like to attend the Mt. Grove Community meetings may contact John Calcamp for the date and time. All are welcome to attend.

District Deputy President Maxine Stalnaker of Kingwood, is scheduled to visit the Mt. View Rebekah Lodge on February 13. Following the meeting, an auction is to be held to help finance a youth delegate to the United Nations. All dues for the 1986 year are also to be paid at this time.

Arnold Jr.; Georgia Hollen; Eldean H. Wilson; Pauline Lamb; "Od" Arnold and Doug and Carolyn Webster.

Mrs. Olive Beckman returned last Tuesday evening to her home at Brookside where her son-in-law and daughter, Ron and Avenell Parsons, are caring for her.

Mr. and Mrs. Galen Fike and Ellis Teets of Eglon, were in Virginia last week where they attended Spiritual Life Institute at the Bridgewater College. The Fikes visited with Mrs. Fike's mother, Mattie Texiere, at the Bridgewater Home and with his sisters, Mrs. Dove Miller at Broadway, and Mrs. Olive Huffman at Dayton. Mr. Teets was a guest of his son-in-law and daughter, Merlin and Martha Reish, and children at Harrisonburg.

Mrs. Bonnie Douglas of Ashland, Ky., was a weekend visitor with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Wade Hauser, Stemple Ridge.

The Stemple Ridge Ladies Aid sponsored the January birthday party at the Hopemont Personal Care Home. They provided financing for the retreshments which were cake and punch, baked, mixed, and taken to Hopemont by Pat Stemple.

Donations made recently to the Aurora VFD have been by the Slimettes and Barbara Heckert and the truck fund by the Wilt Brothers, Alan and Brian.

The February 4 meeting of the Eglon Homemakers began with the lesson, a report on the book, "Straight Talk to Men and their Wives" by James C. Dobson, given by Lorraine Fike.

Avenell Parsons had the devotions using God's Love as the theme and read a scripture from Jeremiah.

Linda Lewis thanked the club for the baby gift, after which the business session proceeded. The roll call was answered with the mention of something pertaining to one of the February holidays.

A Demonstration Day is to be held April 2 at Arthurdale, and a Craft Day in May. The March lesson will be planned by Cynthia Bachtel and will be on Kitchen Remodeling. Brenda Hartsell is to see about obtaining judges for the Demonstration Day.

Former Local Physician Shares Views On Concept Of Wellness

"Wellness Together" organizers invited former Garrett County Family Physician Jared B. Zelman to answer the three following questions to help tri-county families prepare for improving their health habits in 1986:

1. Why is it important for families to take these steps (Be Informed, Wear Safety Belts, Don't Drink & Drive, Eat Balanced Meals, Maintain Good Weight, Manage Your Stress, Exercise Regularly and Avoid Smoking) to Wellness?
2. How can families be motivated to change health habits?
3. Once motivated, how can we best reach our goals?

MOTIVATE THE ONES YOU LOVE

When Elizabeth Gilbert asked me to join with other health professionals in preparing this series, I thought what a wonderful opportunity to send greetings to our many friends in Garrett County. I have found my topic, however, to be most challenging—one with which I grappled daily in practice: how to educate and motivate ourselves in the proven preventive techniques of seat belt buckling, smoking cessation, exercise, etc. It is much easier to present the facts which come across physicians' desks daily and tell you all why smoking, eating fatty foods, driving unrestrained, . . . etc. is unwise. For I too loved real butter, red meat, laziness over hard exercise, and undisciplined (unbelted) driving. How can I be asked to motivate others when I can hardly motivate myself? Like a cleric with an unpure thought, maybe this type A-personality physician is just the one to share with my friends my approach or quest to attain perfection in the obvious quality-of-life preservers mentioned above.

Why is it important for families to take these steps to wellness? I like the concept that "families" are addressed. This need not be one's biologic family; it can be whatever family of friends, colleagues or club members with whom one shares concern about. First of all, we have to be motivated, and what is a better motivator than the love and care we have for our family and friends. The Why take these steps is obvious to me and will be discussed in future columns. The answer (for those of us who like to see the answers first) is self preservation—a desire to see what is going to be next year's birthday gift.

So, what is the game we must play to motivate ourselves into wellness? How about POSITIVE REINFORCEMENT. We all want to be on a winning team. Let's make ourselves the team. We can enjoy the comradeship of our family team, work team, or our friends to support ourselves with healthy habits. Say, "Glad to see you're wearing your seat-belts," is only as corny as any one of the members allows it to be.

We must each be the one to start the actions of healthfulness. Attitude precedes action. You must start the action, even in small ways, in order to come to believe in what you are doing. This could be as simple as requesting margarine in place of butter, making all riders in your car have seatbelts fastened before driving, or refusing to buy that pack of cigarettes for friends. It amazes me what we can accomplish. Be willing to reward yourself with small accomplishments. Everybody is belted in? You can say to yourself, "I made something important happen." There is no "THEY" we can blame for the failures in this game. WE and I are the motivators that are changing behavior. We are creating the culture of doing it right.

Physicians and other health care workers know that preventive medicine is the best medicine. While there have been dramatic advances in treatment of disease, there have been even more exciting advances to help us live longer, healthier lives. However, this knowledge in prevention places the responsibility for our health onto ourselves. We share in the responsibility for our well-being. It sounds simple, It is. It sounds reasonable. It is.

I believe that changing our unhealthy ways is an act of courage. The risk is of giving up some time and convenience. The incentive is clear—health—except for those who receive a secondary gain from their illness, such as increased attention from family and friends.

We human beings are very creative at finding ways to avoid risking change. Even though the evidence to healthy practices is clear, we continue to take the road to illness, the road to not assume responsibility for accident prevention, and the road to unhealthy ruts, traps and grinds. I believe we chose these roads because of their sheer familiarity. We are unwilling to risk giving up familiarity—so ominous is the threat of change. We would rather die of stress-related diseases than to acknowledge that we were unwilling to do anything about our stresses.

We must risk going through changes if we wish to have wellness. This takes courage, positiveness, and the willingness to be a leader and support everyone around you in changing into lifestyles of wellness. When we do this, we risk moments of uncertainty in a newfound place, but we gain through WELLNESS TOGETHER a heightened awareness and an appetite for living that is whetted anew.

Association Helping Preschoolers Learn About Their Hearts

For students of Garrett County preschools, this year's curriculum could include a subject that can help keep them healthy for life.

The American Heart Association is helping preschoolers learn about how their hearts work and how to develop healthy lifestyle habits through a special health education program offered through preschools and kindergartens.

The program, called The Heart Treasure Chest, is a mix of class activities and teaching sessions using brightly colored program materials and audio-visuals, books, music, finger-plays and games. The Heart Treasure Chest program comes in a box shaped like a pirate's treasure chest and contains a stethoscope which children can use to hear one another's hearts, a syringe with plastic tubing that demonstrates how the circulatory system works, a child-sized poster showing the heart and circulation, plus games, heart-healthy recipes for children and other learning tools.

"Reaching preschool children with heart health messages is important," said Dr. Wally Hijab, president of Western Maryland AHA, "so they can begin to establish healthy lifestyle habits they can follow throughout their lives." According to Hijab the program is designed as a three-week curriculum, and helps children understand what their hearts are, how they work, and how to tell if their heart is healthy. It encourages them to adopt lifestyle habits that can help them stay healthy, such as getting exercise, rest and eating nutritious foods. These concepts are reinforced when the students take home the Heart Notes newsletter for parents. The news letter tells parents what their child is learning and suggests creative ways for parents to re-emphasize these concepts at home.

"We're hoping that the Heart Treasure Chest will give young children a fighting chance against heart disease and stroke by giving them the basic information they need to start adopting healthy lifestyle habits," said Hijab.

BEFORE YOU REJECT OFFER

Suppose you receive an excellent offer to buy your home just one week after it has been placed on the market. Because you know an underpriced house sells quickly, you may be skeptical of a good offer which comes in promptly. It is human nature to argue that "if I received such a good offer after only one week, what would I get by waiting a while longer?" Maybe never an offer as good.

A true bargain, however, is usually snapped up within a day or two. After a week, you can assume that the market is operating normally. Experience has shown that the first offer is often the best one. This is because a new home on the market is exposed to a large group of potential buyers. Your best offer is likely to come from that group.

Be cautious, then, about rejecting a first offer out of hand. Agents find little comfort in saying, "I told you so" if you are waiting vainly three months later to equal that first proposal. Excellent non-conditional offers come from serious buyers. Don't expect them to be around for long.

Participating will be Marjie Hamilton, Rodney Durst, Carolyn Helbig, Dave Callis, The Whirley Birds, the girls chorus, the senior choir, Jeremy Vance, Melinda Barr, Leo Friend, and Joseph DiSimone. The public is invited.

Residents May Call Toll-Free For Tax Forms

Residents of Maryland can now call 1-800-424-FORM from 8:15 a.m. to 4:30 p.m., Monday through Friday, to obtain federal tax forms and publications.

The IRS Centralized Inventory and Distribution System (CIDS) began operating in October 1985 solely for the distribution of the many IRS forms and publications. According to IRS officials, it is the best and most efficient way for taxpayers to get additional forms and schedules as well as many specialized free publications on a variety of federal tax topics. By dialing the special toll-free telephone number, taxpayers are connected directly to a distribution center located in Richmond, Va. Turnaround time for orders is usually seven to ten days.

Taxpayers wishing to pick up forms or publications in person may visit their nearest IRS office. In addition, many banks and post offices stock some of the more commonly used tax forms.

Anyone wishing to write for forms may mail requests to: Internal Revenue Service, P.O. Box 25866, Richmond, VA 23260.

Farming In Maryland.....

Bernice Kepple, Farm Editor

New Legislation Puts Farmers On The Defensive

Farmers are not normally in the news, they go quietly about their business all year long, in all kinds of weather, without much attention. The economic situation has changed that, and farmers have been in the national news quite a lot lately.

The passage of the 1985 Farm Bill by the United States Congress drew attention to farm legislation on the national level. Now during the state legislature's session in Annapolis, there seems to be a large number of bills directed towards either farming as a business, as in the use of pesticides and worker's compensation insurance; or a danger, as in the unsuccessful attempt to require farm machinery moved on highways to have escort vehicles and wide load signs and lights.

These bills all seem to put farmers on the defensive. To hold and defend their way of life as they know it, they must keep up to date on what the government is attempting to do and fight if it becomes necessary. Fighting may simply mean making phone calls or writing letters to legislators.

A direct result of this was seen when the oversized farm machinery bill died in committee. It can be done, but farmers must remain on the defensive and ask for the support of their legislators when necessary, and appreciate the work being done by organizations such as the Maryland Farm Bureau, whose legislative lobbyist, Jack Miller, keeps a watchful eye on the General Assembly and testifies for the rights of farmers when necessary.

Two bills that Miller will be watching in the near future could have quite an impact on farmers' liability insurance and on the veal-calf industry.

A bill has been introduced into the House by two Montgomery County Democrats, Del. Idamae Garrott and Del. Judith C. Toth. Their bill would prohibit a farmer from selling any calf for veal if the calf was raised in Maryland or any other state in crates or enclosures of less than six feet square.

Veal calves are raised in heated, well ventilated barns in stalls which normally measure two or three feet wide by five or six feet long. Miller doesn't feel that this particular bill was pushed by the Animal Rights Movement, but says he is sure they like it. Miller says that people in general, as well as legislators, need to be educated so that they know the best methods used for various farm operations and that the farmers care for their animals' health and well-being because they represent an investment.

Many urbanites think of all animals as pets and feel they should be treated as humans, thus causing problems for farmers who do truly care for the animals they own but who must provide that care as economically as possible.

This bill would establish a maximum penalty of $500 or three months in jail, or both for the first offense, and $1,000 or one year in jail, or both for a subsequent offense.

Miller says that he doesn't see the bill having much success, but will definitely testify against it when the hearing comes up.

Another bill that worries Miller is Senate Bill 835, introduced by Senator Thomas Patrick O'Reilly (D-P.G. Co.). O'Reilly's bill would create an attractive nuisance law making an occupier of land liable for physical harm to a child trespassing on the land if the occupier knows that a child is likely to trespass, that an artificial condition (such as a tractor or piece of machinery) poses a risk and that the occupier has not used reasonable care to protect the child from the danger.

"This bill could tear farmers up," said Miller. He explained that all equipment could be termed as an attractive nuisance, and it would be impossible for a farmer to leave a tractor or piece of machinery unattended in the field while he ate lunch, drove for parts, or did the milking. Miller will testify against this bill when it comes up for hearing, but it would be wise for farmers to contact our local legislators, Sen. John N. Bambacus and Del. George C. Edwards, to bring the issue to their attention.

One bill designed to help some farm operations was sponsored in the House by Delegates Joseph F. Vallario Jr and Richard A. Palumbo (both D-P.G. Co.). HB 668 would prohibit any action against an agricultural operation on the grounds that the operation interferes with the use of other property if the operation has been under way for at least one year and was not a nuisance from the date it began.

This bill expands the definition of a farm operation in the law relating to suits against agricultural operations by including the production of bees and their products. It also states that a private action may not be sustained against an agricultural operation on the grounds that the operation interferes, or has interfered, with the use or enjoyment of other property, whether public or private.

The House Judiciary Committee will hear this bill on Friday.

Agriculture is the nation's largest industry and has a net worth of $1 trillion.

USDA Begins New Conservation Reserve Program

To conserve eroding cropland and help adjust the production of surplus agricultural commodities, the Secretary of Agriculture has announced a new Conservation Reserve Program. The program is designed to convert highly erodible cropland to permanent vegetative cover for 10 years, according to Harry W. Hummel, Garrett County ASCS Committee chairperson.
